Does the Work of Five Hand Mowers

Ideal Power Lawn Mowers are great labor savers. Any man with an Ideal can easily cut as much grass as five hard-working men could cut with hand mowers. Moreover, as the Ideal is designed with the roller as an integral part of the machine, the grass is rolled every time it is cut—this keeps the turf firm, smooth and in the finest possible condition.

Cuts Four to Five Acres a Day.

The mower has 30-inch blades and with one man to guide it, cuts four to five acres of lawn a day, on an operating expense of fifty cents for fuel and oil. The Ideal is of extremely simple design with no complicated clutches nor gears. All the operator has to do is to guide the machine and operate the starting and stopping lever.

Uses Tractor Principle

The cutting blades operate by the traction of their side wheels upon the ground, just the same as the blades on a hand mower operate. This eliminates the difficulties that are almost sure to occur where an attempt is made to drive the blades direct by power from the engine.

Cuts Close to the Walks, Trees, Flowerbeds and Shrubbery

With the Ideal a man can work just as close to various obstacles as with a hand mower. The mower is hung at the front in such a manner that it turns easily and is guided around corners, flower-beds, trees, etc., without difficulty.
Photo at right shows how the Ideal is quickly converted into a power roller by using the small caster which we furnish. Valuable feature for early spring rolling.

Five Days' Trial — Satisfaction Guaranteed

Write for particulars of our five day trial offer. Ideal Power Lawn Mowers are sold on a positive guarantee of satisfaction and we will willingly refund money on any machine that does not prove satisfactory when properly operated.
You can secure this Ideal through your hardware dealer or direct from our factory. Write today for special literature.

Ideal Power Lawn Mower Co.:
The Ideal Power Lawn Mower we purchased last spring has proved to be a life-saver to us, coming as it did at the time when labor was so scarce and high. It proved equal to two horses and several men, as it worked up close to obstructions and saved much hand work in this way.
Yours very truly,
F. L. HOWARD, Supt.

John L. Brock
Trenton, N. J., November 27, 1918.

Ideal Power Lawn Mower Co.:
I have about three acres of lawn to cut. Thanks to the Ideal Power Lawn Mower, my lawn looked much better this summer than it ever has before. I believe much credit is due to the roller attachment. In my judgment, it would require at least four men with ordinary hand mowers to do the same amount of work as I am getting out of my Ideal.
Yours very truly,
JOHN L. BROCK.

Here is a good example of our Pipe Frame double "Y" supported greenhouse. It is 35 feet 6 inches wide and has but two rows of supports through the center. It is amply strong to stand the severest storms and snows of winter.

It is one of the most economical houses to build and also one of the most economical to heat.

The erection of this house is very simple and, with our complete plans and instructions, it can be put up with ordinary mechanics such as are found around any town.

Let us give you an estimate on the cost of this type of house.

Standard 41-foot 3-inch House

(This measurement is to extreme outside of posts.)

Inside measurement is 40 feet 6 inches.

FOR general growing purposes, this is the finest house in the medium-width class. It is an odd width, but that very oddity works out to your benching advantage, giving six benches, each 4 feet 6 inches wide. The side of the house is 7 feet high. The height to ridge is 17 feet 3 inches.

The way things are loosening up in all other lines of business, it does look as if there is a big harvest ahead for you greenhouse men.

When you are ready to talk business, say when and where, and we will be there.

Less Flowers and More Ribbon

In these days of high priced flowers, it is real economy to use ribbon lavishly. Many designs with a few flowers tastefully arranged with a large bow of inexpensive ribbon will give greater satisfaction than when many expensive flowers are used in the design.

Progressive Florists realize that in these days of heavy retail overhead something must be done to counterbalance the high cost of flowers.

A large, attractive ribbon bow can be made up by you in a medium grade of ribbon at a cost not exceeding 75 cents. Width of the ribbon, 5 inches. Higher grade ribbon in proportion.

You Florists who still believe in economizing on ribbon, take notice. AT YOUR SERVICE.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

GETTING TOGETHER TO SELL MORE FLOWERS

There has been talk without end of the value of coöperation, but the average florist has not thought it meant for him; he has preferred competition, usually the price-cutting variety. But the success of recent co-operative publicity work has served to open the eyes of many trade leaders.

"IN what other line of business is there a better prospect for making money?" The question was that of L. R. Bohannon, president of the Chicago Retail Florists' Association, and he answered it himself: "For the man who knows how, considering the opportunity to start on small capital, there is no other occupation that affords better opportunities than the flower business. When I say to make money, I mean real money, not just a living, and, while I speak as a retailer, I include the greenhousemen, the wholesalers, supply people—everybody."

The opportunities for profit in the retail end of the flower business indeed are exceptional, but before one may avail himself of them it is necessary to understand what they are and here, again, it is possible to use the words of President Bohannon: "Where we have the advantage of retail merchants in other lines is that we employ art in the arrangement of our merchandise; we not only can charge for the goods, but also for the skill with which we make them up."

Who Leads?

There is, of course, another class of florists, those who sell just flowers, usually not the best grade of flowers, without pretense of arrangement. These must depend on the margin between cost price and selling price for their profit and, although they may be of great value to the trade through their ability to move large quantities of stock during times of heavy cuts, they never become known as leaders of trade thought or trade progress in their communities. The leading florist in any city usually is he who does the best work, rarely he who handles the most flowers, although sometimes artist and merchant are one, in which case a truly conspicuous business results.

As a trade we have learned much during the war—the elimination of waste, that we previously employed more help than was necessary, that we could if we would pay better wages and get better work, that flowers are worth what they cost and, most important of all, we have learned the value of concerted effort, of coöperation.

Too Busy with Our Hands.

It is characteristic of all lines of trade in which the units are small that the men engaged are busy knifing each other; big business long since awakened to the folly of fighting, but the little fellows are so thoroughly occupied with work for their hands that they have little time to use their heads on the proposition that more money is to be made by talking it over with a competitor than by trying to drive him out of business.

Florists are not different from other classes engaged in the less easily organized industries in that the first impulse is to scramble for what business there is going; it is a second thought that a better method is to get together on plans calculated to increase the use of that particular commodity.

Florists have scrambled; it is only recently that they have begun to work together. If we prove as intelligent co-operators as we have been keen competitors, the flower business will double in the next five years.

To the man whose only or chief business idea has been to buy and sell just a little cheaper than the fellow "down the street," the thought of working with him to increase the sale of flowers or the profits of the business is too revolutionary to be readily entertained. Yet it has been done in many other trades where misguided competition had engendered jealousies at least as keen as ours.

Stop Scrambling.

Remember that "Rome was not built in a day" and don't try for too great speed, but make a start. It is not necessary to organize, indeed it even may be undesirable; the details and routine of organization frequently absorb attention and cause the real objects to be lost sight of. Even in a large city the get-together idea can be worked among the florists of a locality.

First of all, get acquainted. Start with two. Drop in on your neighbor some day next week and get him to go along to lunch, Dutch treat if he likes. Don't talk business; let that come later, after you have come to know each other well enough not to be suspicious. Get a third man in, a fourth, fifth; work up to a weekly luncheon of all the florists in the town or locality. Get them together with the constraint of mutual suspicion worn off and they will talk business as naturally as a duck takes to water.

The Door Wreath has Displaced the Old-fashioned Crepe.
(This one was for President Smith, of the Mormon Church.)

Then Get Down to Work.

Then is when the real opportunity for good, constructive work will develop. That is where the scramble will stop. Price-cutting will cease, although prices may not be uniform; there are good and sufficient reasons why one store should charge less, or more, than another. Useless expense will be cut out, waste will be reduced, hours may be shortened, profits will be increased, stabilized, assured. With it will come improved service to the public and increased sales, an increase in proportion to the intelligence and energy with which the work is handled.

In each group of florists there is likely to be one man of superior abilities as an executive; he is the one to enlist. Get him to apply his powers of analysis to the local situation and to the component establishments that influence it. There need be no surrender of individual opinion or privilege, but there will be a sure profit all the way along the line, from eliminating the dead beats, through knowledge of the costs of doing business, to the cumulative benefit that comes from all working together to spread among the people the knowledge that flowers afford an influence, a sense of satisfaction and of pleasure, which cannot be obtained in others ways.

SWEET PEAS FOR OUTDOORS.

It probably will be some weeks yet before sweet peas can be sown outdoors, but much finer and earlier blooms may be obtained by starting a good batch of seeds under glass now. It is best to use only a few varieties. Reliable sorts to start are King White or Nora Unwin, white; Hercules or Countess Spencer, clear pink; Florence Nightingale, lavender; Thomas Stevenson, scarlet; Rosabelle, carmine-rose. If any other colors are wanted, try Elfrida Pearson, blush; Mrs. C. W. Breadmore, picotee-edged; Captain of the Blues, clear blue; Blanche Ferry Spencer, rose and white; Mrs. Hugh Dickson, salmon pink. The best selling colors are clear pink, white, lavender and rose.

Start the seeds in flats of pure sand and later pot off singly into 3-inch pōts. They will do particularly well in a gentle hotbed toward the end of March and in the colder states can usually be planted out with safety from April 15 to 25. To secure good sweet peas, deep and well enriched soil is necessary. A successful sweet pea grower has boiled down successful sweet pea culture outdoors into a dozen words: "Manure liberally, spade deeply, sow early, brush speedily, water freely, pick persistently." A foot apart is close enough to plant the sweet peas. This may seem thin sowing at the start, but if the soil was well prepared, the haulm will soon make it difficult to see through the rows.

SWEET PEAS DAMPING OFF.

Can you tell me what ails my sweet peas? I am losing many of them by damping off when the plants are five to six inches high. I bought seeds from a reliable house. E. R. B.—Tex.

It is difficult to hazard an opinion as to the cause of your sweet peas damping off without knowing something of your soil and cultural conditions. Sweet peas succeed best in a light but fairly rich soil. To achieve success in their culture under glass, they should not be sown in drills, as is done outdoors, but started in flats or small pots and set out four or five inches apart. No hilling up should be done, as this will cause damping off. Much depends on the temperature and it is well to remember that, until they reach the flowering stage, a night temperature of 46 to 48 degrees is ample for them. As the flowers start to open, increase the temperature to 50 or 52 degrees. Always ventilate when the thermometer reads 58 degrees. Raise and lower the ventilators a little at a time and maintain a buoyant atmosphere. The plants need all the sunshine possible and feeding is better omitted until the days grow longer. C. W.

BEST OUTDOOR VARIETIES.

What are the best varieties of pink, white and lavender sweet peas to grow for outdoor blooming? W. & C.—Ind.

Fine outdoor varieties are: Nora Unwin or White Spencer, pure white; Countess Spencer and Hercules, pink, and Florence Nightingale, lavender. Walter P. Wright is also a fine light lavender variety. C. W.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

B. & S., Wash.—Temperature for tomatoes, 60 degrees at night.

A. S., N. J.—Probably the common white fly, the surest exterminator of which is hydrocyanic acid gas. Directions for the use of this fumigant have appeared frequently in The Review.

R. B., O.—The general rule is to sow the cabbage seeds in flats or hotbeds about sixty to ninety days before danger of killing frost is past.

E. L., Me.—Sow the palm seeds in well drained pots or pans, in a light soil, consisting of about two parts loam to one part sharp sand; cover the seeds with their own depth of soil. Place in a warm house, over bottom heat, and keep well watered.

J. J. U., Mich.—We do not know of any plant called the wolf flower. Do you mean the wolfsbane, or aconitum?

LADIES' LUNCHEON AT ST. LOUIS.

Mrs. H. G. Berning, secretary of the St. Louis Lady Florists' Club, announces that all ladies in the trade are invited to attend a luncheon given by the club at the Young Women's Christian Association rooms, Fourteenth and Locust streets, St. Louis, Tuesday afternoon, March 4, at 2:30. Arrangements have been made for a large attendance.

CUTWORMS ON CARNATIONS.

Our carnations are doing well this season, but cutworms are appearing on them. What shall we do? We have tried a mixture of Paris green, shorts and molasses, but it did not do much good. J. O. L.—Mass.

The Paris green-shorts-molasses mash ought to clean out the cutworms. We have used instead of the shorts and molasses a horse feed made of alfalfa with molasses added to it. We simply add the Paris green to this feed. The resulting mixture is fine also for destroying snails.

Bear in mind that it will require a little time before the effects of the cutworms will disappear. All the buds which have been chewed will have to bloom out. If the poison baits fail to get the worms, you will have to pick them off by hand. They work for the most part early in the morning and, with the aid of a strong lantern, you will be able to catch most of them.

AT THE HOME OF RUTH BAUR.

History speaks of a man named Boaz, who possessed such a sterling character that the right-hand pillar of the porch of King Solomon's temple was named for him. This Boaz married Ruth, described as beautiful to look upon, and possessing all the qualities that go to make up the ninety-nine and ninety-nine-one-hundredths per cent standard. Looking over several beds of Carnation Ruth Baur and hearing A. E. Steinkamp recite its pedigree, one could not help acknowledging the propriety of the simile. As the flower already has been described in The Review of November 21, with illustrations, it may be sufficient here to observe that this carnation undoubtedly will be popular with every grower. Indianapolis assuredly will be proud to be its sponsor and Baur & Steinkamp gratified with results, when dissemination is made. Among a batch of seedlings here are noted a few promising items, especially a white seedling of White Wonder x Matchless. Both parents also are in splendid condition. Rosalia is in heavy crop and, by a coincidence, is being fed with a special carnation fertilizer. It shows decided benefits from this special feeding. Baur & Steinkamp also have Pocahontas and Enchantress Supreme in heavy crop. Merry Christmas has not given over blooming and the propagating house is filled with rooted cuttings to fill orders—is booked to capacity, in fact. Some concerns are placing orders for 1920, so scarce is stock and so obscure the outlook. A batch of seedling chrysanthemums seen here is interesting. Good results may reasonably be expected from them. A large block of geraniums elicited the remark that undoubtedly the selling price of these plants will be 15 cents wholesale and 25 cents retail for plants in 4-inch pots. Agathæa cœlestis in 7-inch pots, a promising blooming plant for Easter, was growing on brackets formerly occupied by hydrangeas. Begonia Chatelaine was a great seller at Christmas and will be grown in larger numbers from now on. A number of large plants of Buddleia asiatica in pots for spring sales, growing outdoors, is evidence of the hardihood of this shrub. In the spring the stools are broken up and sold at good prices for city gardens. W. M.

Hydrangea Arborescens Grandiflora Alba as a Pot Plant.

THE EVERBLOOMING HYDRANGEA

H. Arborescens Grandiflora.

In this town, Eaton, O., a place of between 5,000 and 6,000 persons, there are hundreds of specimens of the fine flowering shrub, Hydrangea arborescens grandiflora, which I prefer to designate as the American Everblooming hydrangea. Most of them have been in bloom since the middle of June. The bushes are four to five feet tall and three to four feet across, with masses of snow-white trusses of flowers eight to ten inches across. It is one of the most beautiful hardy flowering shrubs in cultivation.

The plant was discovered by an enterprising florist of Richmond, Ind., in an Ohio city fourteen years ago. Its propagation has been pushed rapidly since then, so that now it can be obtained from prominent growers about as readily as rose plants. Some great men's lack of observation is strikingly exhibited occasionally in everyday affairs. One of the leading florist-seedsmen of Ohio and his partner, while looking for new and good things on the grounds of the Richmond introducer of H. arborescens grandiflora, walked past a block of it, then in bloom, thinking it was H. paniculata grandiflora. They looked beyond it, hoping to see something worth while.

Did Not Know Their Value.

The leading florist in the city where this hydrangea was discovered grew a good stock of it in 2½-inch pots and sold the plants, along with geraniums and other bedding plants, at $1.50 per dozen. If he had understood the situation, he could have sold his entire stock at that time to resourceful growers at $1 each. A plant of this hydrangea grew in a public street in Dayton, O., for five or six years without being noticed by the nurserymen and florists who passed it every day.

In the Ohio city where Hydrangea arborescens grandiflora was discovered, and where more than 100 flourishing plants of it were scattered about, it was invariably known as the Everblooming hydrangea, to distinguish it from H. paniculata grandiflora. I suggested the name American Everblooming, because it is an American plant, without any pro-German taint, and is more nearly a continuous bloomer than any other so-called everblooming shrub within my knowledge. A 3-year-old plant usually yields some bloom every week from June until the end of October. I know of no old-time hybrid perpetual rose or other hardy shrub that will do that. All hydrangeas delight in a cool, moist atmosphere.

The double-dyed scientific botanists cannot tolerate a plain, everyday name, but had to stick onto this new candidate the prodigious name of Hydrangea arborescens grandiflora alba. To escape this jawbreaker, common people call it Snowball or Hills of Snow. American Everblooming is more comprehensive, as well as patriotic.

Cutting Back the Plants.

As to the treatment of this variety, most persons cut back the plants in February or March to within about six inches of the ground. Some carefully leave a half-dozen strong shoots three to four feet long, to give early bloom. The young shoots from the ground begin to bloom about the end of June. I think this cutting back increases the tendency to continuous blooming.

This hydrangea will not make so much of a tree as H. paniculata grandiflora, but makes a clump a foot or more across. I think it is well to dig out some of the stubs in early spring, to strengthen those remaining. Cuttings taken off in February, about eight inches in length, root and grow in the nursery about as readily as currant cuttings.

As to the hardiness of the plant, I have sold it repeatedly to customers in

This, probably, is the last contribution to horticultural literature by the late E. Y. Teas, who died at his home in Eaton, O., December 15, 1918. —Ed.

Winnipeg and Montreal, Canada, and the native H. arborescens abounds in the mountain gorges of Alabama and Georgia.

Do not infer that I am opposed to botanical names. I once visited a nurseryman in France, a man whom I had never heard of before. He spoke no English and I spoke but little French. After a visit of two hours, however, I understood him and his stock nearly as well as if he had been a fellow countryman. Botanical names are precise in meaning and are accepted everywhere, but good, hard Yankee sense should have its place.

BUCKEYE BULL'S-EYES

A WISE MOVE.

In the prize contest of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association last October, for suggestions for improving the service, it was pointed out by Louis C. Hecock, of Elyria, O., that, as it was of the utmost importance to secure members in the smaller towns and cities, it might be well to appoint a special representative to call upon the florists in such places in person. Whether or not the recent employment by the association of a traveling agent is directly or indirectly traceable to this valuable suggestion, we do not know; but we remember that the judges favored a similar plan of action, namely, the offer of a commission to traveling men for enlisting new members. Our only comment is that it appears a wise and businesslike procedure.

The weakness of the F. T. D. at the present time lies in the fact that for the most part its members are located in the larger cities, thus confining its service to limited portions of the country. This entails the necessity for shipments of from twenty-five to fifty miles, which militates against the primary object of supplying flowers quickly and in the freshest possible condition. The effort to establish direct connection with practically every small town of importance in the land should obviate that difficulty and effect the full development of the F. T. D. idea.

The officials of the association are to be complimented upon the selection of a man of the sterling type of L. F. Darnell for this office. His broad knowledge of the flower business, acquired by a successful experience of over thirty years, and his extensive acquaintance throughout the trade, betoken him as the right man for the purpose. Possessed of an engaging personality and being completely obsessed by his subject, his work cannot fail to bear abundant fruit.

TECHNICAL TRAINING.

Florists are beginning to realize the value of technical training for their sons, appreciating that money spent in the acquisition of vocational education constitutes a sound investment. While they themselves, perhaps, had not the benefits to be derived from a few years' consecutive study at college, they wish to equip their sons with that inestimable advantage. Not that this necessarily means a short road to success, but it makes for a deeper delving beneath the surface and imparts a better understanding of the true beauty and grandeur of a career in the splendid field of floriculture. Many promising young men born in the profession are constantly being lost to it, because, as practiced by their parents, it woefully lacks attraction; which means that little effort has been put forth to cultivate their liking for a noble, as well as remunerative, life work.

Among men of the old school there existed a peculiar antipathy to book-learning as applied to business. Happily, however, that sentiment is a thing of the past. Technical study, combined with the practical experience that assisting in the greenhouse and store affords, is essential to the training of the men of whom our vocation now stands in most urgent need. The school of experience graduates countless men of undeniable ability; but as florists they could have accomplished more with less hardship, earlier in life, had they started with the thorough knowledge of plant life, the composition of soils and acquaintance with insects and diseases, which the technical course is designed to afford. Numbered among the writer's contemporaries in the trade are a score of young men who began their business careers with this great advantage. Without exception they have steadily risen to eminence. While some of them might have succeeded anyway, their early achievement of success is directly attributable to their superior equipment.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

CLUB-ROOT ON LETTUCE.

E. G. B.—O., has experienced the same trouble with his lettuce that I have had with mine. If he will pull some of it up he will find the roots full of swelled places, like little warts, or tubers. Some growers call this condition club-root. The only remedy I know of is to change the soil. I have tried live steam and have soaked the ground with formalin solution in the proportion of one pint to forty gallons of water, but to no avail. However, some nodules or tubers are essential to all legumes, as they are caused by the bacteria present in the soil.

D. E. Whitson.

APHIS ON LETTUCE.

I would like to have information on spraying or fumigating for aphis on lettuce in greenhouses and coldframes.

E. B.—Ind.

Spraying is not effective for control of aphis on lettuce, as the pests are always on the lower sides of the leaves, which lie so close to the ground that insecticides cannot reach more than a part of them. Fumigation with one of the tobacco papers will be found effective and perfectly safe. I would give fumigations at intervals of a couple of nights, as one dose may not kill all the pests. Afterward I would advise fumigation lightly every ten days, prevention being better than cure with any of these plant pests. Do not use tobacco stems. Even if carefully used they will burn some of the foliage. Tobacco dust is a more satisfactory fumigant.

BLIGHT ON TOMATOES.

I grow tomatoes in my lettuce house as a finish crop in the spring. I have had success with them until the last two or three seasons, when some kind of blight has appeared on them, which causes the leaves to turn yellow about the time the fruit begins to set. The blight takes the whole plant in a short time. The roots are all right and the pith is good. The skin is green, but the wood under the skin and around the pith is brown and dead and the plant withers and dies soon after being attacked. This trouble is not caused by red spider. It is a blight of some kind, which affects my cucumbers also. I would appreciate advice on the subject, as it looks as though this trouble might put me out of business.

A. H. K.—Kan.

It is probable that your soil has become what is commonly called "tomato sick," which would account for your plants doing so poorly. You probably have ground beds and not raised benches. Ordinarily a rotation crop of lettuces, followed by tomatoes or cucumbers, proves satisfactory, provided that, after one crop is cleared, a liberal application of rotted manure is applied and thoroughly incorporated into the soil before setting out the succession crop. Lettuces, like all leafy vegetables, are heavy feeders and require a good deal of nutrition from the soil. They are a useless crop on starved soil. Have you given your beds the necessary preparation before setting out your tomatoes and cucumbers? Sometimes even the best preparation will not bring a good crop and a sterilization of the soil will be found helpful. During intensely hot weather, tomatoes under glass sometimes suffer. Your state is warm and the heat may have affected your tomatoes. A dry atmosphere suits tomatoes, just as a moist one is to the liking of cucumbers. A spraying with Bordeaux mixture will help to check diseases on tomatoes. This should be applied before the trouble appears.

THAT JAPANESE BEETLE

A REPLY TO DR. MARLATT.

The Statement.

The Japanese beetle, which is a new injection into the subject of plant import prohibition, as published in Dr. Marlatt's memorandum on quarantine regulations sent out by the Federal Horticultural Board under date of February 1, a copy of which appeared in The Review of February 13, is one with which the trade is not familiar and on which I will herewith note my own observations, compared with the published report as it appeared in The Review, from which I quote:

"The Japanese beetle," says Dr. Marlatt, "brought in about the same time as the peach moth, has already obtained such firm foothold that in view of its habits and powers of prolonged fight it is probably incapable of extermination and will no doubt ultimately overspread the United States. It attacks not only practically all fruits, but also many garden vegetables and corn. The amount of damage which it will ultimately cause to American agriculture is undoubtedly tremendous. It is worthy of note that this beetle, in the opinion of the experts of this department and of the state of New Jersey who have investigated the matter, was brought in by the Dreer nursery with importations of iris from Japan. The insect first appeared in the heart of the Dreer nurseries and has spread from this center over an area approximately of 25,000 acres, involving four townships in New Jersey opposite Philadelphia."

The following covers my own observations of this supposed Japanese introduction since its discovery:

The Nursery Record.

In the first place, I want to make it perfectly clear that this pest did not make its appearance "in the heart of the Dreer nursery." In fact, not a single specimen has ever been found in the Dreer nursery. It was first found at our Locust Farm, a branch nursery located fully two and one-half miles from the Dreer nursery or the heart of same. It was even not found in the heart of this branch nursery, but in one corner of it.

Only a very few specimens of the beetle were first found. This was late in August, 1916, on some shrubs which were growing in ground near to which in 1911 Japanese iris were growing which had been imported from Japan. The finding of these beetles was incidental to one of the regular summer inspections of our nursery stock made by the New Jersey inspector. The beetle, not being known to the inspector, was submitted to the National Museum at Washington, where it was identified as the Japanese beetle (Popilia japonica).

The following July, 1917, I personally accompanied the New Jersey inspector to Locust Farm to make a further search for this bug and at this time we found a scattering few in the same locality on flowering shrubs, but more particularly on the edge of the field on smartweed, which it prefers to all other food.

Originally from a Neglected Field.

A representative from the U. S. Department of Agriculture appeared a week or ten days later, and with him I went over the ground again and it was not difficult at that time to find quite a number of the beetles.

The question was naturally asked: "Did you at any time plant any Japanese stock in this nursery?" As a result, our records were looked up and I found that near this spot where the first bugs were located an importation of Japanese iris was planted in 1911. On this is based the department's inference that the bug was imported with Japanese iris by Dreer.

It was probably two or three weeks after this that a representative of the Department of Agriculture was permanently placed on the ground to study the pest. In the meantime, we had not been idle in using arsenical poisons in the affected part and finally we put a number of men to work to hand-pick the beetle. In making these hand-pickings, these men worked across the boundary into a 15-acre, much-neglected field, at that time belonging to a Mr. Abbott, where much smartweed was growing and where many thousands of the beetles were then at work.

This field of fifteen acres adjoining Locust Farm is the only land between the nursery and the old, and for many years abandoned, Parry nursery and my own conviction is that the pest was in this place long before it was at Locust Farm and that its discovery was only incidental to the regular inspection of our nursery stock.

WE SHALL BE GLAD TO HEAR FROM YOU

Flights Are Not Long.

It was natural for me to be on the lookout for the pest and I well recall the same year, 1917, late in August or early in September, noticing a few old althæa bushes in flower at an entrance of the old abandoned Parry nursery, which I, with three of my associates, examined, and found quite an infestation. This entrance to the Parry nursery is fully three-quarters of a mile from the corner of Locust Farm where the first bugs were discovered.

The department states that on account of its powers of prolonged flight, the beetle is probably impossible to exterminate, and will no doubt ultimately overspread the United States. The flight of the pest is not of exceptional strength; 200 yards is the longest record. When disturbed in any manner, it does not always fly away, but generally drops to the ground and "plays 'possum."

On plowed ground that showed a strong infestation of the grub in the fall of 1917, all had disappeared by the spring of 1918. The grubs that hibernated successfully were in protected places, such as neglected hedgerows.

From observation of the work done during the last season in the fighting of this pest, I am convinced that its extermination is simply a matter of proper equipment to carry on the fight systematically and at the proper time. Many beetles emerged during the last season which would have been destroyed in the soil if it could have been treated at the proper time.

The Japanese government in the province of Tokyo, Japan, an area about one-third as large as the state of New Jersey, where this beetle appeared in large numbers, succeeded in securing perfect control of same. Why should our entomologists despair of accomplishing the same results?

Department Exaggerates Danger.

The department's report states that the pest has spread over an approximate area of 25,000 acres, while it actually has only been found in an area not exceeding 10,000 acres and 5,000 acres is all that is known as an infested breeding area.

The 10,000 acres show the very extreme points at which single insects were found, as, for instance, one beetle in the garden of our secretary, J. O. Thilow, at Fourth and Elm avenue, Palmyra, N. J. Mr. Thilow found this one insect in his garden and turned it over to me with a report of its finding. I promptly turned this over to the department's representatives, as I used every means at my disposal to coöperate with them.

I would state that Mr. Thilow's garden is by road at least two and one-half miles or in an air-line one and one-half miles from any infested area, and that the intervening unaffected space is counted in on the previously mentioned 10,000 acres.

I might also add that while the pest will feed on many different kinds of vegetation upon which it may land, its preference is first smartweed, with flowers next. It does not feed on iris and I believe the economic damage which it has done so far will amount to less than $5.

J. D. Eisele.

Richmond, Ind.—"What is the matter with Rose Premier?" E. G. Hill replied thus to an inquiry regarding the next surprise to be sprung upon the trade. "There is nothing but the highest praise for Premier, Mr. Hill," his interlocutor answered, "but it is believed you will not rest with this as the climax." "Wait and see," Mr. Hill responded.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Schling Praises Efforts.

In a letter enclosing a check for $250, as the yearly subscription from his retail store to the national publicity fund, and another for $50, from his seed department, Max Schling, the well-known New York retail florist, remarks as follows:

"I am very glad to say that the advertising of our organization begins to be felt. People are constantly talking about it and I hope that the longer we keep up our efforts the more we shall merit the support of such florists, growers and others engaged in associated lines, as have not already joined us in our work, so that we can not only increase our advertising, but also force more and more the attention of the public to the fact that flowers can be used for any and every occasion; that their minds should turn to ourselves and our flowers in every case where courtesy to others is to be extended; and that whenever they want to express sentiment, it should be with flowers, and their gifts, also, should be floral."

Mr. Schling's views are shared by hundreds of other florists throughout the country. Were evidence of this needed, it could not be better presented than in the large demand lately experienced by our promotion bureau for the various items in its list of direct service aids, such as signs, stickers, "movie" slides and electrotypes for use in newspaper advertisements and other forms of advertising. In the last four weeks there have been dispatched over 300 packages of this material.

Slogan Hits the Spot.

Our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," is declared to be the best ever devised, eliminating, as it does, anything approaching a direction and embodying pure and simple suggestion. The promotion bureau notices a general increase on the part of the trade in the use of this slogan, but there are still great numbers of florists who do not seem to realize the value it is to them in their local publicity. It should appear on all stationery, packages, shipping tags, delivery cars and in all local advertisements. The original slogan design should be adhered to, the one the public is accustomed to see in the magazines. Line slogans in various sizes are supplied by the promotion bureau and cost but little. Every florist who uses printed matter of any kind should provide himself with one or more to cover his needs.

As already announced, the campaign fund this year is to be $100,000. A large portion of this is already subscribed and the year is yet young. The great majority of those who subscribed last year are subscribers again this year, many of them increasing their subscriptions. The campaign was more or less experimental last year, but the success attained has enthused the supporters of our movement to such an extent that they now consider their subscriptions as most profitable investments—and so they are.

A Few Procrastinate.

There are many florists who have not yet contributed to the fund. The reason, no doubt, is that they wanted to see how the first efforts panned out. They need have no misgivings as to the efficacy of the work. The returns for the money expended have been remarkably profitable. By means of our publicity, the florists' trade was carried safely through a period dark with anxiety and unrest. The good influence exerted remains with us and will remain as long as it is nurtured and kept vigorously at work. Times are improving and response to our public overtures should be proportionately greater. But we must have the wherewithal to make these overtures. You can help us, Mr. Nonsubscriber, with your subscription; and please do not forget that in helping our project you are helping yourself most of all, as our promotion bureau is but the clearing house for your own effort, which you owe it to yourself to make.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

DUTCH BULBS FOR EASTER.

Every year about two months before Easter a number of inquiries come from small growers asking how soon they should start their tulips, hyacinths or daffodils for Easter. With the great floral festival coming unusually late, little forcing will be needed for any of the trio of bulbs named. Keep them in a cold cellar, or, if buried outdoors, leave them alone for a month longer. Usually three weeks in a cool greenhouse is ample time to flower these bulbs; indeed, if we chance to get a warm April, half that time may suffice, but do not on any account think of housing any of the Dutch bulbs intended for Easter for some time yet.

AZALEAS FOR EASTER.

The supply of azaleas will be small for the coming Easter and, unless all signs fail, will grow beautifully less in succeeding years. It is true that a good many Belgian plants will come over this spring before the bars go down, but they will not fill the demands of the American trade for long. So far home-grown stock has grown well but flowered most disappointingly. Those who are fortunate enough to have some azaleas and want them for Easter flowering, need not subject them to much forcing. If housed now and given a night temperature of 50 degrees they will come along in ample time.

LILIES FOR EASTER.

There will be a tremendous falling off in the number of lilies offered for the Easter trade this year and practically all the plants will be of the cold storage brand. For this reason prices will unquestionably be high and anyone owning a batch of lilies will find them good property. The trouble with many cold storage lilies is that they are extremely dwarf and in order to help draw up the stems it is a good plan to shade the glass after the buds show; shade and a brisk, moist heat will help to give them the necessary length. Lent will soon be here and that is a reminder that all buds should show sufficiently so that they can be counted at that time. A minimum of 60 degrees will easily bring them in forty days after the buds show and cold storage plants come along more rapidly than those from fresh bulbs.

TUBEROUS-ROOTED BEGONIAS.

Tuberous-rooted begonias are specially useful in early summer and sell well for Memorial day. Start a batch of tubers now in flats of clear sand, which can be stood on a warm bench. Water moderately until the growth starts and pot off before the roots become entangled. Use a light but moderately rich soil. One-third leaf-mold, not too much decayed, one-third fibrous loam and the remaining third old cow manure, sharp sand and fine charcoal, makes an excellent mixture, but, of course, nice begonias may be grown in an every-day potting medium. Tuberous begonias need a little shade from strong sunshine to prevent the leaves from burning. As the all-powerful Federal Horticultural Board decrees that begonia tubers are dangerous and liable to bring in some new bug or disease sometime in the hazy future, we can import no more of these useful bulbs after June 1 and it will be necessary for us to grow our own stocks hereafter. It will be easier to produce begonia tubers than many other items on the debarred list, however.

BOUGAINVILLEAS.

There will be a paucity of azaleas the coming Easter and other colored plants should sell well. Among these are bougainvilleas, which can readily be flowered for a late Easter. The plants should now be in a warm, moist house where they can be syringed once or twice daily and where they get all possible sunshine. If you want to increase your stock, rub off some of the young shoots with heels and insert them in a warm propagating bench. They are not difficult to root and will make nice little plants before fall.

GARDENIAS.

The sun steadily increases in power and those who may have been unfortunate enough to lose a lot of their gardenia buds through the winter may hope soon to get a nice crop of flowers. It is unsafe to feed during the dead of winter, but a top-dressing of partly decayed leaves, sphagnum moss and old cow manure applied lightly over the soil will attract the roots quickly. Clay's fertilizer also seems to be much to the liking of gardenias. A common remark heard is that "gardenias are the dirtiest plants God ever made." While it is true that they are headquarters for mealy bug when any of this pest is around, there is absolutely no need for their being dirty, as cold water directed through a fine spray nozzle will keep them scrupulously clean. If you have not yet rooted an ample supply of cuttings, do so now. They propagate most quickly and successfully in a close frame on a warm propagating bench. Practically no air should be given until the cuttings are rooted, but occasional light sprayings with tepid water are necessary. Given the right conditions, hardly a cutting should fail to root. A suitable night temperature for gardenias producing flowers is 62 to 65 degrees at night. Do all syringing on the mornings of clear days.

SEED SOWING.

March is the month for sowing a large variety of flower seeds; in fact, almost every sort on the calendar may be started now. Among the more important are: Asters, stocks, zinnias, Phlox Drummondii, nemesias, cosmos, petunias, verbenas, salpiglossis, Cobæa scandens, browallias, thunbergias, snapdragons, ricinus, dahlias, celosias, calendulas, nasturtiums, nicotianas, annual larkspurs, hunnemannias and mignonette. As mignonette will not stand transplanting from flats, start it in small pots; the same applies to Cobæa scandens. Otherwise pans or flats should be used for the seeds, later potting off the seedlings or transferring to flats.

PROPAGATION.

Keep the propagating benches well filled now. Cuttings of such plants as fuchsias, heliotropes, coleus, alternantheras, lobelias, ageratums, petunias, alyssums, impatiens, salvias, lantanas and geraniums will all root readily now. It is a great advantage to get cuttings in while firing still is steady, as there is a more even bottom heat for everything. Later in the season, when the sun has more power and there are wider variations in temperature, cuttings need much closer attention in regard to watering and shading and the necessity for ventilation and consequent air currents render successful propagation more difficult.

HOTBEDS.

Plants are now making a rapid growth under glass, and it will soon be a question how to find space for everything and at the same time do it justice. A good supply of hotbed sashes is a real boon at every commercial establishment where a varied assortment of plants is grown. A large variety of bedding and other plants thrive amazingly in them and make a more vigorous and sturdy growth than can be obtained in greenhouses. A supply of fresh stable manure, preferably mixed with leaves and allowed to ferment a few days, makes the ideal hotbed material. If at all dry, damp with the hose when making up the beds and tramp as firmly as possible in order to hold the heat. Eighteen inches of manure will hold heat for a long time; a month hence a foot will answer well. Some fine old manure or loam can be spread above the germinating material, in which to plunge the pots. When the pots are plunged to their brims, or even half-plunged, the roots enjoy a genial warmth and become active. Plunged plants require much less water than those merely stood on the surface.

There are few bedding plants which will not thrive in well prepared hotbeds. It is early yet to place tender plants in them. Start with the hardier ones and later such plants as acalyphas, coleus, alternantheras, achyranthes, etc., will revel in the genial, moist warmth they furnish. All hotbeds should have well glazed sashes. They should, furthermore, be provided with mats and match-board shutters for protection on frosty nights.

TO THE LADIES

MRS. WALTER W. COLES.

EVERY florist in Indiana, and many others, knows Mrs. Walter W. Coles as the wife of one fortunate florist, the mother of another, and a chief factor in the success of each. There are few women in the fraternity who have attended more trade gatherings than has Mrs. Coles, for her interest in such doings is scarcely less than that of her husband, who for years was president of the Indiana State Florists' Society. She was vice-president of the Ladies' S. A. F. in 1916, having been elected at the San Francisco convention.

Legislation and Legal Decisions

LIABILITY FOR GAS DAMAGE.

Courts Hold for Growers.

The Kansas Supreme court has sustained a judgment for $985 and costs against the Emporia Gas Co. and in favor of one Hoffer on account of destruction of twelve shade trees, owned by Mr. Hoffer on residential property in Emporia. (175 Pacific Reporter, 393.) The principal point of controversy in the suit related to proof of the fact that the damage was caused by escaping gas, as distinguished from insects and poor soil, which the gas company insisted was the cause of the trees dying. The company also controverted the point as to just what money damage was sustained by plaintiff. On both questions, the Supreme court holds that the verdict in plaintiff's favor was abundantly supported by proof.

The rules of law governing this case apply, of course, with full force to the rights of the owner of a greenhouse, where his stock has been injured or destroyed by escaping gas.

The Kansas suit was grounded on negligence of the gas company in permitting its pipes to get and remain out of repair; and it is interesting to note that the company apparently made no denial of the legal proposition that such negligence was actionable, if supported by proof of actual damage in direct consequence.

That there is no room for denying the liability of a gas company in cases of this kind is established by several appellate court decisions.

A New Hampshire Decision.

In the case of Dow vs. Winnepesaukee Gas & Electric Co., 41 Atlantic Reporter, 288, the plaintiff, a greenhouse owner, was awarded judgment on account of injury done to his plants because of leakage of gas from defendant's nearby mains. The gas company sought to evade responsibility on the ground that it had purchased the gas plant from another company and did not know of the leak. But the New Hampshire court disposed of this contention by saying:

"Nor can the defendants protect themselves from liability for injury to the plaintiff's plants until after notice merely on the ground that they did not know in fact that the pipe was defective or that gas was escaping from it into his greenhouses. They were bound to guard against both of these things by exercising the proper care required under the circumstances, and, unless they did exercise such care, they are responsible for any injury resulting, irrespective of notice."

However, the court in this case restricted plaintiff's right to recover to such damages as were shown to have accrued after the company should have known of the defective condition of its mains. The decision not only denied recovery of damages accruing before that point, but also refused to allow damages on account of injury to plaintiff's business reputation arising from his sale of plants which he supposed to be uninjured, but which afterwards developed latent defects due to their having been poisoned by leaking gas. This last item was denied, however, on the ground that there was no proof that the gas company had been grossly negligent or wanton in its relation to the matter. There seems to be no room for doubting that where a gas company is shown to have been guilty of gross negligence or wanton disregard of a florist's rights, exemplary damages may be recovered in addition to all actual damages, naturally resulting from the wrong committed.

New York Florist Wins.

In the case of Armbruster vs. Auburn Gaslight Co., 46 New York Supplement, 158, the Appellate Division of the New York Supreme court upheld an award of $1,500 in favor of plaintiff, a florist, whose stock was damaged by escaping gas. In that case, an expert testified: "The effects of carbon monoxide [which he found to be contained in the gas] upon plant life are exceedingly injurious to the plant. * * * The ordinary food of plants, or the atmospheric food, is carbon dioxide. Carbon monoxide is an entirely different gas, and the plant takes it up instead of its ordinary food, and the effect of this is to alter the products formed by the plant, and therefore to hurt its growth. The other effect is still worse; it directly destroys the assimilating powers of the plant. The plant assimilates by means of certain little granules in the leaf. If you destroy the granules, you destroy absolutely the power the plant has to absorb its food from the earth. Carbon monoxide does distinctly do this. Carbon dioxide is essential to plant growth. This carbon monoxide takes the place of it when it is exposed to it, and that is fatal to the plant."

Similar Case in Minnesota.

The question in the Minnesota case of Hansen vs. St. Paul Gaslight Co., 84 Northwestern Reporter, 727, related to the measure of damages where stock in a florist's greenhouses was partly destroyed. The Minnesota Supreme court said in this case:

"Taking the complaint as a whole, it appears that the system of greenhouses constituted one entire plant and business; that the business was peculiar, in this: That its success did not depend upon the raising and selling of individual flowers and plants, each having its own peculiar market value as such, but the business consisted in growing a vast collection of flowers and plants, consisting of all varieties and colors, and that a demand was created for such a collection, and the business built upon such a demand—in effect, that people do not go to greenhouses to buy one kind of plant or flower; that it requires all kinds and varieties to gratify the public taste and sustain such a trade. If it is true that plaintiff had built up such a line of plants and flowers to meet such demand, and the gas killed a part, and those remaining constituted a broken and imperfect stock, unsalable and worthless alone and without the aid of those which were actually killed, why does it not follow that the gas was the proximate cause of the loss of the latter as well as the former?" IN KHAKI AND BLUE

JOBS AWAIT SOLDIERS.

Florists Need Assistants.

Lack of employment after their return to civil life is something which is worrying many soldiers now more than did the bullets of the Hun a few months ago. Many of them see themselves walking the streets, searching in vain for positions that will keep them from starvation. A great number can see no way but to depend upon the charity of relatives for support until conditions become more settled.

Soldier-florists, however, are not worried over the outlook, except in a few cases, for their employers or their own businesses are needing them—have needed them for a long time—and they know they will be able to step back into the harness as soon as they become civilians again.

Florists see ahead of them increased business and are preparing for it as never before. Every soldier who has a knowledge of growing or selling flowers has an opening awaiting him, according to popular opinion among florists, either in the place he occupied before donning the uniform of Uncle Sam or in a new place.

Listen, Girls!

American girls are so far ahead of the French ma'm'selles that it is not worth while bothering to compare them, according to the view of Sergt. Frank Ritzenthaler, who recently returned from overseas duty and is expecting to resume his duties at the store of Knoble Bros., Cleveland, O., in the near future.

Sergt. Ritzenthaler entered the service April 1, 1918, at Camp Sherman, O., where he was in the 331st Infantry, part of the Eighty-third Division. The division started overseas June 3 and the sergeant, then a private, went as a part of his unit. Arrived in France, his regiment was held behind the line near Verdun during the American drive which brought disaster to the kaiser's fighting machine.

Some time later the Eighty-third Division was assigned to train at La Suze. Sergt. Ritzenthaler, having shown his aptitude for drill and the finer points of training, was made a noncommissioned officer to assist in the training of men recently arrived in France for first line duty. Approximately 150,000 men were made finished soldiers at La Suze every month.

Sergt. Ritzenthaler returned to this country January 25.

A Great Record.

A record hard to surpass, if not to equal, has been made by the three sons of C. G. Milam, of Auburn, Neb. One of these has been discharged and two are still in France. Those in France have seen active and dangerous service, one being gassed after "hopping the bags" five times in as many weeks.

Lawson Milam, who is only 18 years old, suffered most from the war. He went through the heavy fighting in the Argonne last fall and participated in five charges against "Fritz." He came out of these engagements without a scratch, but while being relieved from front line trench duty in October, he was gassed and, as a result, spent a month in the hospital. He is anxiously awaiting the order which will mean his return to the United States.

A piece of shrapnel passed through the hat of Lewis Milam, of the 28th Aero Squadron, Royal Flying Corps, but he was untouched. The hats worn by the men in France are small and fit tightly, especially those worn by the flyers. That fact indicates the narrowness of Mr. Milam's escape, for shrapnel is none too gentle.

Lieut. Paul C. Milam's one big regret is that he did not get to appear more prominently in the European struggle. His orders for overseas duty did not come until after the armistice was signed and the movement of troops to France halted. Lieut. Milam has been honorably discharged and expects to go to Montana to live on a land claim which he has there.

In a letter from the patriotic father of the soldier trio he says that he is waiting impatiently for the return of his sons. Lewis Milam is grower in his father's greenhouses and his services are badly needed now, according to Mr. Milam, Sr.

KING JOHN OF BARNEGAT.

There's good King John, down Barnegat way,
Whose castle stands close by the bay;
His heart's as big as the ocean wide
And filled with love for all, inside.

This genial monarch in his fortress bold,
Has the spirit of kindness, I've been told;
He sends his call both far and near,
"Oh, come; come away, my subjects dear.

"Come from your work, your cares, and rest,

Let's sail afar on the waters blue,
And try our luck with fishing, too!"

So he gathers them in, these subjects true,
Under summer skies of azure hue;
He shelters them, in his castle there;
They draw deep breaths of salt sea air.

And when they return to the haunts of men,
Back to the city to work again,
They dream of John, their grand old king,
And ever and anon his praises sing.

If many kings there were like him,
Many less eyes with tears would dim,
Many less broken hearts there'd be,
Many less mourning-bands we'd see.

OBITUARY

William J. Stewart.

William J. Stewart, for twenty years secretary of the S. A. F., is dead in Boston, at the age of 69 years.

Mr. Stewart was president of the Society of American Florists in 1907, having been elected to that office at the Dayton convention as a recognition of his long, faithful and efficient service as secretary. He was elected secretary at Chicago, August 18, 1887, and served until December 31, 1906, each year being reëlected by a practically unanimous vote. During his long service his special talents did much to advance the interests of the society and to lay the foundation for subsequent activities and growth.

Mr. Stewart was born in Cambridge, Mass., March 17, 1849, the son of a gardener in Mount Auburn cemetery. He attended the public schools of his native town, but his education did not end with his schooling; he was one of those men who absorb knowledge through life. He was engaged as a gardener in Harvard Botanic Garden in 1871. The years from 1872 to 1879 were spent in the retail florists' business in Boston. From 1879 to 1893 he was in the wholesale end of the trade in Boston, disposing of that business to become the eastern representative of a Chicago trade paper, a position he held until 1904, when he founded the gardening paper, Horticulture, in Boston, the last fifteen years having been devoted to its editing and management.

Mr. Stewart had a comfortable home at Winchester, Mass., where he delighted to entertain his friends. The garden contained many notable specimens, each one of which was surrounded by interesting associations, as they were the gifts of friends throughout the horticultural world. There also was a splendid library. Mr. Stewart leaves a widow and three daughters; an only son died in January.

With the organization of the Boston Gardeners' and Florists' Club in 1887 Mr. Stewart became its first president, an office to which he was reëlected in 1895. He held continuous membership during the life of the organization and was made an honorary member at the January meeting. He was a charter member of the Horticultural Club of Boston and its secretary. He was a life member of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and active in all its affairs for many years. In addition to his membership in the S. A. F., he held membership in many of the affiliated societies, having been at one time secretary of the American Rose Society.

Throughout his long career as horticulturist and writer his work was characterized by a broad understanding of the practical side of these crafts no less than by a deep appreciation of the æsthetic aspects which inspire enthusiastic devotion to the work he defined as "the refined essence of agriculture," which is the basis of all wealth. He was one of those rare men who make friends easily and hold them through life.

Burial took place February 26 at Mount Auburn cemetery, the services being largely attended by members of the trade in Boston and vicinity. There were many beautiful flowers.

William J. Stewart.

Abraham H. Cushman.

Abraham H. Cushman, for many years a well known figure in the seed trade of Rochester, N. Y., passed away February 17, at his home at 230 Magee avenue at the advanced age of 82 years. He leaves one son, William G. Cushman, who is in the same line of business.

Mr. Cushman was born July 22, 1836, at Raymertown, near Troy, N. Y. He came to Rochester at the age of 14 years to enter school. He became associated with his brother in the grocery business and later entered the seed trade and for eight years was manager of the Cleveland Seed Co., of New York city. He then returned to Rochester and was engaged in the seed business continuously here until his death. In the early 70's Mr. Cushman was representative from the Second ward in the board of aldermen. He was a member of the Rochester Lodge of Masons and also of the Protectives.

The funeral took place February 20 and interment was made in Mount Hope cemetery. H. J. H.

George Bunyard.

The numerous florists who obtained their trade education in the British Isles before coming to America will learn with regret of the death of George Bunyard, of the famous Allington Nurseries, which occurred January 22. Mr. Bunyard was born in 1841 and spent his life in the trade. A man of conspicuous ability, he was one of the first to receive the Victoria Medal of Horticulture. With advancing years he turned the business over to his sons, Edward Ashdown Bunyard and George Norman Bunyard, under whose direction it is still advancing.

Fred H. Dinger.

At his home at Chicago, Fred H. Dinger died February 24, after a protracted illness. He was 34 years of age and had never married. For a number of years he was in the employ of W. J. Smyth, becoming proficient in all the work of a retail store. Interesting his brother-in-law, E. P. Black, they started in business on Garfield boulevard as Dinger & Black, but Mr. Dinger was forced to retire about two years ago by continued ill health. Mr. Black is conducting the business at 106 East Garfield boulevard, as the Garfield Floral Co.

Walter T. Elliott.

Death has again invaded the family of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wilkinson Elliott, removing their third son, Walter T. Elliott, who passed away January 31, at his home in Aspinwall, Pa., as the result of a five days' illness, pneumonia having developed from Spanish influenza. Young Mr. Elliott was born in Pittsburgh and attended Phillips Exeter Academy, in New Hampshire. After completing the course of study there, he returned home and became identified with the Elliott Nursery Co., of which he was secretary and treasurer at the time of his death. He was held in the highest esteem by his social and business friends, his success in life being seemingly assured. Mr. Elliott is survived by his parents, his wife, Mrs. Miriam A. Elliott, a small son, James Wilkinson Elliott III, and four sisters and two brothers. The family has the deepest sympathy of all in this, the second bereavement within a few months, the youngest son, Barton W. Elliott, having died November 4 in Hospital 104, "somewhere in France," from wounds received in action last September.

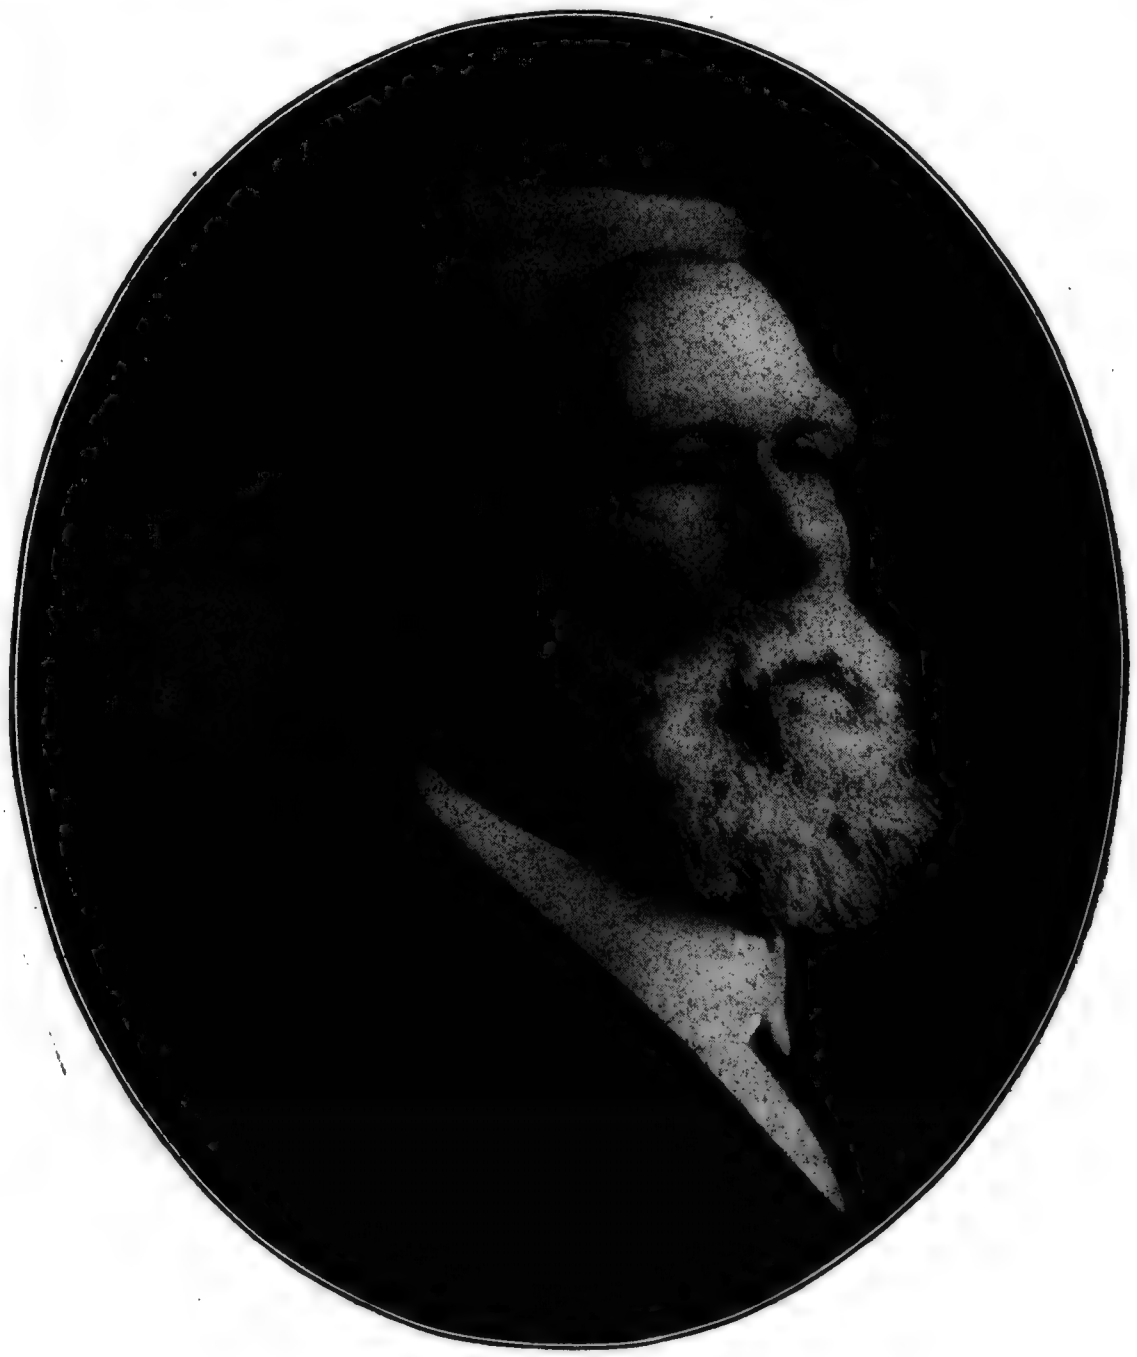
C. S. Harrison.

The grand old man of the nursery trade has been gathered to his fathers and a career probably the most remarkable in the annals of horticulture has been closed.

C. S. Harrison, whose death occurred February 23, was born in the year 1832. He was educated for the ministry and many of the best years of his life were devoted to that calling. In 1898, having been superannuated at the age of 66 years, he started a nursery business at York, Neb., known as the Harrison Nursery Co., which became an important concern and today has a paid up capital of $100,000. Mr. Harrison specialized in the peony, the phlox and the iris and his monographs on the culture of these flowers are standard works on the shelves of every library. His training for the ministry stood him in good stead in the new line of work, not only in the writing of brochures on his specialties, but as a speaker at conventions of horticultural societies and trade meetings, for which he was always in request. It has been said that he probably was known to more people than any other man in the trade and his character and personality gave him a unique position.

The genial, whole-hearted nature of the man, his poetic taste and his great love for his work are best expressed in his own farewell, which he wrote as he felt that the years of his long life were drawing to a close. These words ring with the splendid optimism and noble sentiments which animated the mind of this clergyman-horticulturist:



"Good-bye, grand old mother earth; good-bye, majestic mountains, fertile plains, forests, singing brooks and sparkling lakes.

"Good-bye, you thousands of horticulturists. Thank you for your kindly words and appreciation of my labors. We have had a good time trying to lift our calling to a higher plane.

"Good-bye, all my personal friends, who have given me kindly cheer on my way.

"I die thanking God I have lived and known you all. May you succeed in your glorious work here and then be exalted to the higher Horticulture of God, whose everlasting spring abides and never-withering flowers.

"Ever yours,
"C. S. Harrison."

Charles S. Harrison.

ALBANY, N. Y.

The retail florists of Albany met February 19 in the rooms of the Albany Chamber of Commerce and decided upon a permanent organization to be known as the Albany Retail Florists' Association. The report of the committee on advertising, Frederick A. Danker, chairman, showed that excellent results had been secured by the florists through advertisements of flowers for St. Valentine's day. It was decided to use the newspapers again for extensive publicity for flowers on St. Patrick's day. President William C. Gloeckner named a committee of three to look into the problem of deliveries in the suburbs and nearby places. The committee is made up of B. C. Holmes, James Lascaris and P. A. Yauch. The members hope to work out a plan whereby duplications of delivery service in suburban territory will be eliminated through coöperative effort.

The organization published a reproduction of the S. A. F. advertisement for St. Valentine's day, in half-page size, in all the Albany newspapers.

REMEDY FOR DAMPING OFF.

In The Review of February 13 there is an article on the subject of "Seedlings Damping Off." I have had considerable experience growing vegetable plants and have found the following remedy practically a sure cure for this trouble:

Procure from your druggist 10 cents worth of carbonate of copper, which comes in the form of a blue powder, and sufficient ammonia to cut it. Add enough of the mixture to a quart of water to make the water a light blue. Water the seedlings with this solution as soon as they come up. If the weather is dark and rainy, use the remedy several times during the first two weeks. In watering do not wet the foliage, but only the soil and the stems of the seedlings just at the surface of the ground.

C. L. Walker.

INSECTS ON DAISIES.

I am sending you a small box of daisy leaves which have been attacked by an insect. I would like to know what it is and what will exterminate it.

N. G.—Wis.

The leaves were completely dried up when received. Probably the trouble is caused by the leaf-miner. This insect cuts at the tissues inside the leaves and practically skeletonizes them. You cannot kill this insect by fumigation with ordinary fumigants, but if you will spray with some of the nicotine preparations you can get rid of it. For any insects on the wing which may trouble your plants, fumigation is the best remedy and there are several good nicotine papers or liquids which can be used for this purpose, either by burning or vaporizing. INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Flowers continue in excellent demand; business has been unusually brisk. The great difficulty lies in the scarcity of stock. The weather has been unfavorable and has retarded the growth of the plants.

Roses and carnations continue short. Sweet peas have been dropping their buds of late. A few freesias are still to be had. Calla lilies are immediately utilized in funeral work, the latter continuing in heavy demand. Easter and rubrum lilies are in limited supply. Bulbous stock has been more ample and is good property, both in cut flowers and potted plants.

A general line of potted plants is offered. These have been popular for sick rooms and, as sickness is prevalent, they move quickly.

Greens continue scarce. Smilax, plumosus and Sprengeri are short of requirements.

Various Notes.

The next meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana will be held the evening of March 4 at the Claypool hotel. A special feature will be an explanation of the income tax law by an expert on the subject.

Practically the entire establishment owned and operated by young John Grande was demolished by fire early in the morning of February 22. The place was inspected at 1:30 and at 2:30 it was in flames. With the exception of one end of the largest greenhouse, the entire range was burned to the ground. Mr. Grande's automobile also was lost. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Charles Rieman has been ill.

C. H. Bookedis, of Chicago, former owner of the Claypool Flower Shop, visited in the city last week.

Earle Haeger is again at work, after a siege of the "flu."

J. J. Elsner is bringing in fine potted bulbous plants.

Harry Bookedis contemplates making a trip to Greece this spring.

E. G. Hill and Fred Lemon, of Richmond, visited here last week.

Walter Birkhoff was quietly married February 17 to Miss Emma Coffman, of Edinburg, Ind.

Green's Flower Shop had an attractive window February 22. Seasonable plants and spring flowers formed a background, with George Washington's picture on an easel. A gold magnolia wreath, flags and ribbons were in the foreground.

Charles Schwake, of New York, called on the trade last week.

The local tradesmen extend sympathy to C. C. Thomas on account of the loss of his sister.

Bertermann Bros. Co. reports an unusually heavy business for Washington's birthday. They had an attractive line of novelties and a fine lot of bulbous stock, all of which met with a ready sale. E. E. T.

Dover, N. H.—John W. Davy grows bedding plants as a side line at present, but hopes to be able soon to devote his entire time to the florists' business.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—W. J. & M. S. Vesey's greenhouses are unable to supply the demand for cattleya blooms during the rush periods. This flower is becoming more popular every season.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Edward Jacobi, Irvington, N. J., is one of the leading mushroom growers of the Union. He was a past master in the growing of that edible before the idea of building carnation houses over the profitable cellar occurred to him. The combination has proved advantageous. Mr. Jacobi is strong on publicity and foresees the advisability of pushing the business. Now that prices have become normal again, the public taste for flowers must not be allowed to wane.

* * * *

Edward Fengar for several years has maintained an up-to-date range at Irvington, N. J., of which Richard Gerling is the able grower. Mr. Fengar observed that although he held a prominent post with the E. J. Berwind Coal Corp., he shared the fuel burden with his confreres. By the way, our worthy friend is the first person one would meet at the Battery. His desk at the Broadway office faces the statue of Liberty.

* * * *

Charles H. Buenning, Easton, Pa., observed that the season's business has exceeded anything expected. He looks for a corresponding spring trade. Now that the publicity bureau of the S. A. F. is advising amateurs what plants are desirable for house culture, it is suggested that particular attention be given to those kinds that are commonly grown and easy to supply.

* * * *

G. Golsner's Sons, College Point, N. Y., are paying close attention to the growing of callas, which have been almost a negligible item on the island in the past. Rambler roses will be a strong feature at Easter, with cytisus, heather and hydrangeas. This quartet will be a strong feature in Manhattan stores at that time.

* * * *

Satow & Suzuki, Woodside, L. I., feature Japanese novelties. The pretty miniature gardens and aquatic scenes arranged in bowls seen in the leading flower stores in Manhattan are made here. Being in close touch with Japan, our confreres obtain direct information. It is encouraging to learn that the supply of lilies next season will be normal.

* * * *

Louis Dupuy, Whitestone, N. Y., expresses the opinion that this is the first time in the memory of plant growers on Long Island that orders for Easter stock have been placed so early. In some instances blanket purchases are being made, evidence of the scarcity of stock, which is of fine quality. He anticipates large retail sales.

* * * *

The firm of Bassi Freres, New Rochelle, N. Y., comprises three brothers, who head the departments of seed, cut flowers and landscape gardening. They have worked up an enviable business in a short time, their Parisian experience having fine opportunity for exploitation here. W. M.

Heard in the Garden.

"Who had the first telephone?"

"Who?"

"Why, Adam and Eve, of course; their number was two-ate-one Apple."

Judges of Human Nature.

He—"Of course there's a big difference between a botanist and a florist."

She—"Is there, really?"

He—"Yes; a botanist is one who knows all about flowers, and a florist is one who knows all about the price people will pay for them."—Chicago Daily News.

The Reward of Industry?

This little paragraph may not read exactly as you anticipate. The Editor hears that an enthusiastic beginner in the trade recently uncovered while digging, first a nickel, then a dime and then a quarter. Convinced that he was on the fair way to find enough to pay the cost of his subscription to The Review, he bent to his task with renewed vigor until he found another coin, and the next moment found he had a hole in his trousers' pocket.

Like the Proverb.

Tommy was asked by his curious uncle the name of the young man who called regularly on the youth's sister.

"I call him April Showers," was the unexpected reply.

"Why that name?" queried uncle.

"He brings May flowers, doesn't he?" was Tommy's reply.

And then there are those who see in W. H. Showers, of Schenectady, N. Y., the proper man to furnish flowers for the June bride, while Mr. Showers wonders if, after all, there isn't something in a name. W. M.

The Price She Paid.

"Really, Mr. Jackson, your prices are getting worse every day—they're exorbitant," protested the lady customer.

"Yes," answered Mr. Jackson, who was long on profits and short on knowledge, "they are; but it's this way. When a chap has to know the botanical name of everything he grows, the zoölogical name of every fool bug that might eat it, and the chemical name of what kills the bug, someone has got to pay for it."

The lady paid.

WHAT you do, do well. You can charge what your work is worth.

PROHIBITION should not hurt the florists' business. Who ever saw flowers on a bar?

POST this in your workroom: "Quality is remembered long after price is forgotten."

L. F. DARNELL, of Cleveland, has been appointed traveling representative of the F. T. D.

EUROPEANS seem to understand the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," even better than do we Americans.

AS a subject for worry, the income tax is better than that of lack of business, all florists will agree.

ONE-THIRD of the wealth of the world is in the United States, but far less than one-third of the florists' business is done here.

BARRACKS and bivouac have not been beautiful to the eyes of the soldiers. The trade will profit by suggesting the use of flowers when the conquering hero returns.

WASTE is just as destructive of profits as it was last season, only the income being better the loss through waste is not so apparent. But waste always comes directly out of the profits.

IT is not wise to "hide your light under a bushel." Put your bargains on display in the window, where the prospective customer will see them, and arrange them so that he must see them.

THE first instance of florists' advertising on record, so far as we can determine, was back in Bible times, when some enterprising florist—it must have been a florist, though perhaps Bible students will not agree—in speaking of "the lilies of the field," declared that "Solomon, in all his glory, was not arrayed like one of these."

AN effort will be made to bring azaleas to America this spring, to get them here ahead of the quarantine, but recent advices from Belgium do not afford hope that it will be possible to accomplish much on such short notice. There is a scarcity of stock in Belgium.

THE prices of cut flowers still are above the average of recent years, but the period of high prices is over, except for some of the items that are scarce because of the effects of the war. In most localities prices now are at a level which should be maintained at least as long as the cost of doing business and of living are at the present peak.

GIVE the growers a season or two of comfortable profits and the quality of their output will show average improvement. No man who has a struggle to make ends meet can do things as well as he would like to do them, but, given a competence, the average man will start a competition with his neighbor to see which can do things better.

THE first issue of the Journal of the Society of American Florists, dated February, 1919, has made its appearance. It is to take the place of the cumbersome and little read volume of annual proceedings of the society, and is to be issued monthly from the office of the secretary. The first issue contains greetings from the president, a review of 1918 by ex-President Totty, and the first installment of the proceedings of the St. Louis convention. It is a pamphlet of thirty-two pages, the only advertising admitted being that of the publicity bureau of the society.

ARE YOU MARKING TIME?

It is better for a company of soldiers to mark time than to stand perfectly still. It is better to run a one-inch "rate holder" than not to advertise at all.

In other words, according to an advertising authority, keep your name before the public. Keep your card going to "mark time" and then, as often as business warrants, make a dash with large space and see the result.

The "marking time" with the small card keeps your name in sight and helps a lot when a special "drive" is started.

COAL MARKET SLACK.

In reviewing the coal situation, the Coal Age states: "The output of both anthracite and bituminous coal from week to week continues to reflect the stagnant condition of the coal market. Not a mine in the country is working at full-time capacity. Furthermore, hardly a day passes that does not see an addition to the already long list of operations forced to shut down because of the lack of demand for coal. The production of soft coal for the week end February 8 (the latest statistics available) amounted to only a little more than 8,000,000 net tons.

"This is a drop of more than 2,500,000 net tons when compared to the output of the similar week of 1918, and a decrease of over 6,000,000 net tons when set against the high peak reached during the week ended July 13, 1918.

"Certain grades of bituminous coal are still reported as being sold at concessions from the government maximum, though the high-grade coals are being sold at from 15 cents to 45 cents above the maximum prices, with perfect satisfaction to the consumer. Operators are adhering to their policy of shutting down rather than sell at a loss. Having virtually done a winter business during the summer, most operators are content to do a summer business this winter, biding their time until the demand again becomes active. Little contracting is reported, most large consumers awaiting the outcome of the railroad fuel controversy."

FOREIGN FLORISTS PROSPER.

Florists of Europe have not suffered because of the war, but have prospered, according to correspondence of Bassett Digby, on the staff of the Chicago Daily News. A letter written in Stockholm, Sweden, says:

"One might imagine that in times of great world stress, of war and anarchy, privation and pestilence, a luxury trade like flower selling or the vending of curios would go to the wall. But from many points in north Europe one hears of their enjoying boom times.

"Spanish influenza has made a fortune for several flower shops in Scandinavia. The business up in the snowy north has to be carefully regulated as regards keeping the balance between supply and demand. The high death rate from influenza has already practically exhausted the winter's supply of blossoms. When the great demand for wreaths came in late October and early November hothouse plants were forced and induced to blossom earlier than usual. Gifts of flowers on birthday and other occasions are common in Sweden; so the demand still prevails, though there is little with which to meet it but flowering bulbs. A single carnation now costs in Stockholm 4 kroner, or about $1.20, probably the highest price for an ordinary carnation in any city in the world.

"In Russia the flower shops are going strong despite the general desolation."

CHICAGO.

The Market.

For the first time in many weeks there is enough stock to answer the trade's immediate needs. This condition, however, is not due to the slacking up of shipping business or to a falling off in city trade, but to increased quantities of stock coming into the market. The larger cuts which always arrive at about this date are coming in as per custom, perhaps a few days earlier than usual on account of the mild winter.

Business continues brisk and prices better than heretofore at this date, the increased production not yet having broken the market.

The present change in the rose situation is welcomed by the buyers, as stock in all lengths of stem has become equal to the demand. Beauties, however, still are on the short side. Prices on roses continue as in the last few weeks, although iceboxes seldom are empty. Carnations still are cleaning up and even the poorest grade of stock is in demand, almost exclusively for funeral work. Everything sells and, in fact, there is a shortage of extra fancy stock, but on the average prices have dropped.

There also is a change in the condition of the supply of spring flowers. Tulips are coming in more plentifully, there being enough to answer present needs. Jonquils, which have been meeting with such a brisk call, no longer are on the short side. Heavy shipments of southern stock have relieved the situation, although many stores will not take southern jonquils if greenhouse stock is obtainable. Freesias continue plentiful; so do Paper Whites. Roman hyacinths are about over for the season, but there still are enough to fill all orders, as the demand has slacked up. Iris tingitana is in good supply and no order need be turned down.

Orchids are arriving plentifully and all orders are filled complete. There are plenty of violets and valley is no longer on the short side. Sweet peas are coming in heavily, causing a drop in price. Calla and Easter lilies continue to have a big call and are short of the demand. The supply of calendulas has increased.

Smilax, plumosus, Sprengeri, Mexican ivy and adiantum still are on the short side, owing to the small amount of stock coming in. There are, however, plenty of ferns, leucothoe and boxwood.

There is general satisfaction with the situation; there is enough stock to go around, but not enough to cause prices to decline to an unprofitable level, and there is enough business to keep everybody comfortably busy. It is the general report that this is the best February in the history of the Chicago market, the progressive houses having sales in excess of the record for the exceptionally good February of 1917, and far greater than in the exceptionally poor February of 1918.

Hoerbers Retire.

Ernst C. Amling and Paul Amling have bought out Hoerber Bros., including the range of about 200,000 feet of glass at Des Plaines and the wholesale store in the Atlas block. Although the deal has been town talk for a month, its consummation was said not to have been complete until February 25, when possession was taken by the new owners. The street understands the consideration to have been $90,000.

The Hoerber greenhouses were started in 1909, in which year eleven houses were built. Later ten others were added.

Ernst C. Amling is the oldest son of Albert F. Amling. Some years ago he started in business for himself at Maywood, where he now has a range of glass devoted to Columbia and Ophelia roses. He has felt for some time that the end of the war should be the signal for him to enlarge his operations and the purchase of one or another of the greenhouse establishments known to be on the market seemed to him to be more logical than an attempt to build at this time; he gets quick action. Paul, who is a younger brother, has been brought up in the Albert F. Amling greenhouses and, it is understood, will reside at Des Plaines and be in charge there. The cut from the Hoerber range is being shipped by the new owners, half to the Chicago Flower Growers' Association and half to the A. L. Randall Co. The Hoerber wholesale store was closed February 24, but it is understood that

A. C. Spencer has arranged to take possession within a day or two.

Fred C. Hoerber will devote his time for a while to closing the books of the firm. He will continue to have an office in the Atlas block.

Various Notes.

Another big night is planned for the March 6 meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, which will be held at the Hotel Randolph. All supply houses are invited to exhibit St. Patrick's day and Easter novelties and everyone in the trade is invited to attend and see what the various houses have to offer for these occasions. Peter Pearson will speak on "Home-grown Bulbs," which will be of interest to growers.

B. J. Rosenbaum, who was a traveling representative for Wertheimer Bros., New York, before entering the army, has been discharged and has accepted a road position with Poehlmann Bros. Co. Mr. Rosenbaum was fifteen months in service, being stationed in England as a flying instructor.

Cold storage lily bulbs to the number of 20,000 are coming on for Easter at the establishment of Poehlmann Bros. Co. That lilies will be extremely scarce is shown by the number of offers received, but it has been thought unwise to quote prices or book orders until it is possible to tell how many and how good flowers are coming.

The Vim truck of the E. C. Amling Co., left near the corner of Wabash avenue and Monroe street, while some deliveries were being made, miraculously disappeared. There is no firm name or advertising painted on it.

The A. H. Budlong establishment is being operated to capacity this season and it is said that on the whole the stock under the 250,000 feet of glass never looked better.

February 22, to rejoin his family, after spending a few days here on business.

Peter Pearson is having excellent success in forcing bulbs which he has grown from planting stock at his place in Jefferson Park. The Darwin tulips are especially good.

At Wheaton R. Scheffler is making a trial of Iris tingitana and has a fine batch of it nearly ready to cut.

On taking possession of Winterson's Seed Store, A. Henderson started rearranging the establishment. A crew of carpenters and painters has made Mr. Henderson's new store a pleasure to see.

Carl Ickes, of the Ickes-Braun Mill Co., is well pleased with the prospect for greenhouse building this season. Two orders of good size have just been shipped to Washington, D. C., and several others are in work for early delivery. The leak-proof wooden gutter is popular, says Mr. Ickes, competing steel and iron gutters still being high in price.

August Jurgens is at his bulb farm at Ridgeland, Miss., for the blooming season.

Those who are accustomed to find the carnations at Mount Greenwood cemetery in good shape say they are just a little better than usual this season. The bedding stock, too, of which 300,000 plants are needed, is in beautiful shape.

John A. Michal has come back to the greenhouse business and has taken over the establishment at 7045 Stony Island avenue which has been conducted by his brother Joseph during John's employment in other fields. Joseph Michal now devotes his entire attention to his place at 6416 South Halsted street.

The Albert F. Amling Co. has received about 5,000 plants of Rose Premier, own-root stock.

The American Bulb Co. has received notice from Bernard Judae & Co., forwarding agents, of the early arrival of a car of new crop rubrum and album lily bulbs from Japan.

Carl N. Thomas, who has spent the winter in the cut flower department of the A. L. Randall Co., expects to leave March 1 to return to his farm at West Springfield, Pa.

A. Henderson has a post-card from his former bookkeeper, F. E. Morphett, who is a member of the 12th Engineers. Mr. Morphett was resting in the Pyrenees when he wrote.

C. V. Abeele, formerly a Chicagoan, came back February 24 for a visit. He has sold out at Terre Haute, Ind., where he recently has been located. The purchaser is Henry B. Henley, of Hartford City, Ind., who in turn, Mr. Abeele says, has sold his interest in the Hartford City Floral Co. to his brother, R. M. Henley. The Terre Haute establishment contains about 60,000 feet of glass. The consideration was $26,000.

The Market.

Business is fair at present. With the drop in the prices of flowers sales have increased, but as yet the general public does not realize the change. The exceptionally high prices which prevailed early in the season have been reduced and flowers are arriving in quantities sufficient to take care of the trade. Business was satisfactory on Washington's and Lincoln's birthdays and partly made up for the losses due to the storm St. Valentine's day. Spring bulbous stock is much more plentiful and decidedly cheaper than it was two or three weeks ago.

Various Notes.

Fred P. Wolfinger, 883 Broad street, had an attractive window for Washington's birthday, which contained a picture of Washington and bouquets of cherries. Bouquets of seasonable flowers were attractively displayed also.

Charles E. Maillard, 516 Orange street, states that the public has become so accustomed to the high prices prevailing early in the season that many former regular customers have become only occasional customers and it is necessary,

The Market.

At the wholesale market a slight falling off in the demand was noted the latter half of last week, but Saturday's business was good and considerable stock was moved. Most of the stores report excellent business, many dances and other social functions having taken place. The demand for corsages has been heavier also. The weather continues springlike and cut flowers are in good supply. Roses are arriving freely, but the demand is largely for the short-stemmed stock. There is no oversupply of the long-stemmed grades, however, among which are excellent Sunburst, Wards, Russell, Columbia, September Morn, Prima Donna, Ophelia, Killarney and White Killarney, Maryland and Hoosier Beauty. Sweet peas of exceptional quality are seen in the orchid varieties and sell at $3 per hundred. Short-stemmed stock is seen at lower prices. Small supplies of snapdragon move readily. The market is well stocked with calla lilies, but Easter lilies are in short supply. The demand for violets has been heavier, their quality having improved considerably. Cut lilac moves freely. In bulbous stock the supply is large and includes daffodils and jonquils, Paper White narcissi, tulips and Romans. Prices are better than ever before for cut bulbous stock. There is a large supply of carnations on hand, many of which are offered at low prices. Orchids and cypripediums are in good supply and the demand has been good. Mignonette, freesias and calendulas are in limited supply. Green goods are plentiful, except Asparagus plumosus.

Various Notes.

John Orgar & Son, of Irondequoit, N. Y., are growing some fine radishes in the greenhouse previously used for carnations. They are successful in this enterprise and dispose of all they grow. Realizing that they could not run their house under the fuel restrictions, they allowed their carnations to go.

Among visitors to the trade this week were W. A. Brundage, of Penn Yan, N. Y.; William Goldman, of the Joseph M. Stern Co., Cleveland, O.; A. Leipsiz, PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Every daffodil grower decided to bring in a crop for St. Valentine's day. As this was not a difficult task, every grower succeeded. The result has been most surprising. The market, which was well supplied last week, has been bare this week. Daffodils were hard to obtain, just at the height of their season. The ruling price of daffodils for St. Valentine's day was $5 per hundred; some went lower, a few higher. This week it is $6 to $8 per hundred, with hardly any stock available.

The market is active but irregular, with a slight tendency toward lower prices on the poorer grades of roses and carnations. Perhaps this tendency is explained by the quality of the flowers themselves. The poorer grades at the beginning of the winter are apt to be better than the poorer grades at the close of the winter, even of such a wonderfully fine winter as this one has been.

Violets are giving the wholesalers trouble; they are good and yet they are hard to sell at satisfactory prices. Sweet peas, on the other hand, are much more active; the receipts are large and the trading is lively, at good prices. Myosotis is little sought. Pansies go better; so do calendulas. Calla lilies bring a better average price than Easter lilies just now. It is done on merit. Acacia pubescens is selling well; so are cattleyas. Schroederæ is commencing as Trianæ wanes. Snapdragon is more plentiful.

Just now the fancy grades of roses bring better prices, relatively, than the short-stemmed grades. Of course the proportion of fancies is smaller than at any time during the winter. Beauties are in the market; that is all that can be said for them for a while. There are some good Russell and Hadley. Ophelia is preferred to Sunburst at this season. Killarney is coming into crop again.

Carnations continue fine and so plentiful that doubts are expressed as to whether they can stand the pace and continue flowering for the balance of the season. The deep, rich colors are most sought. Out-of-town orders have been large.

The February Meeting.

There was an excellent attendance at the February meeting of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, held in Griffith hall, in the Crozier building, February 18. While the members and their friends are ascending the stairway beside Frank L. Polites' flower shop and taking their places, there will be time to look at the exhibits. They are not the exhibits of pre-war days, but they are of decided merit. There are a couple of specimens each of Cineraria stellata and Cineraria hybrida, two vases of mixed flowers, chiefly bulbous, the exhibitor with the greater variety winning over his less varied competitor. Then there are amaryllis; wonderful sea kale; rhubarb, unusual at this season; groups of white and of salmon pink cyclamens and some vases of well grown carnations. The exhibitors are all private gardeners, but how their names have changed! The leaders of antebellum days are absent. In their place are the representatives of a new floral aristocracy, advanced through war munitions, chemicals and the like.

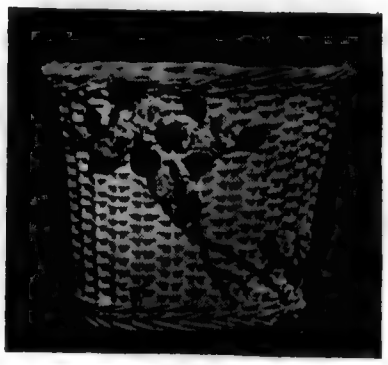
Precisely at the moment set for commencing, David Rust ascended the platform. He said: "Ladies and gentlemen, our presiding officer has not arrived, so we will dispense with the business session. Mr. Thilow will deliver his lecture on the "Life and Vegetation of the Hawaiian Islands."

J. Otto Thilow took his place by the speaker's desk. He gave one of those talks that have delighted his hearers at so many gatherings, following with a series of lantern slides taken on his trip to the islands in the Pacific. The meeting adjourned immediately after the close of the lecture.

The sale of the ground formerly occupied by Horticultural hall has made the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society extremely wealthy. The society's office is at 606 Finance building, on South Penn square. Its aim is to advance the interests of horticulture through lectures and through exhibitions at which liberal prizes are offered. David Rust is secretary.



The Dinner.

It was a red-letter evening; one of those happy occasions that will long be remembered with a thrill of pleasure. It was George Washington's birthday. It was also John Westcott's birthday, or at least George Watson and Ed Fancourt said it was, though it is strongly suspected that the record in the Westcott family Bible points to the happy event as having occurred in December and not in February. But never mind; what Ed Fancourt says ought to go, for he did a lot of hard work in preparing for this birthday party. Fully fifty of John Westcott's friends were at Dooner's to greet the Commodore and give him a fine birthday party, just as fine as fine could be. The Commodore seemed pleased. No wonder; it is not everybody who has such a birthday party. The fact that it was shared with George only added luster.

The men who gave the dinner party were the elite of the profession. A. B. Cartledge presided. Robert Craig was toastmaster. Dr. Lane was the first speaker. He presented the guest of honor with a handsome gold watch as a token of regard, just so he could not forget the evening. As though he could! No, the Commodore is not that sort.

Then followed a galaxy of stars of which any gathering might be proud. William F. Gude responded to the toast, "Our Country." "Our City" was D. C. Donahue's theme. Charles H. Totty ably replaced the absent Patrick O'Mara with an address on "Horticulture." Charles H. Grakelow replied to "Ourselves; Who Are Like Us?" J. Otto Thilow told of "The Palmy Days." Samuel S. Pennock read a poem entitled "King John," written expressly for the occasion by Mrs. Pennock. Charles L. Seybold spoke of "Bygone Days." Robert Kift sang an original song of his own composition and Charles F.

Emerson spoke of "Olden Times."

If there were other speakers they are most humbly asked to pardon unintentional omission of their contributions to the pleasure of this delightful affair.

The absence of John Burton, who was ill, was greatly regretted.

Various Notes.

Edward N. Habermehl says that entertaining is going on chiefly in the form of small dinner parties. Mr. Habermehl believes that there will be but few balls or public entertainments this season.

William F. Gude and Adolphus Gude, of Washington, D. C., and Charles H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., were here last week.

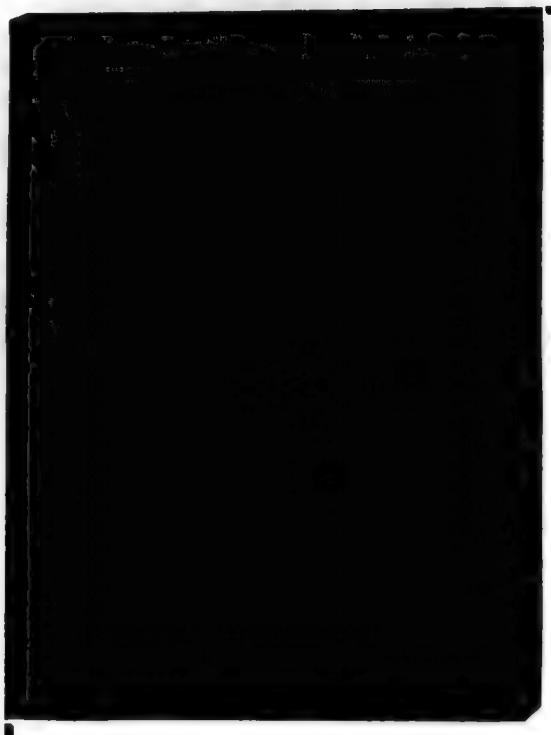
Lucas Bros., of Camden, are doing a brisk business.

The London Flower Shop had some lovely valentines made with choice blooming plants and with cut flowers in dainty bowls and delicate vases.

A number of orders have been booked for cut Easter lilies for Easter delivery at $35 per hundred.

It is with sadness that the death of Joseph McGregor, who died of pneumonia recently, is recorded. He was a capable grower, possessed of initiative and of a genial disposition.

Charles F. Pennock sailed from France for home on the Lapland February 19.



Charles H. Grakelow arranged an effective window with flags this week, America's stars and stripes being in the foreground. The other four great powers, with the black, yellow and red flag of Belgium added, formed the background. Whether Belgium was included from a sense of fairness or from an artistic instinct was not learned.

Howard M. Earl is still abroad on government seed business.

Clarence U. Liggit reports plants of all kinds in fairly good supply. Only spring plants and cuttings are scarce.

Edward Swayne got off one of his bon mots at Pennock's a few days ago. Here it is: A husband who thought that his wife took much time for good works that might have been better spent on home duties, proposed that she start in business under this sign, "Everybody's Business Cheerfully Attended To."

The carnation meeting of the Florists' Club will be held at the Adelphia hotel Tuesday evening, March 4. Phil.

The Market.

Market conditions are not materially different from those last reported. The supply is only slightly increased, if any, and the demand varies from day to day just enough in volume to keep wholesalers guessing, while price changes in consequence are not stable. For example, a light demand for carnations may force the price down a penny or two one day, and the next day a shorter supply more than corrects the difference.

THE HINDE & DAUCH PAPER CO.

Roses are arriving in quantity sufficient to meet a demand which is not particularly heavy. Washington's birthday caused little extra demand, and business was not much above that of a good Saturday. American Beauties continue strong at quoted prices, because of an apparent scarcity. Other roses move well, each day's supply cleaning up.

There is no change in carnations. Arrivals clean up fairly well and there is no immediate prospect of a supply likely to overtax the selling resources of the market.

Cattleyas are plentiful, with prices about the same. Spray orchids are not particularly abundant and consequently command prices somewhat above the normal.

Tulips and narcissi are in good supply and move well. The short plantings have been instrumental in keeping up values, so that previously quoted prices are maintained.

Miscellaneous flowers are arriving in quantities, but move well. Pansies, daisies, calendulas, mignonette, myosotis, primulas and wallflowers continue to be prominent among the offerings in this class and most arrivals are high in quality.

Sweet peas are arriving in large quantity and range in price from $1 to $3, some fine long-stemmed stock being noticeable in the better grades. Valley is plentiful in comparison with the recent short supply and prices are more reasonable, $2 to $5. Easter lilies clean up well at $12 to $15.

Various Notes.

Visitors: Major O'Keefe, of the P. F. O'Keefe Advertising Agency, of Boston, who is in charge of the advertising of the publicity campaign; S. S. Pennock, of Philadelphia; L. J. Reuter, of Waltham, Mass. J. H. P.

Max Schling has found a new advertising medium through which to secure F. T. D. orders. His latest is an advertisement in The Stars and Stripes, the official daily newspaper of the A. E. F., and he is the only florist represented in the paper. Mr. Schling brings to the soldiers' attention that "flowers can be sent to anyone at home for any occasion, now or at any time."

BOSTON.

The Market.

In spite of two holidays, February 22 and 24, the latter on account of President Wilson's visit to Boston on his way home to Washington from the Paris peace conference, business holds up well and there is no great surplus of anything, although flowers are more abundant than a week ago. Roses are arriving more freely. Select American Beauties still command high prices, with Hadley and Russell realizing excellent prices for the end of February. Columbia is coming in of better quality. It improves as the weather becomes warmer. Ophelia continues to sell much higher than any of the Killarneys. Carnations have held their own well during the last week. They are now of top-notch quality. Violets are cheaper and some are now sold below the dollar mark.

Sweet peas are popular and some of the best make $3 to $4 per hundred. There is a good supply of fine pansies. Bulbous stock is lower; practically all varieties are now available. A few Spanish irises have appeared and small lots of anemones and ranunculi. Lilies are scarce and high-priced, but callas are cheaper. Lily of the valley is generally of inferior quality. Cattleya Trianæ still is obtainable in good numbers. A few Schroederæ have also appeared, but this variety does not take like Trianæ. Asparagus continues scarce, both plumosus and Sprengeri.

Bulbous plants are now leading features at many of the stores. A few French hydrangeas have already appeared. There are also marguerites, azaleas, genistas, cyclamens, acacias and Primula malacoides.

Club Meeting.

There was an attendance of 100 at the club meeting following the successful flower show held February 18 and reported last week in The Review. In the hurry of reporting the exhibition, mention was omitted of splendid White Benora carnations from Patten & Co., and White Benora and Elizabeth, a glorified sport of Benora, from A. A. Pembroke. The latter is a mammoth flower and brighter than Benora. The large display of cereals, seeds, vegetables, tools, etc., of the T. J. Grey Co. was interesting; also the honorary display of twelve vases of splendid sweet peas from M. W. Farr, additional to those in the competitive classes.

Five new members were elected and $50 was appropriated to the S. A. F. publicity fund for 1919. A committee was appointed to fight threatened steam boiler legislation at the State House February 20. It was unanimously voted to approve the formation of a League of Nations to enforce peace, in order to safeguard the fruits of victory. C. S. Strout spoke on the keeping quality of carnations. The aim now should be to produce a race with size, keeping qualities, fragrance and robust habit. He mentioned Ruth Baur, which left Indianapolis February 14, arrived at Framingham February 17 and was in good condition in the hall as he spoke. S. J. Goddard discussed varieties seen at the Cleveland convention, which, however, did not have a display equal to what they had that evening in Boston. Eastern flowers were said to be superior to those seen in the middle west, where the ridge and furrow houses were in vogue. That section also lacked the clear winter skies of the eastern coast. We would soon have a new large type of carnations of the Laddie standard, embracing all colors.

Ernest Saunders, of Lewiston, Me., spoke of the splendid roses seen at the establishment of E. G. Hill, at Richmond. Other speakers were James Wheeler, John Coombs, of Hartford, Conn.; F. E. Conine, Stratford, Conn., and George E. Buxton, Nashua, N. H.

Various Notes.

While there are no classes scheduled for plants or flowers at the exhibition March 8 and 9, Douglas Ecclestone, superintendent to A. C. Burrage, will stage a large orchid display covering 400 square feet of space, which would have been staged February 18 but for the cold weather. A number of other growers will also contribute plants and flowers. The Massachusetts Horticultural Society contemplates holding a grand orchid show in 1920.

Merle W. Farr, of Reading, is one of our youngest and most progressive growers. Sweet peas are his specialty at present and he grows these as well as I ever have seen them at Boston winter shows. He has a 200-foot house now, in which many plants are fifteen feet high. He had 10,000 for St. Valentine's day.

James Wheeler, of Natick, grows Godfrey callas with great success in narrow boxes seven inches deep around the sides of his big carnation house. This is the second season they have been left undisturbed in these boxes and they are producing a wonderful crop of handsome flowers.

YOU Will find all the best offers all the time in The Review's Classified Advs.

The banquet of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club occurred at Horticultural hall February 26. Tickets sold well. A souvenir booklet containing 201 pages was issued. On one page appear the names of forty-three club members who have served or are still serving in some branch of the army or navy.

H. A. Sim, son of William Sim, now with the American army in France, has just recovered from an attack of pneumonia. Mr. Sim has seen considerable active service, has been wounded and has also received the French Croix de Guerre for bravery in action.

Fred Palmer, of Brookline, with his daughter, Miss Ella Palmer, has been enjoying ten days' snowshoeing and other mountain sports with the Appalachian Mountain Club, at Jackson, N. H.

Thomas Pegler spent a couple of days in town last week with Ernest Saunders, of Lewiston, Me., and enjoyed the club flower show and meeting. Many other out-of-town visitors were also noted.

A meeting of persons interested in the proposed quarantine of the states of Massachusetts and New York against the corn root borer was held at the State House, Boston, February 24. A further hearing is scheduled for February 26 at Washington, before the Federal Horticultural Board. Not only corn in all forms will be quarantined, but it is proposed to prevent shipments of dahlias, gladioli, all herbaceous perennials, chrysanthemums, etc., which will seriously affect many of our growers. If quarantines of individual states continue, business will soon be paralyzed. The corn borer, moreover, did not come in on nursery stock, but inspectors think it probably was brought in on hemp straw. There has been no mention as yet of preventing importations of hemp straw, jute rope and other possible carriers of this pest.

Arnold Janiten, formerly of the firm of Janiten & Woolrath Co., has leased the Rawson greenhouses, in Arlington, and is busy stocking them. High-grade pot plants for the Boston and other markets will be his specialty.

Owing to all the halls of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society being rented for the week of the regular March meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, the next meeting will not be held until March 25.

The pansies coming in from C. T. Beasley & Co., of East Milton, are of grand quality. Mr. Beasley had 74,000 flowers in January and will beat that record in February. He is also cutting some nice ranunculi.

As the real facts of Quarantine 37 become more widely known, opposition to it becomes more intense locally and numerous protests are being sent to Washington. Congressman M. L. Davey, of the Davey Tree Expert Co., Kent, O., is a determined opponent of the quarantine. Congressman G. H. Tinkham, of Massachusetts, is also an active opponent. He writes that he has received numerous letters of protest in regard to it. W. N. C.

A Visit to the Ranges.

Fifteen members of the Lancaster County Florists' Club journeyed to Strasburg February 20 to visit the florists there, calling first on Amos Rohrer, whose range was found in excellent order. Heavy cuts of carnations have been taken since October. White Wonder is the only white grown and is as fine as when first introduced. Belle Washburn is grown to perfection. Mrs. Ward and Enchantress Supreme leave nothing to be desired in their respective colors. Especially noteworthy is the young carnation stock. Mr. Rohrer's method is to plant the rooted cuttings in flats three inches deep, which are then placed on shelves near the eaves of the house until planting-out time, when they are cut out with a knife from the boxes and set in the field, thus eliminating all danger of potbound stock. fine collection. These varieties can be grown in a carnation temperature, which is maintained here. Outdoor sweet peas under glass promise a wonderful crop of bloom for the early spring.

A ten minutes' walk brought the party to J. Wade Gayley's houses, in which also carnations are a specialty. Matchless, Beacon, Ward, Alice and Enchantress Supreme are the favorites here, while a bench of Albert Roper looks splendid. Belle Washburn also is grown. Mr. Gayley's method of handling young stock is to plant the rooted cuttings in paper bands arranged in benches, from which they are set out in the field. His blooming plants have yielded a heavy crop of extraordinarily fine blooms since October, many of them showing from 15 to 20-inch stems, with shoots yet to develop. A visit to this range is an inspiration to every grower and the Lancaster County Florists' Club congratulates Mr. Gayley on the success he has made with carnations.

The next call was on our good friend, Charles B. Herr, whose establishment has for many years been the show place of Lancaster county. Matchless, Ward, Enchantress Supreme and Belle Washburn are in wonderfully fine condition here and the plants promise a wealth of bloom until midsummer. Mr. Herr showed us several pots of calla lilies from stock which has been in the Herr family for forty-two years. It was a pleasure to note the vigor and quality of the blooms these plants are producing today. One large house was closed last fall owing to the uncertainty of the fuel supply. In neatness and business-like management this place is not to be excelled.

Club Meeting.

President Elmer J. Weaver called the club to order at 7:30 p. m. in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce. On the exhibition table was a vase of Belle Washburn of superb quality shown by Amos Rohrer and some thirty varieties of new early-flowering sweet peas from the greenhouses of the Fordhook Farm of the W. Atlee Burpee Co. These flowers were a revelation in their wonderful range of color, from purest white through the pinks and lavenders into the deeper shades. The size of the blooms and the length of stem were remarkable. Many of our sweet pea growers will make extensive plantings of the Burpee early-blooming varieties for next winter's markets.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Wholesale market conditions during the week were improved considerably as to the amount of stock coming in daily. For the first time this season a quantity of stock was left over after the morning sales. These conditions had an effect on prices, which went below regular market quotations.

Roses of good quality have been coming in more plentifully than at any time since the first of the year and the trade was in a position to buy excellent stock of the Killarneys, Russell, Columbia, Ophelia and Mrs. Ward in all grades. The market was well supplied with violets all the week and prices went as low as $4 for thousand lots. Extra selects were held at $6 per thousand. Sweet peas, too, were plentiful and prices went down as low as $7.50 per thousand. Extra fancy Spencers held their own. Carnations also came in larger lots than for some time and were of excellent quality. Fancies in Enchantress, Ward and Washington brought 6 cents. There is no oversupply in these varieties as yet. All seasonable bulbous stock has been in big demand and the supply is large from local consignors. Extra fine quality was noted in Von Sions, jonquils, freesias, Easter lilies, callas and valley. Heavy shipments of southern jonquils came to this market last week. There was a strong demand for greens all the week, with an excellent supply of smilax, asparagus, galax, adiantum and leucothoe sprays to meet it.

We had our first snow of the season February 22, when several inches of it fell.

Meetings.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association held an important meeting February 26 at 8 p. m. in the Eleven Mile House. "Greenhouse Insurance" and "Publicity" were the topics of the evening.

The St. Louis Association of Gardeners will meet March 5 at the Forest park greenhouses. Messrs. Vanderiem and Beer will lead a discussion on

Various Notes.

The florists' masque ball took place February 25 at Westminster hall.

Thomas Carr, who closed his flower store in Union Market during the winter months, has started to remodel the stand and reports that he will reopen for business March 1.

Edward Westmann, who resigned his position at F. H. Weber's February 15, has accepted a position with the Bourdet Floral Co. as manager of the cut flower department.

Mrs. Louise Holmes and her daughter, who recently bought out the Townsend Floral Co., report a splendid business season so far in all lines.

The mild weather last week caused a big rush at the various seed houses, but the snow storm February 22 soon brought quiet again. The St. Louis Seed Co., the Schisler-Corneli Seed Co.

Werner Bros., of Clayton, have been cutting heavily of Killarney roses. Among their consignments is noted excellent stock of Lady Stanley and Mock roses.

A visit at the establishments of Fred C. Weber, Joseph Witek and F. H. Weber, leading west end florists, found them all busy preparing for weddings, dinners and receptions. Their window displays of blooming plants attract considerable attention.

H. G. Berning handled a fine cut of roses and carnations last week from the establishments of John Steidle, Otto Bruenig and A. Jablonsky, all of Olivette, Mo.

Joseph Friday, of the Friday Floral Co., East St. Louis, Ill., reports that this concern has closed up its business. Mr. Friday has accepted a position in the cut flower department of Grimm & Gorly at the Washington avenue store.

bright sunshine which we have enjoyed nearly every day except St. Valentine's day during the last two weeks and the lengthening days have brought flowers out rapidly. Roses only are scarce. An increasing supply of bulbous stock is to be had, including daffodils, freesias, tulips, Paper Whites and Roman hyacinths. Violets are plentiful. Carnations are in abundant supply. There is a good cut of sweet peas of good quality. The market is well supplied with pussy willows, for which there is a demand.

Potted plants are more plentiful and a better assortment is displayed.

Potted daffodils, hyacinths, Easter lilies, begonias, primroses and splendid cinerarias are to be seen. There is a good call for all of these. Some of the florists report that they are holding back the potted plants, as they fear a shortage at Easter.

Funeral work still keeps up and there is a call for plants and cut flowers for the sick.

Washington cherry trees and other novelties were featured for Washington's birthday and sold well. There were calls for flowers for table decorations for Washington parties.

Various Notes.

Julius Reck has a splendid assortment of daffodils and double tulips on hand, but is holding back some of his bulbous stock for Easter. His spring plants are coming on in fine form. Mr. Reck expects an unusually good trade in bedding plants. He received a letter recently from his son, John Reck, a member of the firm, who is a sergeant of the first class in Motor Car Company 617. Mr. Reck was stationed in Paris for some time, but is now just outside the city. He reports that at the florists' establishments in Paris carnations and other cut flowers shown are the same as those used in this country. Prices are high, the same as here. He does not consider that they use as much care in the arrangement of the flowers in the floral designs they put out as the florists do here. He has had opportunities to observe their work. For instance, one of his comrades died and the boys ordered a 20-dollar piece for the funeral. It was the same size of design as one of that price in our country, but it was not so artistic.

John Reck & Son report flowers plentiful at their greenhouses, especially sweet peas, daffodils, tulips and violets. Mr. Reck is glad that wholesale prices of flowers have dropped, as he considers that the high prices have a tendency to hurt business.

NEW ORLEANS.

The Market.

Business throughout the month was fair. Bedding stock was a prominent item in the market. Home-grown cut flowers are still scarce. The last of the Roman hyacinths will soon be cut and narcissi are not yet in bloom. Grand Mogul is coming into favor and is extensively used for funeral work. Single outdoor violets are arriving in quantities and of good quality. From now until March 4 is the time of our carnival and although the usual parades and balls have been abandoned, a week of grand opera and many social functions will help to make up for the omission. The florists expect good business, at any rate. Although February was a month of mild weather, with no frost at all, it was too wet to do much outdoor planting and local plant growers are likely to do a rushing business all of next month.

Club Meetings.

The New Orleans Horticultural Society held its first monthly meeting since November, February 20, at 419 Charles street. In the absence of President C. Eble, Vice-president J. Bernard presided. The attendance was unusually large. A communication from the Federal Horticultural Board dealing with the plant embargo was read and its contents discussed. The members decided to take no action.

Paul Abele was appointed to represent the society at the meeting called to organize the New Orleans Garden Club.

Frank Rieth was elected a member of the Horticultural Society.

Richard Eichling exhibited a specimen of Adiantum gloriosum and one of the Creole Easter lily, both in 6-inch pots. They were pronounced as fine as any ever grown here.

Henry Mische showed specimens of gladioli in bloom, which were excellent.

For the purpose of making New Orleans the garden city of the United States, a meeting was called February 21 by Professor R. S. Cocks. The following spoke at the meeting in favor of the project: C. W. Eichling, Paul Abele, A. E. Farley, superintendent of the Park Commission, and Miss Grace King. Officers were nominated as follows: President, R. S. Cocks; vice-presidents, F. J. McDonnell, Dr. W. Scheppegrell, C. W. Eichling, C. Low, A. Farley, Mrs. Hunt Henderson, N. H. Hendren and Mrs. Isidore Newman; treasurer, Eugene Roberts; secretary, Miss Mary Reames. The officers constitute the executive committee. Meetings of the society will be held every Friday night at 8 p. m., in Gibson hall, Tulane University. At the next meeting F. J. McDonnell, landscape artist, will speak on "Laying Out Gardens, Large and Small." C. W. Eichling will answer questions on the growing of flowers and plants.

Various Notes.

Peter Chopin's store and show houses always look attractive. This has been a banner season here.

Charles Eble has especially fine oncidium, with extra large flower spikes. His trade is increasing so much that he is planning to build new greenhouses for roses and he will also try carnations, although these have not done well here, on account of climatic conditions.

C. W. Eichling's force is always busy.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

CALADIUM bulbs are scarce.

FEBRUARY is making a new record in the mail-order seed trade.

WHOLESALE seed selling still is slow, in spite of an unusually active early retail season.

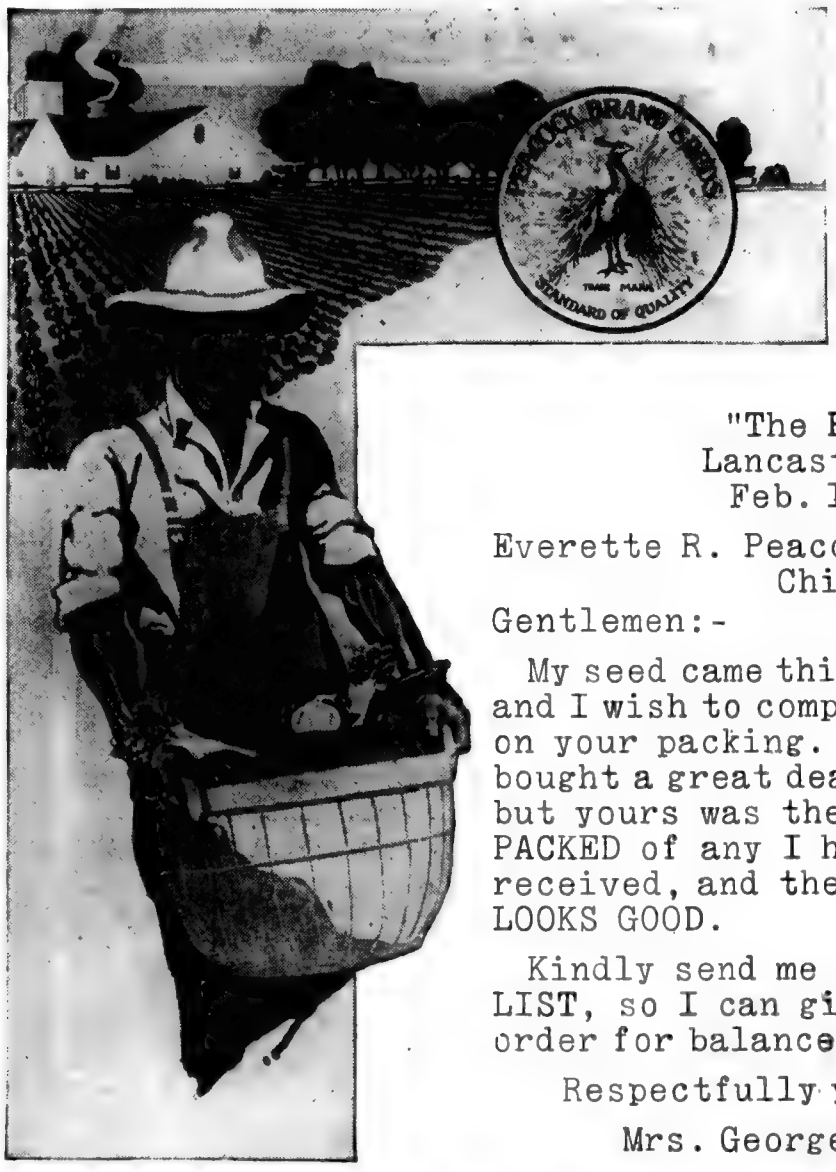
SOUTHERN dealers in field seeds find the season heavy because of the effort to curtail the cotton acreage.

THE British Board of Trade has withdrawn all restrictions on the export of vegetable seeds to the United States. A license no longer is required.

IT is reported that numerous Holland bulb travelers have encountered unexplained delay in obtaining passports for their annual trips to the United States.

MEMBERS of the trade who have interests at Ghent, Belgium, may make inquiries regarding them through Consul Charles R. Nasmith, recently sent there to represent the United States.

FIRE of unknown origin at the warehouse of the Schisler-Corneli Seed Co., St. Louis, Mo., damaged the building and destroyed seed stocks before it was discovered. The building is a four-story brick structure, and the blaze was confined to the fourth floor. The loss will run into four figures.



VICTORY gardens for 1919 will succeed the war gardens of 1917 and 1918 throughout this broad land. If all states develop organizations as efficient as that of Wisconsin, the home gardens ought to be a factor in expanding the volume of business done by the seed trade. Fifty-six Wisconsin cities had efficient garden organizations under the direction of the Wisconsin Horticultural Society.

WILL EXPAND BULB GROWING.

Announcement has been made of the formation of Tait Bros. Co., at Brunswick, Ga., to develop the business of bulb and plant growing. C. S. Tait has been engaged in this line for several years and present conditions are thought favorable for a considerable enlargement of the undertaking. He therefore has associated with him his two sons, H. S. Tait and A. L. Tait. They already have planted for next season several millions of gladiolus, narcissus and amaryllis bulbs. The property consists of over 1,000 acres of land, more than one-fourth of which is ready for cultivation. There are 225 acres under irrigation from Altamaha river. In addition to bulbs, the intention is to develop the production of plants of such of the kinds heretofore imported from Europe as are found suitable for the Georgia soil and climate.

MORE DUTCH STOCK ARRIVES.

The second shipment of Holland stock to reach America since the world war ended arrived at New York last week on the Rotterdam. The steamer was reported to have left Holland about January 21 and at the time it was supposed the ship was coming direct to New York. At a little later date, however, it was

SEED IMPORTS FROM BOMBAY

Figures from a late bulletin of the United States Department of Commerce covering trade with Bombay, British India, are of interest as showing the development of commerce between this far eastern province and the United States.

Although there was an increase in the value of most articles on the list, that of castor beans alone accounted for $1,984,006 of the $2,213,738 gain. Certain of the items entering into this trade and their declared value are listed below, the quantities being measured in pounds, except in the case of castor beans, which are in bushels.

HOW TO MAKE A CATALOGUE.

Secretary Adolph Kruhm, of Beckert's Seed Store, Pittsburgh, Pa., has followed his booklet, "The Reason Why," and his Victory garden catalogue with a third publication which is designed especially for "Pittsburgh's Patriotic Home Gardeners," a compilation which is ornamental as well as thoroughly practical.

Speaking of the practical uses of such publications a few days ago, Mr. Kruhm said: "For some time I have felt that the usual presentation of subjects in the average catalogue is wrong. Nor do I believe that a discussion of the subject according to the botanical relationship of the various vegetables and flowers is the ideal solution of the present problem of making the seed catalogue more interesting. For this reason I have disregarded every precedent and arranged the vegetables according to their relative importance to the home gardener, giving the different classes as much space as their relative selling strength seems to warrant. words, three pages are devoted to the most important vegetables, or those which we are accustomed to think of as staples. Another three pages are devoted to what we choose to consider the winter staples. Vining vegetables, to which little space is given in the average home garden, are condensed to one page. Thus I believe that we have given to each class, and to each variety within the different classes, as much space as it is entitled to."

Mr. Kruhm's idea has been carried right along throughout the flower seeds, bulbous stock and other departments as well. There is a chapter on "Lawns," treated as a unit instead of lawn rollers and other accessories being buried in a mass of miscellaneous matter in the back of the catalogue, according to the usual procedure. TO CONTROL ONION THRIPS.

The onion thrips is an insect so small that it is almost invisible to the unaided eye, but it is prolific and the most serious menace to the onion growing industry of this country. It causes an annual loss to this crop alone estimated by specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture to be at least $2,250,000. Though the insect has a particular liking for onions, it preys upon other garden and truck crops, such as cabbage, cauliflower, cucumbers and melons, and also has a ravenous appetite for greenhouse and many ornamental plants, particularly roses. To aid growers in identifying this insect and preventing the losses for which it is responsible, Farmers' Bulletin No. 1007, "Control of Onion Thrips," has recently been published by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The first indication that an onion field has been attacked by thrips, according to the bulletin, is shown by the leaves, which become whitened. In advanced attacks the leaves are curled, crinkled and twisted, and finally die down permanently. To control this pest, begin spraying with nicotine sulphate solution as soon as there is any evidence of the insect. If spraying is delayed until hundreds of young thrips are present, the crop will be seriously injured. The spray material is made by the following formula: Three-eighths of a pint of nicotine sulphate, forty per cent; four pounds of dissolved soap and fifty gallons of water. Spraying should be done thoroughly and applied as a fine mist.

It is not advisable to plant other crops, such as early cabbage and cauliflower, upon which the thrips feed, near the onion fields. After onions, cabbage and related crops are harvested, the field should be cleaned up to destroy breeding places of the insect. It is a good practice to plow as deeply as possible and harrow the ground after harvest. Much of the injury can be avoided by planting as early as possible and by using quick-acting fertilizers after the onions are well set or the bulbs have begun to form. Onion fields should be watched constantly and the plants should be kept growing thriftily, since once the plants become checked in their growth from any cause, the thrips will multiply more rapidly than ever and it will be a hard fight to save the crop.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

John J. Prouty, Baldwinsville, N. Y.—Condensed list of gladioli. "In this list," says Mr. Prouty, "I have eliminated descriptions, but am sending with this a copy of the 1918 catalogue, which will give the necessary information."

B. Hammond Tracy, Inc., Wenham, Mass.—"Cedar Acres Gladioli," a tasteful, well illustrated catalogue, clearly printed on a fine grade of paper and bound in an appropriate cover; thirty-two pages, in pocket or pigeonhole form. At the beginning are suggestions on the selection of varieties; at the end are cultural directions.

Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y.—"Bulletin No. 3," of "J. & P. Preferred Stock, for the Trade Only," a comprehensive list in comparatively small space. The offerings include roses, vines, perennials and general nursery stock. "Since the issuing of our previous list," says the company, "our grading and counting have been completed and our stock has been augmented."

Currie Bros. Co., Milwaukee, Wis.—"Currie's Farm and Garden Annual," an illustrated 96-page catalogue, in a handsome and striking cover, printed by the offset process. The background of the cover, in blue and white, represents a latticework, which contrasts finely and effectively with the nasturtiums and other varieties of stock, shown in their natural colors. Besides the seeds and bulbs, the book offers perennials and other plants, roses, shrubs, tools and sundries.

E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.—An excellently printed, finely illustrated catalogue of the usual, well known Hill type, but somewhat reduced in number of pages, presumably on account of a shortage in certain lines of stock, caused by the war-time restrictions in fuel. Carnations are not offered in this edition of the catalogue. The new roses are conspicuously featured, but the older, standard varieties are not listed, though promised for the near future. The greater part of the book is devoted to chrysanthemums, which appear in full force.

C. Young & Sons Co., St. Louis, Mo.—Fifty-fourth annual edition of "The Spring Garden Book," an illustrated catalogue of seeds, vegetable plants and roots, flowering and foliage plants, roses, nursery stock, tools and fertilizers; sixty-four pages, in a distinctive cover. The groundwork of the front cover is gray, with a colored panel in the center, showing four standard varieties of roses which are designated as the "Victory Everblooming Collection."

John Connon Co., Ltd., Hamilton, Ont.—Wholesale catalogue of greenhouse plants, summer-flowering bulbs, hardy perennials, culinary roots and ornamental nursery stock; twenty-eight pages and cover. The back cover features the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association and the trade slogan, "Say It with Flowers."

Thos. J. Grey Co., Boston, Mass.—Illustrated catalogue of seeds, vegetable roots and plants, palms and other decoratives, bulbs, aquatics, foliage and flowering plants, perennials, nursery stock, farm and garden requisites; a comprehensive book of 108 pages, well printed on a thin but good quality of paper and bound in an attractive cover, embellished with pictures of outdoor scenes.

Fred J. Mead, Newark, N. J.—"The Ready-Set Concrete Greenhouse Bench," a well arranged, illustrated folder, describing the process of molding the sectional parts of a patented concrete bench. These parts, says the folder, may be made "at odd times throughout the year and stacked in some out-of-the-way place like so much lumber, ready for use when needed."

Colorado Seed Co., Denver, Colo.—"Home Garden Seeds; Cultural Suggestions and Price List," an illustrated 72-page catalogue, "compiled to help the small city gardener, as well as those who buy seeds in bulk." "Our specialty," says the company, "is seeds in bulk." Herb and tree seeds are included. The company's greenhouse and nursery departments are also well represented in the book, and an unusually extensive line of tools and supplies is offered.

State Nursery & Seed Co., Helena, Mont.—"Annual Catalogue; Twenty-ninth Year," an illustrated book of 120 large pages, besides a red-type 4-page insert which quotes the prices of vegetable and field seeds at the time of sending the catalogue to press. As would be inferred from the size of the book and the nature of the company's business, the needs of all branches of the trade receive attention. The cover of the catalogue is both handsome and interesting, especially the colored bird's-eye view of the greenhouses and nurseries.

Beckert's Seed Store, Pittsburgh, Pa.—This is the third catalogue received this winter from this company, and all three are of high grade and were compiled with exceptional care. The first two were mentioned in The Review of January 23. One of them, the general catalogue, was entitled "Beckert's Victory Garden Catalogue." The other, the wholesale list, was called "Beckert's 'Reason Why' Catalogue." The present book has the same title and cover as the general catalogue, but is entirely distinct in purpose and arrangement, being the special city or Pittsburgh edition. Its aim is indicated in these few words from its introductory pages: "To Pittsburgh's Patriotic Home Gardeners—This is your catalogue. It is written especially for you, with particular reference to the conditions you have to meet in this locality." Many of the illustrations show interesting scenes from home gardens.

Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.—"World's Choicest Roses, Grown in America," a finely illustrated 32-page book, devoted entirely to roses. It is accurately edited and is well printed in green ink on enameled paper. The cover is black and white, but a full-page insert shows four roses in their natural colors. At the beginning are two pages of directions on the planting and care of outdoor roses; at the end are suggestions on "what roses to plant." The catalogue contains descriptions of 406 varieties, but "does not show our complete collection," says the company, "and a supplementary list is sent out separately."

J. W. Jung Seed Co., Randolph, Wis.—"Jung's Seed Annual," a 64-page catalogue, illustrated. At the beginning is a condensed wholesale list, for market gardeners. Five specialties in vegetables are shown in colors on the cover. A catalogue of "Jung's Superb Asters" also has been received, as noted in The Review of February 20.

Williams Seed Co., Norfolk, Va.—Eleventh annual catalogue; forty-eight pages, illustrated. The prices are quoted according to the cental system, but in large quantities the equivalents in bushels also are stated. "All prices," says the company, "are those ruling January 1, 1919, and are subject to change without notice."

Allen, Sterling & Lothrop, Portland, Me.—"Sterling Quality Seeds," an 80-page, illustrated catalogue, in an embossed cover that is strong and serviceable, as well as attractive. Vegetable plants, flowering and foliage plants are included, and the lists of farm and garden tools, barn equipments, fertilizers and other supplies are so extensive as to occupy about half the space in the book.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Business is moving fairly well. Stock is more plentiful, although there is still a pronounced shortage of practically all varieties. There is no surplus of roses and no long-stemmed American Beauties at all. Roses command anywhere from $8 to $25 in the wholesale marts, while giganteum lilies are $25 per hundred straight. Of the latter, there are enough to take care of the trade. Scarcely any valley is seen anywhere. Violets range from $1 to $1.50 and are moving fairly well, the increase in the demand being due entirely, of course, to the shortage of other cut flowers.

Bulbous flowers are not plentiful and are of only fair grade, the prices varying accordingly. Tulips run from $3 to $6 per hundred, while the trumpet narcissi demand from $4 to $6. There are no hyacinths to speak of, the few noted being of decidedly better quality than either the tulips or narcissi. Greens, which were plentiful during the entire autumn and early winter, when blooms of all varieties were painfully short, are now on the scarce side. Sprengeri brings from 40 to 60 cents per bunch, while Asparagus plumosus runs from 25 to 50 cents.

February Meetings.

The annual election of officers and directors for the ensuing year at the February meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club resulted as follows: President, Neil McCallum; vice-president, Anthony Aloysius Leach; recording secretary, Karl Becherer; corresponding secretary, William A. Clarke treasurer, Theodore P. Langhans; di-

BURPEE'S AMERICAN BEAUTY ASTER.

First offered by us two years ago, and named on account of its similarity in color to the famous American Beauty Rose. A distinct type, having larger and heavier flowers than the Late Branching Asters, while the flowers are borne on much longer and heavier stems. It is also the latest of all Asters to bloom and, therefore, prolongs the season by several weeks. Indispensable to cut flower growers.

The February session of the Horticultural Society of Western Pennsylvania in the auditorium of the East Liberty Carnegie library was marked by a stag supper and the annual election of officers, the latter having been postponed from the January meeting, as originally scheduled. The election resulted as follows: President, Ernest Guter; vice-president, Frank Ludebacher; secretary and treasurer, Anthony Aloysius Leach.

William Thompson received a cultural certificate for a splendid cyclamen plant grown at "As You Like It," the Sewickley Heights summer home of Mrs. William Thaw, Jr.

President Anthony W. Smith acted as toastmaster at the first of the series of luncheons inaugurated February 19 at the Fort Pitt hotel by the Rotary Club for over 200 wounded officers and soldiers who are patients in the United States Military hospital, at Parkview, Pa.

Various Notes.

Edward L. Weaver, of Randolph & McClements' sales staff, has been detained at home a few days owing to a slight attack of grip.

John Jedlicka had a striking Washington's birthday window last week, with iris as the dominating flower, forming a background for a superb painting of "The Hero of the Day," which was enveloped in red, white and blue, while the flags of the allied nations played a conspicuous part, with quantities of diminutive cherry trees.

McGrath & Langhans had an elaborate plant decoration for the banquet of the Bank of Pittsburgh February 21 in the Blue Room of the William Penn hotel. The same evening the ballroom of the William Penn was handsomely decorated by Randolph & McClements for the annual entertainment of the Bankers' Association, seventy-five tables being adorned with centerpieces of iris and spring flowers.

Secretary Theodore P. Langhans, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., is "doing time" this week and next as a juryman in the Common Pleas court.

Among the recent commercial travelers registered in town were the following: M. C. De Weerde, representing M. Van Waveren & Sons, of Hillegom, Holland; Charles Schwake, New York city, and S. H. Gross, of Charles Zinn & Co., New York city.

The death of Walter T. Elliott is recorded in the obituary column of this issue.

A letter just received from Sergeant Edward Ernest Ludwig states that he was about to leave on a furlough to Paris, having chosen to go there in preference to England or Italy. E. E. S.

The Market.

The market has been steady throughout the week. All varieties of stock arriving met the demand, with the exception of short and medium-grade roses. But there has been a shortage of these since October. Stock that arrives is divided impartially, so that all have a few, at least. White roses have been more plentiful than others. It has been the same with carnations. It has been remarked that we need not fear a shortage of the latter for Mothers' day. White will surely be more plentiful than ever before. Good supplies of sweet peas have been coming in, some of them of good grade. They are snatched up and net good returns to the growers. Calla lilies are arriving in larger supplies. Good freesias are still to be had. Daffodils find a ready market at $5 and $6 per hundred. Tulips are coming, but not in sufficient supply. F. P. A.

Wellsburg, W. Va.—E. E. Worthen built a greenhouse here last fall and will soon place a crop of plants on the market.

North Detroit, Mich.—Ernst Berkholz has operated a greenhouse of 8,000 feet for the last seven years, in connection with his truck gardening business.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

It was the general opinion among the retailers that there never has been such a big business locally on St. Valentine's day as this year. Not only violets, orchids and small flowers generally sold, but everything in the way of cut flowers, heart-shaped boxes and even plants cleaned up. Wholesalers also shared the benefits, though in some cases stock was not in first-class shape for long-distance shipping. Roses were not so plentiful as could have been wished, but the quality of the stock was fine. Indoor carnations are good but scarce, while the quality of the field-grown stock leaves much to be desired. There is a variety of small flowers and shrubbery that the retailers take advantage of to make up pretty little spring baskets, which sell well and are exceedingly attractive. There is a great variety of shrub and fruit blossoms and green foliage, which helped out with the scarcity of northern collected greens. Some excellent gladioli for the season are seen, but only in small numbers. Callas are being shipped out in quantity, but the local demand is poor, though better than usual, owing to the lack of Easter lilies. Hyacinths, daffodils and a few early tulips are in, but are not up to standard for this season. Freesias are still plentiful and good. Plants are scarce, with the exception of cyclamens and a few primulas. Greens are on the short side.

Various Notes.

Ray H. Daschbach, coast representative of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, has decided to make his home in southern California and has had his furniture and belongings sent out. He is planning to locate in one of the nearby beach towns, from which he will work the whole of the Pacific coast. He reports big business all down the line.

F. C. MacNab, manager of the Arizona Seed & Floral Co., Phoenix, Ariz., has been in town this week hastening the delivery of a second big batch of catalogues. Mr. MacNab says that they have received double the number of requests for their catalogues this season that they ever had before, besides doing a wonderful business. It is a policy of this house never to allow an order to remain overnight if it is possible to get it out. This quick service has had much to do with the success of the company.

S. Murata & Co. report a shortage of carnation stock fit to ship over the long distance routes, owing to the softening of the flowers by rain. A fine shipping business is reported, however.

F. R. Hills and Mrs. Hills have returned from a trip to the neighborhood of Arrowhead Springs, where they spent an enjoyable outing. Mr. Houghton and Mrs. Houghton were also of the party. Mr. Hills says this has been his banner season so far.

Miss Alice Hosp, formerly of Bakersfield, but more recently of Riverside, was recently married.

Wright's Flower Shop reports a great St. Valentine's day business. Fred Westrom, of the force here, remarked that it was "like another Christmas." T. Wright says he has several thousand cold storage Easter lilies that look as if they would come in good time for the festival.

Fred Sperry, manager of the L. A. Floral Co., reports a big demand from neighboring small towns, especially those that can be reached in less than a day's journey from Los Angeles. He has been driving through a good deal of the local territory and says everyone is busy and hopeful.

Gilbert Prechtel has been experimenting with freesias for several years past and some of his seedlings and selections are most attractive. He has worked up a large stock of a new pink that is distinct and is also working on a double sport that appeared two years ago. The flower has the same outer petalage as Purity and inside a number of curled petals like the center of a carnation. Mr. Prechtel has these and many others growing in his nursery at Montebello.

J. Dieterich has invaded the Chicago market with his heather, shipping to the E. C. Amling Co. This concern reports its arrival in good condition and has sent repeat orders. A quantity of this useful decorative has been shipped also from Montebello to San Francisco.

J. Rolleri had the decorations for the Athletic Club St. Valentine's day banquet, which were distinctive and a great artistic success. Palms and fronds of Woodwardia radicans, interspersed with peach blossoms, made a charming display in the rooms, while the tables were all decorated with choice flowers. In the store Mr. Rolleri used double red blossoms with fine effect and altogether the St. Valentine's day business was wonderfully good.

C. L. Washburn, of Chicago, arrived in Los Angeles this week.

The store of Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson is being entirely remodeled and redecorated. The plans call for a good deal of rockwork and judging by present appearances the result will be most attractive.

George Stewart is building a new greenhouse and lath house near his home on Sixty-third street and will go into the growing end of the business.

C. Gutting, of the Superior Nursery, has been under the weather owing to a severe cold he acquired on a hunting trip, but he is improving and around again.

F. Borden says that the St. Valentine's day business of the Redondo Floral Co. was the best in the history of the firm.

A. A. Hunt has resigned his position as superintendent of Arthur Letts' Botanical Gardens, at Hollywood, and will remove soon to Niles, where he will take charge of the landscape department of the California Nursery Co. George Roeding, of the Fancher Creek Nurseries and other large interests, now controls this nursery and negotiations have been personal between Mr. Roeding and Mr. Hunt. While his many friends will be sorry to lose Mr. Hunt and he doubtless will find it more or less of a wrench to get away from his interesting work here, everybody, including Mr. Letts, feels that in the larger scope of the new position he will have a better opportunity and all wish him the best of success.

E. Day, for several years foreman at Hills' Nursery, leaves for his old home at Columbus, O., this week, having resigned his position here. Mr. Day intends to take a complete rest for a time.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

There is little change in the local situation since the last report as far as supply and demand are concerned, except that daffodils are not so plentiful, which makes it easier for other varieties of flowers to clean up. The warm rain brought on a flood of early daffodils and now there is a break before the later varieties come out in full force. Good stock cleans up at 50 cents per hundred. Freesias are still plentiful and the same may be said of narcissi, whereas ranunculi and anemones are not offered freely as yet. Tulips are only in light supply, but receipts are expected to increase rapidly within the next two weeks. The demand is active for all this class of stock. Spring blossoms figure prominently in the daily offerings also and have a big call for decorative purposes.

STOCK of all kinds is coming in fine shape now and we are especially strong on Daffodils and Violets.

The supply of roses is equal to the demand, which keeps prices firm at a higher level than usually prevails here at this time of the year. Carnations are the most plentiful item, but the growers have formed a pool, whereby prices are kept up to 75 cents a bunch and the surplus destroyed. Violets are excellent and the shipping demand has improved accordingly. Practically no Easter lilies are available and few callas. No lily of the valley has reached this market in several months and the supply of gardenias is only moderate. There are plenty of orchids and they have a good call.

Asparagus plumosus is on the short side, the explanation being that most of the local supply is grown without artificial heat and the young stuff was frozen during the recent prolonged cold spell. There is plenty of adiantum, however.

Except in the case of Easter lilies, the outlook for Easter stock is favorable and all branches of the business are preparing for a banner season.

Various Notes.

A large gathering of florists is expected at the end of the week in response to the following letter signed by P. V. Matraia, of the Art Floral Co.; Albert O. Stein; Frank Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., and Victor Podesta, of Podesta & Baldocchi: "Florists of the Bay cities did their part in the war. 'Our boys' were willing; many responded to their country's call. Now they are coming back and we owe them the welcome of true patriots. The undersigned have arranged for a banquet to the florists returning from the service. This is a call for a meeting of all the florists interested in this Welcome banquet to arrange the final details and turn in the names and addresses of all florists who have returned from the service. It is only proper to show 'our boys' that we were with them in spirit; that we welcome them back with open arms and that their old jobs await them.''

It is expected that the meeting at the end of the week will have farther-reaching effects than the arrangement of the proposed banquet; that a probable result, in fact, will be the formation of a florists' association. Interest in a trade organization has been gradually gaining favor here, but there have been various obstacles in the way which have frustrated previous movements in this direction. Present indications seem favorable, however, for the consummation of such plans, it being generally recognized by the trade that many problems of mutual interest could be handled best through the medium of an association.

The Art Floral Co. executed an elaborate decoration at the Palace hotel for the western confectioners' convention. Spring flowers and blossoms were used in profusion. This company has had various other decorations also, which, in conjunction with the regular demand, have served to keep the staff busy.

Julius Eppstein, the St. Francis hotel florist, reports enough entertaining to keep his staff busy on decorative work, following the rush of funeral orders during the epidemic.

Mr. Francis, of the Francis Floral Co., had a nice business St. Valentine's day, the demand being particularly good for his exclusive novelties. He is now preparing for St. Patrick's day.

B. M. Joseph reports a splendid St. Valentine's day trade, notwithstanding the stormy weather, which made the outlook uncertain. He has added three new men to his staff, namely, Manuel Gotelli, J. B. Bernadou and W. Jack. Mr. Gotelli is a well known florist, just discharged from the navy. Mr. Bernadou needs no introduction to the trade either, having been identified with the MacRorie-McLaren Co. and other downtown establishments for several years. Mr. Jack is the new chauffeur, increased business having made it necessary to run two delivery cars.

Podesta & Baldocchi have had a busy week, according to N. F. Baldocchi, the rush on certain days offsetting the quiet spells nicely. Two funerals and a wedding were handled in one day. One of the funerals called for a pall of orchids and ferns and the other for a pall of carnations and ferns. A bouquet of phalænopsis was included in the wedding order. A popular film star was the bride and the ceremony was supposed to be part of a new picture, but the florists are inclined to think it was the ''real thing,'' considering the amount of money spent and attention shown details. The Charity ball cleaned up this firm on orchids and Mr. Baldocchi looks for the Mardi Gras to stimulate the demand materially also.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. were pleased to have Frank Thatcher, nephew of A. J. Rossi and formerly connected with the business, appear on the scene this week. He is at the Presidio and expects to be discharged within the next few days.

E. P. Ritter, of Shellgrain & Ritter, says they have enjoyed good business ever since they opened in December, the results being much better than anticipated.

joyable party. The home in Colma was nicely decorated for the occasion and plenty of entertainment was provided for the seventy-five guests. It may be mentioned that there are four or five Rosaia brothers, all of whom are florists.

Robert Newcomb has proceeded to the Pacific northwest, after calling on the local trade in the interests of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops.

K. Kimura, of the United Flower & Supply Co., reports heavy shipments of carnations to points in the Pacific northwest. Violets are fine now, he says, and orders are coming in freely from all directions.

Mr. Enomoto, of Enomoto & Co., reports plenty of flowers and a gratifying demand.

M. C. Main, of the Seabright Bulb Co., Santa Cruz, Cal., was in town a few days ago, at this time he announced a close clean-up of his big crop of gladioli and other bulbs.

A. J. Woodward, of Victoria, B. C., made a brief stay in San Francisco on his way to Mexico.

C. Kooyman is relieved to have show windows again, the new front making a great improvement in the appearance of his wholesale cut flower and supply house on Bush street. The inside work will be completed within the next few days also.

David Lichtenstein, Terminal Florist, across from the Ferry building, says business is normally active, which is a welcome condition after the great "flu" rush of funeral work.

J. A. Axell, manager of the E. W. McLellan Co., does not see why the florists should be anxious to get prices down on roses and other flowers, as they have done a nice business at the higher prices this winter, demonstrating that San Franciscans, as well as purchasers in other sections of the country, will buy cut flowers even though they cannot get them at the low figures that usually prevail here. The Market.

Conditions have become normal once more. There is a fairly good trade and enough stock to clean up nicely each day.

Various Notes.

Lubliner's window has caused a great deal of comment the last few days on account of the beautiful display of a floral steamship and Liberty bell. The boat was made of Cape everlastings in red, white and blue, developed in full detail from the rigging to the smoke coming from the stack. The initials "W. S. S." were in gold letters. The occasion was the reception for the boys of the 65th Coast Artillery, who returned a few days ago.

The Portland Floral Society held its monthly meeting February 18, with a fairly good attendance. The principal topic of discussion was the plant quarantine. The society went on record as favoring the act.

Robert Newcomb, coast representative of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, called on the trade this week. He reported good business throughout California, with the florists all busy and cut flower prices good.

Mr. Brown, Sr., of Brown Bros., Vancouver, Wash., was in town a few days ago purchasing stock from various growers. L. T. S.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Flowers are once again plentiful, there being more than enough to meet the demand, which is brisk. There is little grown locally, California stock making up about seventy-five per cent of the total quantity received. Funeral work has dropped off considerably, but counter sales are brisk. St. Valentine's day business was the best the local florists have experienced and everybody was well prepared.

Various Notes.

Robert Newcomb, who has been connected with the Miller Floral Co., of Salt Lake City, Utah, is in Seattle representing the Burlington Willow Ware Shops.

P. F. Rosaia spent several days of this week in Vancouver and Victoria, B. C.

The Seattle Retail Florists' Club had its first meeting February 18. The club was nearly broken up, but there was a fairly good crowd of the old members present. It was voted to keep the club going and the annual election of officers will be held on the regular meeting night in March. W. S. G.

OAKLAND, CAL.

The H. M. Sanborn Co. has closed its branch store in Berkeley and is now concentrating its business at the Oakland headquarters on Broadway. Mr. Sanborn says his staff was rushed during the influenza epidemic and that business has held up well since, although the labor disturbance hindered to a certain extent. St. Valentine's day trade was well up to normal and sales are now especially brisk in the seed department. In Mr. Sanborn's opinion, Oakland is getting better right along from the standpoint of the florists' business, the residents showing an increasing tendency toward liberal expenditures for cut flowers, plants, etc.

G. Rossi & Co. have been enjoying excellent business in Twelfth street, off Broadway, according to Mr. George. The strike was a temporary hindrance, he says, but otherwise conditions are satisfactory. M. M.

MINNEAPOLIS GARDENERS.

Local Conference.

The members of the National Association of Gardeners of Minneapolis and vicinity held an interesting conference at the residence office of Theodore Wirth, which was well attended.

The first matter discussed was the impending embargo on the importation of trees, shrubs, bulbs, etc., from foreign countries. The opinion prevailed that this action was unwarranted. All present pledged themselves to send a personal letter of protest to their respective senators and representatives in Washington.

The work of the war garden as conducted in this part of the country was brought to the attention of the conference. The Minneapolis Garden Club has had a most successful year.

After luncheon at Mr. Wirth's residence, the conference took up the question of forming a Gardeners' Club of Lake Minnetonka. Mr. Klapotz was appointed chairman of a committee to take the matter in hand, with the privilege of selecting his own fellow members to make arrangements for such an organization.

The opinion was expressed that the gardener himself is to blame for the lack of recognition of his profession and its value. One of the first topics to be taken up by the club to be formed will be the question of how to establish better relations between the employers and employees in this field.

The matter of exhibitions and field meetings was considered and it was predicted that shows and gatherings would be a help toward the solution of this and other questions of general progress and mutual benefits.

The Market.

Business continues good. Everything that comes into the market clears readily. Roses and carnations are of exceptional quality and clean up quickly. Easter lilies are not in the market, but callas are in good supply. Sweet peas, violets and orchids meet with a good demand. Other offerings include snapdragons, calendulas, myosotis, mignonette, freesias, daffodils, jonquils, Roman hyacinths and tulips. There is a shortage of pot plants.

Various Notes.

A. J. Graham has opened an attractive flower store on South Broadway. He is being assisted by his son. Mr. Graham has been connected with the park board for a long time. He was superintendent for a time of the City park, Denver's largest park. R. S.

Lockport, N. Y.—Fred G. Lewis reports a most satisfactory season. A fine stock of geraniums is among his spring futures. As a side line, Mr. Lewis has Belgian hares of high pedigree, to correspond with their surroundings.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.; vice-president, J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa.; secretary, Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo.; counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; treasurer, J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.

R. C. KERR, of Houston, Tex., announced February 14 the purchase of ninety-six acres of land on which he intends to develop a nursery. A feature of the establishment will be a lath house. The tract is eight miles from Houston.

THE Baker Nursery Co., of Higginson, Ark., filed articles of incorporation February 15, with capital stock scheduled at $1,000. Incorporators are: President, John W. Baker; vice-president, C. E. Yingling; secretary and treasurer, R. C. Baker.

AT the annual meeting of the Minnesota Horticultural Society, an organization having a membership of 3,200 men and women, a resolution of protest against the plant quarantine of the Federal Horticultural Board was adopted. A system of inspection and other precautionary measures are suggested as a substitute for the proposed embargo in this memorial.

MEMORIAL TO ROBERT DOUGLAS.

As a memorial to the late Robert Douglas, of Waukegan, who first grew coniferous evergreens in this country for commercial purposes, it has been suggested by Thomas A McBeth, of Springfield, O., that the nurserymen of the United States purchase and set aside that part of the Douglas estate on which certain fine specimens are growing.

This suggestion was made by Mr. McBeth at the convention of the Illinois Nurserymen's Association in Chicago February 5 and 6. He expressed the view that the Illinois nurserymen should take the initiative in the matter. The Douglas nursery recently has passed out of the hands of the Douglas family.

COMMERCIAL LAW.

Trade Interests Affected.

When a nursery or other business corporation resolves upon seeking business in a state other than that in which it was incorporated, consideration should be given the question as to the necessity for obtaining a license for that purpose from the secretary of such other state.

Interstate commerce being a matter within the exclusive control of congress, a corporation created by one state is not subject to state laws so long as the business done by it is purely interstate. Therefore, a corporation of one state need not be licensed in another to enable it to receive orders from the latter, when the contract is formed outside the latter and is performed by making a shipment in interstate commerce. But as to intrastate transactions, the local statutes govern and many nonresident corporations have found themselves at a disadvantage in enforcing contracts by reason of having failed to comply with state laws, although it is safe to say that in nearly every instance the noncompliance has been innocent.

A Minnesota Instance.

By way of illustration, we cite the Minnesota case of the Sherman Nursery Co. vs. Aughenbaugh, 93 Minnesota Reports, 201. The plaintiff, an Iowa corporation, received an order through a Minnesota salesman for a bill of trees and shrubs to be delivered to the defendant at a point in Minnesota. The order was accepted, but the defendant repudiated his contract long before performance was due. In a suit brought by the plaintiff for redress, one of the defenses interposed successfully by the defendant was that the plaintiff had failed to comply with the statutory prerequisites on which a foreign corporation may do business in the state. The plaintiff admitted that it had done intrastate business in Minnesota without a license from the secretary of state, but sought to excuse this on the ground that its business fell within an exception in the Minnesota statutes to the effect that no license shall be required of a foreign corporation organized for the purpose of "cultivating and improving farms, garden or horticultural lands," etc.

Scope of Statute.

Reliance upon this contention was grounded on the fact that the defendant was incorporated for "the purchase, propagation, cultivation and sale of nursery stock, including all kinds of trees, plants, vines, shrubs and flowers, and also for the purchase and sale of tree and vegetable seeds; also for purchasing, holding, renting, using, improving, leasing, selling or otherwise disposing of any and all real estate such as may be necessary or convenient in the cultivating, handling, or storing of said goods; also the renting, buying, building, leasing, selling or otherwise disposing of all houses or other movable property or apparatus necessary or convenient for carrying on said business; also for contracting with other parties to grow or dispose of said goods." But the Minnesota Supreme court decided that these corporate purposes were plainly not comprehended by the exception of the statute, and that therefore the defendant fell within the general provisions of the Minnesota law which forbid a foreign corporation organized for pecuniary profit to maintain an action in the state on an intrastate contract where it has not obtained a permit to do business in the state.

FREE FOREST TREE SEEDLINGS.

As a part of the reforestation plans of Pennsylvania, a large supply of forest tree seedlings will be offered for free distribution this spring by the state department of forestry, according to Commissioner Robert S. Conklin. The terms of the offer are that not less than 500 seedlings must be planted, that the applicant must pay for the packing and shipping of the stock and actually set out the seedlings in Pennsylvania, thus aiding in the work of replenishing the forests of the state.

The varieties to be distributed comprise 3-year-old seedlings of white pine, red pine, Norway spruce, European larch, arbor-vitæ, a limited number of Japanese larch and white ash.

It is stated by the forestry authorities that on account of the difficulties experienced, in the last two years especially, in obtaining forest tree seeds, there is likely to be a shortage in many lines for several years to come.

Business around St. Valentine's day surpassed anything yet experienced, according to the report of Mrs. Ashley, who manages the store end of the Ernest Ashley establishment. Violets, sweet peas, narcissi, roses and carnations were sold as placed in order. Floral baskets were good sellers also. The greenhouses here have been overhauled and are now running at full capacity. More land has been acquired to keep pace with the growth of this concern. Mr. Ashley is secretary of the Lehigh Valley Florists' Club. From the spirit shown by the members of this club, present and prospective, John F. Horn, first president of the organization, looks for a successful future.

John H. Sykes is justly proud of his model range, evidence of a flourishing business, in which he is assisted by his three sisters. Both plants and cut flowers are grown. The primula is a leader and will be more extensively grown, as the publicity office of the S. A. F. recommends it to amateurs as being a plant that is less subject to insect attacks than others and a desirable house plant.

Andrew Yeager was among those who closed up part of their ranges. Being one of the fortunate ones who care not whether the wind blows high or low, he goes on buying Liberty bonds just the same. Withal, he and his good wife find much pleasure in continuing the business, which, due to their untiring efforts, has bountifully rewarded them.

John F. Horn & Bro. grow large numbers of vegetable plants and annuals from seed sown in boxes placed upon rows of pipes, as is usual. They attribute the excellent germination in large degree to care in sowing and watering. Not a single kind failed to germinate; in fact, many came up too thickly. Stock for spring business is in fine shape. The houses closed and then reöpened are planted with Rose Kaiserin Augusta Victoria for summer cropping. W. M.

Originated by Herbert Bate, of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., in 1915. A seedling of Baby. The most unique novelty pompon ever offered to the trade. Has all the tough, lasting qualities peculiar to its parent, with a free growing habit similar to Lucille Knoble, Golden Climax, etc. The color is much darker than in the old Baby, almost a Golden Wedding yellow. Size, about one inch in diameter, of solid button type. Can be cut tight for Thanksgiving, is at its best from December 10 to 30, and holds on for weeks. We cut the last batch this season January 12, 1919.

Certificated by and scored 90 points before the Chrysanthemum Society of America committee of Chicago, December 14, 1917.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

HARD COAL OR FUEL OIL?

I have two greenhouses, one of them 25x60 and the other 11x40. At present they are heated by a Burnham boiler, No. 624, with hard coal as fuel. From the data you have on hand, can you tell me whether fuel oil would be more economical? W. E. J.—N. Y.

We have no exact data regarding the cost of fuel oil in eastern New York, but would judge that the oil would cost nearly twice as much as the coal. To this should be added the expense of putting in a storage tank and the necessary piping, burner and other equipment for using the oil. In a large plant where oil would be purchased by the carload, the price of the oil would be considerably reduced, but there would then be the cost of a large storage tank, tank wagon, etc.

On the other hand, some allowance should be made for the saving of labor in firing, removing ashes, etc., as well as the lessening of the soot, but we doubt whether any change will be desirable.

CAPACITY OF BOILER.

I have a Kewanee fire-box boiler, containing forty-eight flues, each six and one-half feet long and two and three-fourths inches in diameter, inside measurement. The fire-box is forty-six inches square, with grates the same size. The smoke is returned through the top of the boiler. How much glass should this boiler heat when the outside temperature is 15 degrees below zero? D. K.—Mich.

Before giving a definite answer to the question of D. K. there are several matters that should be considered. In the heating of a greenhouse much depends upon the condition of the glazing, as there will be a saving of twenty-five per cent in the amount of heat required in a house with all of the cracks filled with putty and paint, as compared with one where they are open.

Much will also depend upon the amount of exposure to the prevailing cold winds. Fully ten per cent can be saved by having potting and service rooms, or other buildings, on the north and west (or whatever direction the cold winds come from). Last but not least, the area of glass that can be cared for by a given boiler will depend upon the temperature to be maintained, as twenty-five per cent more can be heated to 50 degrees than can be carried at 60 degrees.

Before determining just how large a boiler will be most economical for a given greenhouse range, it is well to know about how many times the thermometer will register the minimum outdoor temperature for which the system is planned. Thus, in the present instance, it might be feasible to use a somewhat smaller boiler if a temperature of 15 degrees below zero may be expected only five or six nights during the winter, with zero as a minimum on other nights, than when we may expect 15 degrees below zero on a dozen or fifteen nights, with 5 to 10 degrees below zero on as many more.

In a well glazed house, fairly well protected from the prevailing cold winds, we would expect to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in 20,000 square feet of glass, or 50 degrees in 25,000 square feet of glass, with the boiler described, provided the outdoor temperature does not reach 15 degrees below zero more than three or four times during the winter. This would require a good grade of coal and careful firing, and even then it would not be so economical of fuel on extremely cold nights as it would be if the amount to be heated were 5,000 square feet less, and this we would consider the maximum amount to be carried by the boiler described where 15 degrees below zero is the rule rather than the exception.

Help Save the "White Coal of Industry"

The boiling hot water resulting from condensation in your steam lines is worth money. You have paid for it in terms of coal. It contains valuable heat units. It is the "White Coal of Industry"—it should not be wasted.

And it need not be wasted. The Morehead Back-to-Boiler System will save it for you by returning it to the boiler at temperatures as high as 400 degrees Fahrenheit. It reduces coal consumption an average of 20%. At the same time your steam will be "drier" and more efficient; your production speeded up and profits increased.

Write today for facts and figures on what the Morehead System will do in your plant.

Morehead Manufacturing Company

Detroit, Mich., U. S. A.

If a boiler has only a small amount of surplus capacity, it may be somewhat wasteful of fuel on excessively cold nights. On the other hand, it may be more economical than a larger boiler on nights when the temperature ranges from 5 to 30 degrees above zero. The Kewanee boilers are quite economical when run just under their normal capacity, but, like all other boilers, if pushed much beyond this point they permit a large proportion of the heat to go out through the smokestack.

Our estimate, then, would be that under favorable conditions the boiler in question would heat from 15,000 to 20,000 square feet of glass to 60 degrees and 20,000 to 25,000 square feet to 50 degrees, the exact amount depending on the number of nights the outdoor temperature is likely to drop below zero.

The Market.

Business during the week following St. Valentine's day was brisk, with not enough stock to meet all requirements. The dark weather is partly responsible for the shortage, and also the fact that everything available was cut and used for St. Valentine's day trade. Lilies have had the heaviest call for funeral work.

Flowers for the sick are receiving a brisk call and counter trade is above normal. There are few weddings.

White lilac is being offered and is meeting with public favor. The retail price of these is $3 per dozen. Pussy willows are being featured with bulbous spring flowers. Snapdragons of handsome proportions are quickly bought up. Carnations are on the short side. Roses are not equal to the demand and the better grades are far from plentiful. Killarney is the most plentiful variety.

Good bulbous stock is offered and the variety is increasing. Dutch hyacinths, jonquils, tulips, narcissi and freesias are offered.

Pansies and calendulas offer variety. Single violets are meeting with a good call. Sweet peas are scarce, on account of the lack of sunshine. Shipping business has been good, with F. T. D. orders numerous since the holiday. These latter have been mostly for funeral work. There has been a good call for blooming stock.

Various Notes.

The flower store of Edgar Wenninghoff was damaged slightly last week, when fire broke out in the building, but no stock was damaged. Mr. Wenninghoff reports a lively demand for flowers for the ill and a good call for funeral work. Some fine Hoosier Beauties were seen here.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Max and son are visiting Mrs. Max's parents, Judge and Mrs. W. J. Vesey. W. J. & M. S. Vesey report the demand out of all proportion to the supply. They are cutting some fine Trianæ and Schroederæ cattleyas. This firm has had a large crop of tomatoes this season.

The Flick Floral Co. is showing a fine variety in spring flowers, including lilacs, rainbow freesias and fine Dutch hyacinths and pansies. They report a good demand for funeral flowers and a few orders for weddings during the week.

The Doswell Floral Co. has had a fine sale on blooming plants and a good FACTS— Miller's Pots and Bands are used by the Experimental Stations and large growers through the country. The stock used in these Pots and Bands has been tested by parties that have used our Pots and Bands for the past 3 years and they inform us that the stock we use is free from injurious chemicals. The stock we use in our Notax Paper Pots and Bands is the same stock that is used by another maker of Paper Pots and Bands, the only difference is our stock is 25 lbs. heavier, and our prices are 25% cheaper, so don't be misled by buying at a high price the same article you can buy from us at a cheaper price. We give you the advantage of our fifteen years' experience of buying paper. Write us for sample and get a sample of other makes. A simple touch of the hand will tell you which is the heavier.

out-of-town trade, especially in funeral work. Their Spencer sweet peas are especially good.

F. G. Pendergast, representing the Thompson-Norris Co., Brookville, Ind., was a visitor to the trade.

Some handsome calla lilies were featured at the store of A. J. Lanternier & Sons. Counter trade has been exceptionally good here. Bouquets and baskets were in splendid demand.

Good quality carnations are being shown at the store of the Freese Floral Co. The roses shown are worthy of mention, in the Columbia, Hoosier Beauty and Sunburst varieties. All hands were busy with funeral work and a good hospital trade. R. F. B.

Meadville, Pa.—George W. Haas & Son cater to a high-class clientele.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Business is holding up well and everything that comes into the market continues to clean up readily. Prices are firm. The demand from out of town is heavy. Roses are more plentiful, but are not in heavy supply. Carnations are plentiful and sell well. Easter lilies, callas and rubrum lilies may be had. Sweet peas are in good supply and of high quality. Southern daffodils have been added to the list of receipts of bulbous flowers. Other offerings in this line are the local forced daffodils, jonquils, single and double tulips, Dutch hyacinths and Paper White narcissi. Calendulas and snapdragons each meet with a good market. Among other offerings are orchids, single violets, baby primroses, forget-me-nots and wallflowers.

Green goods are meeting a big demand. Asparagus is not so plentiful as it was. Some of the southern growers report that they cannot cut enough to fill orders and that it will be several weeks before they will have another crop ready for the market.

Various Notes.

E. G. Gillett worked all last week at the Scottish Rite and at the Shrine February 22.

C. E. Critchell has been buying all the galax he has been able to get and believes he has a supply sufficient to last throughout the season.

The William Murphy Co. has been getting in excellent long-stemmed sweet peas.

E. Conger, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Conger, Hartwell, was waylaid and shot, perhaps fatally, at Wichita, Kan., last week. His parents have gone to him.

Among recent visitors were V. H. Thomas, Augusta, Ky.; P. B. Nye, Liberty, Ind., and H. F. Winter, Charleston, W. Va. C. H. H.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Thomas Feltham, who returned last week from overseas duty with the 6th Engineers, Third Division, has gone to New York to take a two years' course in the Botanical Gardens in the Bronx.

Permanite

Pennsylvania Growers—Attention!

Here is a letter from Geo. W. Haas & Son of Meadville, Pa.—another greenhouse establishment that found Permanite 'way ahead of Putty.

> "We have used your Permanite Glazing Cement for years and are fully convinced that it is 'way ahead of Putty or any other glazing compound, for that matter. One thing we particularly like about Permanite is the fact that one can mend glass so as to stay mended, which one cannot do, however, with putty.
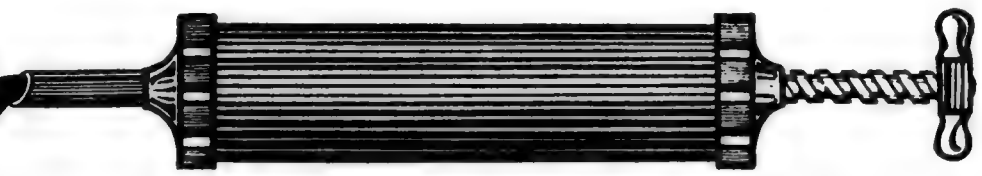
> "We like Permanite very much and recommend it whenever we have a chance to do so."



Permanite, that ever-elastic glazing cement, can be used for glazing, re-glazing or repair work of any kind; it is as good for one purpose as it is for another. On new work Permanite does away with the usual bedding—the Permanite on top the glass making an absolutely air and water-tight joint; on old work Permanite is far more economical than putty—doing the work with less material and in less than half the time—and when it comes to mending broken glass, repairs of any kind, etc., Permanite will do the work quickly, efficiently and economically.

Ever-elastic and lasting—guaranteed to outlast putty three to four times—Permanite is the ONE SURE WAY toward better, more economical and dependable glazing; write for our latest four-page folder—it will show you how—and why!

The Market.

Trade has been good of late and it has not been easy to get enough stock to go the rounds. Funeral work, which comprises the bulk of the demand, has been heavy and at times we have to fall back to the magnolia wreaths, etc. Roses are extremely scarce and there is no chance of getting any ahead, as they are cut in close bud, sometimes before they are ready. Carnations also are scarce. Lilies are far from being enough to cut any figure. Some bulbous stock is coming in, but is rather poor. Tulips are away off in quality and the growers are at a loss to know the reason. Daffodils and jonquils, while somewhat better in quality, are short in supply. Sweet peas are a little more plentiful, but are used up closely at all times. Corsage work has been looking up and it takes about all the sweet peas that are offered. Violets are coming in good shape and find ready sale. The green and fern proposition is a hard problem here.

St. Valentine's day trade was good and everyone seems to be satisfied. There also was quite a spurt on Washington's birthday.

Various Notes.

The Wilson Seed Co. is remodeling its store, having taken the whole room on a new lease for a number of years.

James McKellar was called to Greenfield on account of the death of his brother-in-law, Theo. E. Miller, who was engaged in the florists' business for a number of years but retired on account of ill health. Charles W. McKellar, of Chicago, and Oliver R. McKellar, now with the regulars at Fort Bliss, Tex., attended the funeral.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Roth expect to be back in Columbus about March 1. Mrs. Roth's health is somewhat improved.

J. M.

Laurel, Md.—J. M. Hammer & Sons, of Contee, Md., who closed their range on the outbreak of the war, are planning to rebuild here this spring.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

There was a slight drop in the local market last week, not so much because of any material increase or surplus of supply, but because of a falling off in the demand, especially for funeral work. Roses were quoted at 6 to 15 cents; carnations, 4 to 6 cents; narcissi, 2 and 3 cents; daffodils, 4 to 6 cents; violets, $1 per hundred, and sweet peas, $1 to $2 per hundred.

Various Notes.

William Cohen has been discharged from the Quartermaster's Department, at Camp Upton, L. I.

Charles Smith, of Washington street, was a business visitor in Worcester, Mass., and vicinity last week.

H. C. Neubrand has transferred real estate in East Providence to Samuel A. Carruthers, upon which he has taken a mortgage for $1,400.

Paul Frey, of Frey Bros., has returned to his duties after being confined to his house six weeks with influenza.

Sons of the late William Hay are preparing to reopen the range of greenhouses on the latter's estate at Oaklawn. They will devote their energies to rose growing, in which their father specialized.

Francis P. Barker, of Warren, has transferred two lots of land in that town to Francesco Aloia. W. H. M.

FORT SMITH, ARK.

Business conditions are better than ever before, with work of all kinds in request again. Funeral work has lessened for the first time since the early days of October last, but to take its place there is social work, which has been so quiet for the last two years. Roses, carnations and sweet peas are bringing good prices, but violets, narcissi, jonquils and, in fact, all bulbous stock, are plentiful in the open yards.

The carnations, sweet peas and other stock grown in this city by Burley C. Johnston are in excellent condition and in full crop. The florists have found that they can produce much better stock than they can buy.

The greenhouse stock of B. B. Freeman is in prime condition. Mr. Freeman has larger plantings than ever before in his six years of growing for the market. This year he made an addition to his range in the expectation of the largest business on record in this district for bedding plants. B. B. F.

North Lima, O.—John Cullar has purchased a greenhouse here.

The Market.

Business has been good. The market has cleared daily.

Roses are arriving in large supply, but carnations are short of the demand, as the cut has dropped off considerably. Bulbous stock has had a good market throughout the week. There has been no oversupply at any time. It included chiefly daffodils, tulips, lilies, narcissi and small shipments of iris. A good supply of valley moved slowly during the early days of the week, but was cleaned up later. Freesia has been well taken. Single and double violets are finding a ready market and sweet peas have a good call. The latter are none too plentiful and make $3 per hundred for the best grades. Snapdragon is available and pansies are in favor. The market is short of greens.

Various Notes.

Funeral work was in demand during the week and a number of casket covers were made up.

A. Barber made a miniature airplane, which was draped with red, white and blue chenille and garlanded with roses. The piece was twelve feet in length and eight feet wide. It was an order for the funeral of Corporal Ferdinand Zele, who died of injuries received in an aërial accident in Florida. The plane was suspended over the casket, which was draped with the flag. W. F. B.

TOLEDO, O.

J. L. Schiller, the primrose and cyclamen seed grower of this city, has begun the construction of a modern greenhouse, 44x150 feet, for the growing of primula seed exclusively. Mr. Schiller finds it impossible to grow enough of the well known Schiller strain.

Miss Bessie Spanner, sister of the congenial Max Spanner, paid a visit to her brother on her arrival from overseas, where she was active in Red Cross work behind the lines. Miss Spanner made a record much to be admired and as a reward for her excellent service has been appointed on the board of the Jewish Welfare Association and will go abroad again. J. A. L.

A Couple of Comments on Ease of Installation

E. H. Sunbury, of Wamesit, Massachusetts, writes the following:

"The Skinner System of Irrigation is the simplest and easiest to install, as well as the most practical I have ever heard of."

JOHN MERRITT,
Farmingdale, L. I., N. Y.

I have a fine collection of Dahlia roots for sale, 1100 clumps, 38 varieties of show and fancy, 21 varieties of decorative, 29 of cactus, 16 of pompon. These are all fine, not a horny one among them; all named, for cutting or garden. Cannot be beat.
Because I was sick with the "flu" and could not get out my list early enough to advertise them for quick sale, will sell the whole collection for $120.00. This is a bargain. That is putting the whole lot down to 11c each clump and most of them run from 15c up to $1.00 each in the catalog.
I also have 234 clumps of mixed ones, all good, only name lost; will sell them at 5c each clump.

WHY YOU SHOULD SECURE STOCK OF PRINCE OF WALES.

Because its wonderful color will bring your customers back time and again for more of the same flowers. Because it is an early, easy forcer, and comes in weeks ahead of America. Because for garden use the stem is tall and straight, even in the hottest weather. Because it is a grand multiplier and grows readily from bulblets. Because its gorgeous glistening flowers are, nineteen times out of twenty, picked by visitors as the most beautiful colors in my gardens, and that among two hundred varieties of gladioli. It has been called clear salmon, orange shaded pink, golden salmon, apricot salmon, and pinkish salmon, but no matter what the color description is, it IS A WONDERFUL COLOR, and is going to prove one of the biggest moneymakers on the gladiolus market within a short time. Certificate of Merit Haarlem, Holland, 1913. Large bulbs sold. Can spare a very few more half-inch planting stock, at $3.50 per 100; bulblets, $1.00 per 100, $9.00 per 1000. A large bulb free with every order of 500 or more bulblets. All postpaid. Good & Reese Co., Springfield, Ohio, bought 3000 bulblets, also dozens of other big firms that know what's what. 'Nuff said.

Gladiolus: "Mrs. Watt" has been grown from Massachusetts to California, and has made good with every florist who has given it a trial. Resembling the American Beauty rose in color, but more brilliant, it will occupy the same place among gladioli as does the American Beauty among roses. Unexcelled for forcing, and because of its distinctive beautiful shade and strong upright growth, it meets the need of every florist.

YOU Will find all the best offers all the time in The Review's Classified Advs.

The most valuable thing in the whole world is—

TIME

—are you saving YOURS?

Before you answer this question, stop and look over your ventilation, if you haven't done so lately—if you have, stop and think over it a bit. How wide are your sash? Don't guess now! Make sure! And then ponder the fact that every inch added to the width of your ventilating sash adds pounds to the weight you've got to lift with pure, unadulterated elbow grease, without adding one jot to the ventilation. Why? Listen!

The old-style, wide ventilating sash that extends far down on the roof is never opened to its full extent for two reasons—first, if it were, it would be almost equivalent to taking the roof off; second, it can't be, for the arms of the apparatus aren't long enough. Result, you do not get any more ventilation than you would with a standard AGMCO sash and—here is the point—your ventilation is not as even and satisfactory, by half, as it is the AGMCO way. And—

Here's the TIME element——

Just those few inches difference in width between the old vent sash and the AGMCO will, in a whole run, add several hundred pounds to the amount the man operating the apparatus has to lift or lower, and the heavier the load the slower he must do the trick, and the slower the longer it takes him.

Answer: Multiply the increased length of time required to operate a machine handling wide vents by the number of times they are lifted or lowered during twenty-four hours and you have the time—your time—wasted each day. Or, to put it a better way, you'll have the time—your time—saved each day by having AGMCO ventilation. Get it?

Time—the one thing that if lost is lost forever!

Are you a waster or a saver of it?

Pronounced Agem-co — AGMCO — Every House a Gem

Here is a good example of our Pipe Frame double "Y" supported greenhouse. It is 35 feet 6 inches wide and has but two rows of supports through the center. It is amply strong to stand the severest storms and snows of winter.

It is one of the most economical houses to build and also one of the most economical to heat.

The erection of this house is very simple and, with our complete plans and instructions, it can be put up with ordinary mechanics such as are found around any town.

Let us give you an estimate on the cost of this type of house.

DO IT NOW. TIME IS FLYING.

Standard 50-foot 8-inch House

(This measurement is to extreme outside of posts.)

Inside measurement is 49 feet 11 inches.

THIS house being sort of a mid-width between the narrow and wide ones, it has been extensively adopted. It is about as wide as it is safe to build, without trussing the rafter between the column and the side post. The center space between columns is 27 feet 8 inches. Between columns and posts 11 feet 6 inches. The usual bench arrangement in a house of this width is eight benches, each 4 feet 5 inches wide. The sides are 7 feet high. The height to ridge, 19 feet 9 inches.

We have a large stock of materials that we bought at pre-war prices and our selling prices are based on the cost of these materials.

When you are ready to talk business, say when and where, and we will be there.

Read these IMPORTANT ENDORSEMENTS

A. F. J. Baur, of Baur & Steinkamp, Wholesale Florists and noted Carnation Breeders, well known to REVIEW readers, Indianapolis, writes:

"Please quote us on BERTREX and EVELYN KIRTLAND in various quantities. EVELYN KIRTLAND turned out to be what the writer thought. It is the FINEST PINK in EXISTENCE. BERTREX is an unusually good white. Both should become leaders."

James F. Rychlik, Florist and Grower, Painesville, Ohio, writes:

"Please let me know if you can let me have 2500 GRETCHEN ZANG. I had spikes of GRETCHEN ZANG over five feet high and with eighteen to twenty-six blossoms."

Brief Descriptions and Prices:

GRETCHEN ZANG. Beautiful, soft, melting shade of pink, blending into deep salmon. Large bulbs, $5.00 per 100; ½-1 in. diam., $2.50 per 100.

HERADA. Blooms of immense size—a new color, clear, glistening mauve, as brilliant as a poppy. Large bulbs, $5.00 per 100; ½-1 in. diam., $2.50 per 100.

BERTREX. Stands right at the top of all existing white varieties; flowers of great substance and of the size and form of America. Large bulbs, $6.00 per 100.

EVELYN KIRTLAND. Difficult to describe in words the beauty of this variety. Beautiful shade of rosy pink, darker at the edges, fading to shell pink at the center. Spikes GIANT in height. $8.00 per 100.

Prompt delivery. F. O. B. here. 25 bulbs at 100 rate.

All leading standard varieties. List for asking.

GROWING ASPARAGUS IN SLAT HOUSES

As the growing of asparagus in slat houses is confined to certain comparatively narrow regions of the country, the methods employed are unfamiliar to many florists. Yet a large proportion of the supply of asparagus is produced in slat structures; so the subject surely is of general interest.

WHEN the slat-house culture of ornamental asparagus is under consideration, one of the first questions that occur to the mind is something like this: What is the likelihood of immunity from frost, or the probable amount of loss from frost, in the asparagus-growing districts of Florida, southern California and elsewhere? That is a big and treacherous question, liable to lead to misunderstandings, and a definite answer in a few words would be impossible. In Florida, for instance, not only the state's 400 miles of length and its half-dozen degrees of latitude must be taken into account, but the distance of the respective establishments from the coast and from the warm ocean currents must also be considered.

When Frosts Are a Menace.

Growers who have had many years of experience in the production of asparagus, principally A. plumosus, in the vicinity of Palm Beach, Fla., state that in all those years the crop has not been injured by frost—not even during the so-called cold waves of the lenient Florida type. Palm Beach, however, not only is nearly 100 miles south of the center of the state, but nestles close to the seashore at a point where the Gulf Stream also is an especially near neighbor. Of the 150 acres, more or less, of asparagus in the state, the larger proportion is north of Palm Beach. Orlando, Apopka and Altamonte Springs, where the industry is carried on extensively, are thirty-five to fifty miles north of the center of the state. In that latitude frosts are not infrequent, and occasionally they are severe enough, no doubt, to cause plainly appreciable damage.

However, where the frosts are a real menace to the business, it would seem quite feasible to have "heater protection," such as is used for citrus groves. P. H. Rolfs, director of the College of Agriculture at the University of Florida, advises the use of such heaters anywhere north of the center of the state, in addition to the shelter provided by the slat houses, which, he says, should be so constructed as to cast "about one-half shade."

Improvement of Slat Houses.

It is also reasonable to hope, in view of the continued development of this phase of the asparagus business, that the slat houses of the near future will be so improved as to serve their purpose more effectively, both in the regulation of shade and the exclusion of frost. In fact, it is already reported that a Florida grower expects soon to secure a patent on a new system of slat-house construction which will go far toward attaining the double object, defense both from the sun and from cold. At any rate, here is a fine opportunity for inventive skill.

Professor Rolfs, already quoted, says that exact data with reference to the extent of the asparagus industry in Florida are difficult to obtain, but he estimates that there are in the state probably two dozen more or less important asparagus growers, the areas of whose plantings vary from two to ten acres. He has visited several of the slat-house ranges and says that, in most cases, the cultivation is simple, being confined mainly to running over the surface with a wheel hoe, and in some cases the plantings are set so closely that no cultivation is practicable. The gray sandy loam, Professor Rolfs continues, is best adapted to this crop, although some asparagus is grown on the pure white sand that is usually considered useful only for pineapple growing. Plants set on this character of soil need to have much more fertilizer than those grown on the gray sandy soils. Soils that are likely to become water-logged during the rainy season are not favorable to the production of Asparagus plumosus. Professor Rolfs, unlike some other authorities on the subject, recommends subirrigation as the best method of watering.

The Season of Slow Growth.

The resting season of asparagus, says Professor Rolfs, begins usually in May. This likewise is the principal season of cultivation. Fertilization generally is practiced later, or about the time that the rainy season is closing. Where the field has been given careful attention, plumes may be taken off in the early fall, but of course the winter plumes bring the best prices.

C. J. Ohmer, of West Palm Beach, Fla., has at present a little over seven acres of asparagus, all protected from the direct sunshine by lath sheds, and all watered by an overhead system of irrigation. The water for this sprinkling system is supplied by pumps capable of delivering 20,000 gallons per hour. The pumps are operated by engines which have a combined capacity of twenty horsepower. As Mr. Ohmer undoubtedly is one of the most successful of asparagus growers, his ideas on the subject should be of great value. The Review, therefore, secured from him the cultural directions

Asparagus Thrives Finely in Such a House as This.

which form the remainder of this article.

The soil used for the growing of this green in Florida, says Mr. Ohmer, varies greatly, running from a coarse sand with little humus to one of fine sand with a great deal of humus. I believe that a soil about halfway between the two would be the best, all things considered. Of course, it is well to enrich the soil as much as you can. There is nothing to beat manure for this purpose, but, as barnyard manure is scarce in Florida, the prepared sheep and cattle manures may have to be substituted.

Building and Planting.

The slat houses usually are supported on posts spaced from 12x12 feet to as much as 16x16 feet. These are joined together by heavy boards and above them are lighter stringers, to which the laths or slats are nailed. This shedding is now quite expensive to build. Some years ago, when it was used to shade pineapples, it could be erected for about $300 per acre. Just before the war the cost had risen to around $700 and now it would be close to $1,000 per acre.

The plants usually are set out on the level ground and spaced from 12x12 inches to 18x18 inches. It is always necessary to install an irrigation system, for while we have an annual rainfall of from four to five feet, most of this comes in a few weeks in the spring and fall, and between times the weather is likely to be pretty dry. One of the overhead systems of irrigation must be used, as it is impossible on our sandy soil to use the flooding system that is sometimes used in California. It is easy to get an abundant supply of good water, either from a nearby lake or from shallow wells. A good pumping plant is essential. However, some of the growers use windmills, supplementing these with a small pumping outfit in case of need. The installation of a good irrigation system is also somewhat expensive, especially just now. The cost before the war was upward of $300 per acre and now is considerably in excess of that.

Few of the growers do any stringing, as most of them devote all of their plants to sprays, a fact which would seem to show that the sprays are the more profitable.

Two Pests That Need Attention.

The asparagus plant is attacked by a number of diseases and pests. The worst pests are the red spider and the cutworm. It is a case of constant work to keep these down. In dry weather, especially, it is remarkable how quickly the red spiders increase in numbers, doing a great deal of damage. The spiders are kept in control by spraying and the cutworms by poisoned baits.

This plant seems to grow best in the spring and fall months and least of all during the summer. This is a good thing in reality, as during the summer there is the least demand. Of course, a greater or less number of sprays are coming on at all times of the year, but with the approach of the cooler nights of the fall and winter there is a great improvement, not only in the number of sprays, but also in the quality.

There are undoubtedly about 150 acres devoted to the culture of this green in Florida, and I should not be surprised if the total went considerably over that. Were it not for the amount of capital that must be invested, the acreage would be a good deal larger.

Expenses and Possible Returns.

When you consider the heavy cost of shedding and the fact that the depreciation amounts to close to twenty per cent per year, you have an idea of one of the heavy items of expense. The labor costs also are away up at present and it requires a large number of men to keep even a moderately good-sized place in condition. With all of these things taken into consideration, it is necessary to average close to $2 per hundred sprays to make a profit sufficiently large to compensate for the risks you are taking.

At present the northern demand appears to be about equal to the supply, and at times there is a surplus, especially in the fall of the year. But as the flower business increases in volume every year, there doubtless will be room for a greater production in the future.

Altogether, it is a good business, says Mr. Ohmer in conclusion, and after you have mastered it in its various details and discovered how best to treat your plants and handle your sprays so as to get them to market in the best possible condition, you bid fair to make a satisfactory profit on your investment. But, as in everything else, there are many slips, and only those who give the strictest attention to the small details are likely to succeed.

BOOSTING OUR BUSINESS.

Florists are becoming great believers in the use of printers' ink. Indeed, several have established their own monthly or periodical publications, for the exploitation of their stock and service. The latest of these is the Flower and Plant Bulletin just established by the Great Falls Floral Co., Great Falls, Mont. H. L. Birun is the proprietor. The first issue was dated February, 1919. It is a 4-page folder gotten up in daily newspaper style, the pages nearly as large as those of The Review. It is announced that the publication will be distributed bimonthly or oftener, as circumstances justify.

The publication contains numerous suggestions for the care of plants and the use of flowers, but the principal feature of the pioneer issue is an explanation of how Great Falls undertakers solicit and handle orders for funeral flowers on a commission basis. It is evident that there is no harmony between the Great Falls Floral Co. and the undertakers of that city. There are four florists in Great Falls, all subscribers to The Review.

NOT KNOCKING ANYBODY.

After the protest of the S. A. F. against Quarantine No. 37 had been prepared, the Federal Horticultural Board sent out the statement published in The Review for February 13. Before presenting the trade's protest to the Secretary of Agriculture March 1 a supplement was added taking issue with some of the assertions made by Dr. Marlatt. The supplement concludes:

"Nearly all of the departmental letters conclude with the following paragraph: 'The quarantine and regulations as finally adopted represent the best judgment of the Department.'

"We admit and admire this straightforward statement. The Federal Horticultural Board certainly used its own judgment. It was prosecutor, jury and judge, and made these regulations regardless of the attitude of the trade and regardless of what the possible disturbance to the horticultural industry finally would be, or what the enthusiastic amateur must give up.

"Finally, we contend that much of the support given to the board has been brought about by an unjust treatment of this subject in information which the entomologists, pathologists and allied scientists give to the general public and laymen. They quote the ravages done by imported pests. They tell them of the European corn borer, the alfalfa weevil, gypsy moth, chestnut blight, pine tree rust, hickory borer and many others, including strictly American as well as foreign pests, but they do not explain how few of these and other pests they name have been brought into the country by horticultural importations and which of them came here in connection with other material or under conditions entirely foreign to the nursery or florists' business.

"The florists, nurserymen and the public are thus misinformed; they are led to believe, probably unintentionally, that the imports of the nurserymen and the florists are responsible for each and every pest we have, and that by closing the door to these imports further trouble is ended.

"In a letter sent by Mr. Christie to the Honorable Isaac Bacharach, and by Mr. Palmer to the Honorable Joseph M. Frelinghuysen, which are in reply to certain data given to said representatives by one of their constituents, both Mr. Christie and Mr. Palmer mention the cotton boll weevil as a striking illustration of damage by foreign pests, but they fail to tell these gentlemen that horticultural imports (which was the subject under discussion) were not to blame for the introduction of this pest, but their reference to it, in connection with the subject discussed; conveys to these two gentlemen, as it would to any layman, the impression that the importation of plants brought the cotton boll weevil into this country, while the facts are that this pest simply migrated from wild cotton in Mexico across the border into Texas."

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

A PATRIOTIC APPEAL.

The Federal Board for Vocational Education has brought to my attention the fact that there are a great many disabled soldiers who are finding trouble in getting employment.

The business men of the country are not responding in the patriotic way that they should. If each firm would endeavor to make a position, if only for one man, it would solve the question, beyond a doubt.

Greenhouse work would offer opportunities in many cases, particularly in some cases where the men have been doing heavy work in the past and are disabled and only able to do light work. Many of these men have been hard workers and any work that they could do would probably be well done.

Jerome B. Scott, Supervisor of Placement of District No. 3, located in Philadelphia, has handed me some memoranda, and among them are the following points:

In reference to the kind of work wanted for the men and the class of men that are disabled, I desire to state that many of the men we are coming in contact with are fellows who have done strenuous work before enlistment and who, because of healing wounds and other minor disabilities, are unable to take up this kind of work but require jobs of a lighter nature. In some cases they require sitting-down jobs, and in other cases the men have been gassed and require outside jobs. As I stated the other day, work in your line is particularly well suited for this class of men. They will not be men of any great industrial experience; they will not be men of any particular skill.

It is the hale and hearty chap who had lived a rough and strenuous life prior to enlistment, who, because of this rugged, enthusiastic spirit, was the man who managed to get himself in the front lines and in the first dash over the top and, in many cases, the one most ready to do the seemingly foolhardy things, whom we have to deal with. The reward for this spirit of dash and bravery is a weakened constitution, for a time.

It is here that we are appealing to the employer to follow up his splendid work and backing that he gave to these fellows during the war and to now do his "after-war bit" and continue to back him up until he is established again in civil life and is self-reliant.

Do you know that many of these fine fellows that you see pictured on the screen leaving the transports, are roaming the streets without jobs and compelled to go to the Red Cross, Rotary Club and other institutions to ask for a bed and a meal?

The hero that returns to a home and loved ones is truly fortunate. How about the fellow that bared his breast to the Hun and returned to these shores wounded and cheered for a day, but realizes upon the following day that the cheers have subsided?

A great problem confronts the nation at this time; that is, the problem of unemployment, and the greatest element in this unemployment is the wounded man.

Please don't offer us ten-dollar-a-week jobs. Can YOU live on ten dollars a week?

These fine fellows do not want charity—they simply want a chance to make an honest and fair living—to make good.

It seems to me that this should appeal to those among our profession who have any patriotism about them, and I feel that it is the duty of everyone to do their "after-war bit."

S. S. Pennock.

THE SLACKER NOT NEEDED.

I saw a small paragraph in The Review of February 20 that seems to me to be a keynote. It was: "What the trade needs is not cheaper labor, or more labor, but increased production on the part of those now employed."

If a rose grower finds a sucker thriving in his bench, the first thing he does is to cut it out, for its space is too valuable. The same space that will grow suckers will grow roses. There is no space for slackers.

The florist who employs a man who does not see the beauty of flowers—one of God's greatest gifts to man—who does not put his whole soul and heart into his work, has made a mistake, for with such a man he will not get as much work accomplished, nor done as well, as with one who loves his work and the flowers for what they are.

So now, Mr. Employee, study the life of flowers, their beauty, their good as a word of cheer to the sick, or a word of sympathy to the bereft. Coöperate with your employer, grow the goods the public wants, and they will pay the price. Then your employer will feel that you can earn more for him and he will be free to pay you more for your services.

The man who takes any kind of a job and does not improve his time is as the sucker on the rose, a slacker, and we have all learned to hate the word slacker.

NEBRASKA STATE FLORISTS.

The Nebraska State Florists' Society held its annual meeting February 25 at Lincoln, with a good attendance. The afternoon was devoted to a floral display at the Commercial Club, at which C. H. Frey, of Lincoln, carried away the prizes and a diploma for the best display of plants and cut flowers.

A banquet was served at the Lincoln hotel and the evening was devoted to a business session. J. J. Hess read an interesting paper on "Why We Should Support the F. T. D." Edward Williams talked on "How to Make a Small Greenhouse Establishment Pay," and C. H. Frey on "Seasonable Suggestions." Among the visitors was Philip J. Foley, of Chicago, who spoke of various things and congratulated the society on the work done in this state.

Officers were elected as follows: C. H. Frey, of Lincoln, president; W. J. Rodgers, of Blair, vice-president; O. H. Enslow, of Lincoln, secretary and treasurer.

A committee was appointed, consisting of Lewis Henderson, Edward Williams and C. H. Green, to see to getting a larger appropriation for the floral display this year. The secretary was also instructed to send a telegram to Nebraska representatives at Washington, urging them to help, if possible, to rescind the plant embargo. A vote of thanks was ordered sent to W. F. Gude, of Washington, D. C., for the untiring efforts he has made in the interest of the florists of the country. A vote of thanks to the officers of the S. A. F., for the great work they have done in advertising flowers, was ordered.

The morning following the sessions was devoted to visiting greenhouses. In the afternoon the society met at the capitol, where the state legislature was in session, and succeeded in having killed a bill which was intended to permit cemeteries to do commercial business.

Canandaigua, N. Y.—Edward Sick looks for a large demand in annuals such as petunias, salvias and the like, owing to the scarcity of geraniums. He is governing himself accordingly.

Lima, O.—A greenhouse to cost in the neighborhood of $5,000 will be built at the state hospital, near here, if a bill now before the Ohio legislature is passed. The building has been recommended by the state supervisor.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

STARTING VEGETABLE PLANTS.

While there may be some falling off in the number of so-called war gardens this year, there is bound to be a heavy call for vegetable plants of all kinds, as hundreds of thousands of those who have got in contact with mother earth for the first time and have found out how superior home-grown produce is to that purchased at the corner grocery will want to grow their own vegetables again. This great world war will give horticulture a tremendous boom, as people are just beginning to appreciate the fact that practically all we have in this world comes either from the soil itself or below it in the form of minerals and metals.

Now is a good time to start such vegetables as tomatoes; celery, of the Paris Golden type; cabbages, of which Early Jersey Wakefield and Copenhagen Market are splendid early sorts; Kronk's Erfurt and Snowball cauliflower; Big Boston, Wayahead, White Tennisball, Curled Simpson and other lettuces, and Brussels sprouts. Where purchasers have a coldframe they will buy cucumber and melon plants in pots and, as a good many like to produce vegetables fit for show, they will purchase seedlings of Ailsa Craig, Gigantic Gibraltar and Prizetaker onions and Lyon or Musselburg leeks. Peppers and eggplants will be better if sown a couple of weeks later, at which time also a further sowing of tomatoes, like Stone, Dwarf Stone, John Baer, Early Jewel and Earliana, can be made.

Small growers now demand a greater assortment of started vegetables and last season pots of New Zealand spinach, Lima beans, parsley and even Globe artichokes were called for. The gardens are sure to contain a great many more flowers than a year ago and florists find the demand for plants of these much greater this season.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

DAHLIAS UNDER GLASS.

The number of dahlias from under glass is not great, but from experiments tried on a moderate scale I am positive that there is some money to be had from dahlias started under glass and grown in beds or benches. I prefer plants with a single shoot, which, as it grows, will need secure staking. The soil should not be too rich or the plants will become gross. They like a generous compost outdoors, but not indoors. When they start flowering I find that a mulch of old manure helps them considerably. The night temperature for dahlias should not exceed 50 degrees and they like plenty of ventilation. Started now, they will bloom in May and June and should give a nice lot of flowers for Memorial day. Any varieties can be grown under glass and, where fancy flowers are desired, some disbudding may be necessary. Allow the plants grown to single stems 15x18 inches. Perhaps you have an empty greenhouse and a supply of dahlias. Why not give them a trial?

SPIRÆAS.

Heat and an abundance of moisture at the roots are what all the spiræas or astilbes need. Plants for Easter should be started before this time. They can be flowered within eight weeks, but are better if they are kept a little cooler as the flowers open. Pink varieties, like Peach Blossom and Queen Alexandra, need a couple of weeks longer than such whites as Gladstone and astilboides to develop. Spiræas are not in normal supply this season and those who have stock grown in their fields at home are fortunate indeed. My experience has been that left-over forced clumps, if divided, planted out in moist ground and left a couple of seasons, make splendid forcing stock, superior to any we import from Holland.

CANNAS.

It is still early to start up the cannas, but look over the roots and cut away any decaying portions. You can at any time cut up your stock into single eyes ready for starting. On varieties you may be short of I would advise buying early, as stocks are none too abundant. Cannas and zonale geraniums are our two most valuable flowering plants for bedding purposes, and there is bound to be a largely increased demand for each the coming season.

SINGLE VIOLETS.

The weather has been so warm that violets have not flowered so satisfactorily as usual and, unless some have been grown in frames, few flowers will be available for the coming Easter. In order to keep the houses cooler, the glass should be shaded and end doors as well as ventilators should be left open both day and night when the weather permits. An application of liquid manure will be of material benefit to the plants. A good many runners can be easily separated from the plants and these will root readily either in an ordinary cutting bench, or if placed direct in flats in a compost of light, sandy loam.

YOUNG CYCLAMENS.

The August and September sown cyclamens should now be well established in their flats and ready for a shift into 2½-inch or 3-inch pots. An equal proportion of fibrous loam and flaky leaf-mold with some sand added makes an excellent compost for the first potting. Leave the little bulbs just showing above the soil when potted. Place the pots on a warm bench where a little bottom heat comes up and the temperature of the house should be 55 degrees at night. Some advise placing in a cold house after the first potting, but far better results will be had when a fairly warm house is allotted them.

MARGUERITES.

The marguerites, both yellow and white, will furnish an ample supply of nice, succulent cuttings now. These will soon throw some flowers, which must be pinched out as they appear. If you wait much longer it will be difficult to secure suitable cuttings, as they become harder and are practically all clustered with buds.

Yellow marguerites, whether in beds, boxes or pots, will from this time on require more plant food. This can be furnished in the form of top-dressings of fine bone or liquid manure. Flowers develop rapidly now and the plants will need going over every day.

There is a tremendous variation in the types of yellow marguerites. Some make rank growth and hardly bloom at all. Of the others a striking difference will be noted in the habits and form and color of the flower. Select stock for another year from the best types you have and these will realize much higher prices in the market. It was at one time thought that it was absolutely necessary to cramp the roots of yellow marguerites if winter flowers were wanted, but it has been clearly proved that plants in benches and beds planted early will far outbloom stock in pots and carry flowers vastly superior in quality.

SALVIA SPLENDENS.

Seedlings of Salvia splendens germinate quickly and cuttings are easily rooted. While it seems early still to start propagation, if nice 4-inch stock is desired toward the end of April, sow the seeds or insert the cuttings now. These early cuttings or seedlings can go into 2½-inch pots when ready, get one pinch and later be transferred into 4-inch pots. Of course, propagation is possible as late as the end of April, but an earlier start will give heavier and better plants.

COMPETING WITH JAPAN

HOME-GROWN LILY BULBS.

Experiments with Seed.

In early July the U. S. Department of Agriculture sent out some preliminary notices regarding Easter lily work, with suggestions regarding how the florist might produce his own bulbs of superior merit in one year's time from seed.

It seems desirable again to call the attention of florists, some of whom may have an opportunity to visit Washington between now and Easter, to the investigations being conducted in the greenhouses at Arlington Farm, near Washington.

The stocks that are now of interest are as follows:

I. A lot of 500 bulbs which were grown outdoors last season are being forced. They went through the winter of 1917-18 outdoors and had no artificial irrigation during the summer. These bulbs are the smallest of the seedling bulbs, germinated in the summer of 1916. They were small when potted, all being under florists' sizes and ranging from 9 to 15 centimeters (3½ to 6 inches) in circumference.

II. A few seedlings forced last year produced a crop of seed and are being forced again this year.

III. Seed sown the middle of July is now in 3-inch pots and twenty to forty per cent of it will blossom in June.

IV. Seed sown in December is now in thumb pots.

V. A few plants of two lots of the Creole lily of the south are being forced also. One lot had been growing undisturbed for the last forty-five years, until last autumn.

VI. A few seedlings produced with candidum pollen are in 3-inch pots.

Time to Plant Now.

Attention should be called again to the desirability, for those who have facilities and an opportunity, of starting seedling generations of Easter lilies this spring. The seed thus produced, if well handled, can be sown in July and by the following June a few blossoms will appear, but not in commercial quantity. In September, 1920, if well handled, sixty per cent will be large enough to force for the following Easter.

For seed production, the florist should select the best plants he can find and probably should cross plants which have the greatest degree of similarity, in order to arrive at as large a degree of uniformity as possible in the progeny. There will be, in any event, diversity enough, but no more diversity than is found in any similar batch of imported stocks.

On the other hand, one would expect a greater degree of uniformity if the plants were selfed. The first generation produced by the department and the ones described under I, are individual progeny of selfed plants. If such a generation of selfed progeny is produced it is quite likely that the matter of uniformity can be advanced in the next generation by crossing from the selfed progeny the plants which meet the grower's ideal of perfection most closely. It is also possible that uniformity may be still further advanced by using Lilium candidum pollen. Such a "cross" has in the past resulted in the production of nothing but Lilium longiflorum, the seed parent, which has led breeders to think that we have in effect in such "crosses" a parthenogenetic seed production. If this is true it would seem that uniformity of progeny might be advanced by deliberately using such pollen as will result in seed production, but not in fertilization. Of course, the question of maintenance of vigor is to be considered, but on this point we have no practical information.

Results May Vary.

This matter, however, is in all probability for the breeder's consideration. The florist will depend on the ordinary process of pollination, which will give plants satisfactory from a florist's standpoint, although they may vary in stature, but such variation is as useful as the uses of the Easter lily are varied. It is really questionable whether close uniformity is imperative in florists' stocks of Easter lily.

There is need, however, for the breeder's attention being directed to the possibilities here. The department's seedlings produced with candidum pollen are now in 3-inch pots and are expected to blossom in June. There are only a few of them, but they are at present more uniform than any lot we have raised and do not differ from ordinary longiflorum seedlings.

Our outdoor plantings of lily bulbs are in apparently perfect condition, although planted earlier than we would have planted had cold storage facilities been available for holding the bulbs dormant. The possibility of home production of Easter lily bulbs is forcing itself upon us more clearly as time goes on and we are looking with considerable confidence to the water-tempered climate of the Chesapeake and adjacent Atlantic coast regions, as holding promise for this production.

Florists who wish to see these seedling stocks can call at 220 Fourteenth street, S. W., where arrangements can be made to visit the Arlington Farm greenhouses, or, if more convenient, can take the electric line near the government postoffice, changing at Arlington Junction for the farm, where either Mr. Butterfield or Mr. Myer will show them the stocks. David Griffiths.

The illustration shows Formosa Lilium longiflorum in an exposed border in the District of Columbia. This clump has been undisturbed for two years. There is no better border lily for this region. The bulbs were discarded florists' stock. The photograph was taken in June, 1918. Four bulbs were originally planted in a cluster. When dug in October, 1918, there were ten forcing size bulbs and about forty which could have been grown to forcing size by one year of good culture.

Forced Formosa Lily Bulbs Blooming Two Years After Planting Out.

DAYLIGHT-SAVING LAW.

"Early to bed, early to rise, makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise."

So said old Benjamin Franklin, scientist and publisher, long before the daylight-saving plan was thought of. Florists last year agreed with the sage and will no doubt be pleased to learn that the same time change will be made this year, beginning March 30.

As last year, the hands of the clock will be set forward at 2 a. m., legally, though it is not likely that many citizens will remain awake until that "wee sma'" hour just for the satisfaction of seeing their timepiece go forward exactly as stipulated by law. The common practice, no doubt, will be to perform the ceremony before retiring on the night of March 29.

THAT INCOME TAX MATTER.

Florists have been doing great business the last few months, and many of them will need to heed the call of the Bureau of Internal Revenue to fill out and return the income tax blanks which have been issued and will be issued in the near future.

The blanks must be filed before March 15. If an individual fails to comply with the law, there are heavy penalties which may be imposed, even though the failure is not due to wrong intention. For those who "fail" to comply with the law, a fine of not more than $1,000 is possible; for those who "willfully refuse" to comply, the penalties are a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment for one year, or both.

Blanks for incomes under $5,000 have been out for some time and those for larger incomes are making their appearance. Blanks for the use of corporations have not been distributed.

Banks in the smaller towns, and stores and newspapers in the larger cities, as well as banks, have established bureaus where information regarding the filling out of blanks may be obtained. It is necessary for the average man, without a legal education, to have expert assistance to fill out correctly the complicated paper.

Single persons without dependents, who have an annual income of $1,000 or over, and married persons or others with dependents and incomes over $2,000, are taxable under the new law.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

The Market.

Plenty of good stock is on the market and business continues good. Carnations are in their prime, and the market is generally cleaned up every day. The bright, mild weather keeps the rose crops in good condition, but there does not seem to be any surplus. Violets and sweet peas are meeting a limited demand. Spring flowers sell readily. This includes daffodils, calendulas, tulips and snapdragon. Greens are scarce. Cinerarias lead in plants.

An event of February 19 was the marriage of Miss Marjorie Fountain, daughter of Herbert M. Fountain, of Wyoming Park, to John Beverwyk, also of Wyoming. The couple went to Detroit and Cincinnati on a honeymoon trip.

A Florists' Club meeting was held February 21 at the Freyling & Mendels office. An entertainment, arranged by the ladies, proved enjoyable. A. F. C.

THE TRADE'S PROTEST

THE TRADE'S POSITION.

What the Committee Represents.

This committee represents the Society of American Florists, an organization with a national charter, having an active, associate, and affiliated membership of over 22,000 of the leading florists, flower and plant growers in every state of the Union.

We come to you, Mr. Secretary, to personally protest against the arbitrary action of the Federal Horticultural Board (which is under your jurisdiction) in prohibiting, after June 1 next, the importation of practically all plants, plant products, and raw materials required for the conduct and maintenance of our business and in placing such restrictions on the further importation of other essentials as to make their importation almost impossible; bringing about a situation which is without a parallel in the history of enlightened nations.

The Plant Quarantine Act was passed by Congress August 20, 1912, without the great body of florists, nurserymen and seedsmen even knowing of its inception. This act and its amendments gave said board great powers to which, if they were used in accordance with the word and spirit in which Congress intended them to be used, we would offer no objection, as proper restrictions could only benefit the country as a whole, including all horticultural interests, but the ruling made by your board was, undoubtedly, influenced:

Questionable Influences.

First—By pressure brought to bear upon it by certain scientific bodies and other organizations not in touch with commercial life and with unwarranted fear they have pictured to themselves some hundreds of dangerous insect pests, rusts, blights and other diseases, scurrying to our shores, bent on devouring or destroying the crops and forests of our land.

Second—While this committee has not seen the numerous letters which we are told are on file in possession of the Federal Horticultural Board from various nurseries, urging that this quarantine be established, we are in possession of the following facts: On the same day on which the Holland Nurserymen's Association received a cablegram notifying them that Quarantine No. 37 had received your signature, four different firms in Boskoop, Holland, each received a cablegram from one of the very few nurserymen who, in open session, endorsed this prohibition act of the Federal Horticultural Board in which said firm asked for a quotation on 100,000 evergreens and conifers, which is conclusive proof that this concern was not giving its support for the purpose of guarding the country from insect pests. It was ready to let the country take the chance by importing evergreens by the hundred thousand before the doors were closed—simply petty profiteering at the expense of the public. This committee does not wish to even insinuate that all of these endorsements received by letter were prompted by selfish motives, but this committee, and the public, should be permitted to see and pass on these endorsements, the same as on evidence given in open session, in order that it might point out to the board where selfish or profiteering interests prompted such endorsement.

Exceptions to the Board's Ruling.

First—That the board is unjust to the horticultural trade as well as to the public in making such sweeping restrictions as are ordered in Quarantine No. 37; that the actual conditions existing do not, and dangers from past invasion did not, warrant such drastic measures; that if restrictions are known to be necessary against the importation of stock from certain countries or sources, it should have specified the country or source from which such danger threatened and not unjustly close the doors of the entire world to the American people.

The board's action should have been taken in accordance with Section 7 of the Plant Quarantine Act, which says:

That, whenever, in order to prevent the introduction into the United States of any tree, plant, or fruit disease or of any injurious insect, new to or not heretofore widely prevalent or distributed within and throughout the United States, the Secretary of Agriculture shall determine that it is necessary to forbid the importation into the United States of any class of nursery stock or of any other class of plants, fruits, vegetables, roots, bulbs, seeds, or other plant products from a country or locality where such disease or insect infestation exists he shall promulgate such determination, specifying the country and locality and the class of nursery stock or other class of plants, fruits, vegetables, roots, bulbs, seeds or other plant products which, in his opinion, should be excluded.

Second—Item No. 1 in Quarantine No. 37 permits the importation of the following bulbs: Lily bulbs, lily of the valley, narcissus, hyacinths, tulips and crocus when free from sand, soil or earth.

We admit that these six varieties of bulbs, grown principally in Holland, France, Japan and Germany, can be brought in without dangerous insect or other pests, but the board fails to explain why more than a hundred other varieties of bulbs, corms, rhizomes and tubers, which are of precisely the same nature and just as immune to pests and diseases, are prohibited. Why does the board exclude these? They are part and parcel of every general seedsman's stock; they are a source of revenue to the seedsman either in the sale of the bulbs or the cut flowers, and a source of enjoyment and pleasure to the amateur.

Why Exclude These?

We insist upon it that we are entitled to intelligent enlightenment on why these equally harmless bulbs are excluded. Why can a crocus or hyacinth come in and why must the equally innocent gladiolus, snowdrop or beautiful Spanish iris be excluded?

The following is a partial list of the most important of the items referred to, but there are many others of the same nature:

Amaryllis,	Fritillarias,
Anemones,	Gladioli,
Tuberous Begonias,	Gloxinias,
Caladiums,	Incarvillea
Cannas,	Iris,
Colchicums,	Ixias,
Crown Imperials,	Montbretias
Dahlias,	Oxalis,
Dielytras,	Richardias,
Eucharis,	Tigridias.

If the board actually knows any one of these to be dangerous, let it specify which and where it comes from and exclude such; if they are all too dangerous to permit to come into the country exclude them all, but, if their ideas are only general that a dangerous insect might at some time accompany such a bulb, the board has no right to unnecessarily meddle with such a vast interest as the bulb trade.

The Care of Buds and Grafts.

Third—Item 2 in Quarantine Act. No. 37 permits the entry of stocks, cuttings, scions and buds of fruits for propagating, when free of soil, sand or earth. The admission of these economic items is just and necessary, but if no danger exists in bringing in these fruit stocks for budding or grafting purposes or the necessary buds, scions or cuttings to graft or bud upon these stocks, or if it

A summary of the protest of the S. A. F. committee on tariff and legislation presented to the Secretary of Agriculture at Washington, March 1.

THE HEARING

A joint committee of the Society of American Florists and the American Association of Nurserymen went to Washington Saturday, March 1, to ask Secretary of Agriculture D. F. Houston to raise the quarantine on importing plants and bulbs that is to go into effect June 1.

The meeting was arranged by Senator William M. Calder, of New York, and Representative Bacharach, of New Jersey. The senator was absent, owing to an important session in the Senate, but the congressman met the committee and escorted its members to the Department of Agriculture.

The representatives of the Nurserymen's Association were Thomas B. Meehan, Curtis Nye Smith, W. W. Hoopes, Henry T. Moon, Charles Perkins, Jr., and Orlando Harrison. The S. A. F. was represented by J. D. Eisele, Charles H. Totty, C. B. Knickman and Frank R. Pierson.

A newspaper man, who is familiar with these audiences, told the committee that if they got fifteen minutes' hearing they might consider themselves fortunate.

Secretary Houston received the committee cordially. He was presented with a typewritten petition, asking that the quarantine on imports of plants and bulbs, to go into effect, be annulled. The principal points in the petition were outlined by Curtis Nye Smith, for the nurserymen, and by Frank R. Pierson, for the florists, the two speakers working in harmony. The secretary listened attentively, asked some questions and gave the committee the impression that their case is hopeful. The interview lasted thirty minutes. No time has been set for the decision. Phil.

is possible to watch these stocks and guard against pests and diseases being distributed by them, why does this same rule not also hold good on the fruit tree which has been budded or grafted? We have a right to know why they permit the introduction of one and exclude the other. According to the department's records during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1918, which was an off year, no less than 3,515,765 fruit trees were imported into the United States. They were required in our orchards last year and many more will be required this year, next year and in many more years. Now, if these stocks can be brought in safely, why must every other deciduous shrub and tree be excluded? All of these, the stock for budding or grafting upon, the fruit tree itself as well as the ornamental tree or shrub, are all imported in a dormant state, without foliage, and the roots are free of soil. What pest or disease affects the deutzia, forsythia, hydrangea, honeysuckle, magnolia, mock orange, lilac, smoke-tree, spiræa, weigela, snowball and hundreds of other beautiful shrubs which now adorn our gardens? We seek enlightenment from the board. We want to know where the difference exists between these and the fruit stocks which also are shrubs? Where is the danger in the one and not in the other?

Rose Plants.

Fourth—Item 3 in Quarantine Act No. 37 permits the importation of rose stocks for propagation, including Manetti, multiflora, briar rose and Rosa rugosa. These new regulations, while permitting the import of rose stocks for grafting and budding, prohibit the importation of named varieties; this in spite of the fact that the possibility of introducing or not introducing insects or diseases is the same on one as it is on the other.

According to the department's records, there were imported during the off year ending June 30, 1918, 1,056,000 named roses and 3,500,000 rose stocks. These were probably sent to every state in the Union and we cannot find a single record where a shipment of these plants was held up for quarantine by any inspector, which shows that this stock was apparently clean and safe to distribute.

We contend that when the Federal Horticultural Board makes a rule on roses, this ruling must be the same on the stock as on the finished product, as one is precisely a counterpart of the other, and the board has no right to distinguish between them.

To protect itself legally, the board will no doubt contend that it proposes to let the rose (as well as the fruit stocks referred to in Item No. 2) come in only as an essential to American horticulture. They are essential and must come in. But, when it says that only the stocks can come, it is class legislation for the benefit of a comparative few, not only injuring the business of every florist who sells plants but also robbing thousands of amateurs of the possibility of enjoying the new introductions of the European specialists.

Roses have been coming to our country from foreign shores ever since the Pilgrims landed, and up until 1912, without even being inspected. In all that time they have not been guilty of bringing in any kind of trouble or disaster, and they are just as untainted now as they were then, and since 1912 they have run the gantlet of careful state inspection. Where is the justice of excluding them now?

At a recent meeting of the New Jersey State Nurserymen's Association, the state inspector of New Jersey, Harry B. Weiss, who has filled this important position since 1911, and through whose hands possibly fifty per cent of the roses imported into the United States pass, made the statement that he has never found a rose or rose stock that was infested with a dangerous pest.

Soil for Packing.

Upward of 10,000,000 lily bulbs or 45,000 cases are imported from Japan each season, but it is impossible to import them "free from sand, soil or earth." Owing to the distance from Japan and the time of year when they arrive, soil is necessary as a packing material to keep the bulbs from drying out and to absorb the frost when the bulbs become frozen in transit. After years of experiment we are convinced that no other packing material but soil will enable these lily bulbs to arrive in good condition from Japan, but the material used must be a dry clay dust. It is not the soil in which the bulbs are grown.

In the preparation of the lily of the valley pips for export, a small amount of sand is used to absorb excess moisture. While this is shaken out when the pips are being tied in small bundles

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

CHARLES WILLIAMSON McKELLAR.

FROM Maine to California there are florists who will receive with regret the news that "Charlie" McKellar has quit the business. He has spent 32 years in the trade in Chicago and enjoys an acquaintance as broad as the continent. In the early days, when the florists' business was a less serious matter than it is now, Mr. McKellar was one of the leaders of the element which helped everybody to have a good time as we went along and he made friends everywhere. He was born July 17, 1869, at Chillicothe, O. Coming to Chicago, at the age of 19, he entered the employment of Vaughan's Seed Store, going later to E. H. Hunt and starting on his own account as a wholesale florist in 1894. For a time he was a member of Vaughan, McKellar & Winterson, later McKellar & Winterson, which dissolved in 1904, the partners since continuing individually. Mr. McKellar sold out March 1 to A. C. Spencer and will devote his time for the present to Mrs. McKellar, who is not in the best of health.

with moss, a small amount of this sand will cling to these roots and their being passed on account of this restriction will depend entirely upon each individual inspector's interpretation of this ruling.

Palm seeds also are admitted under the "no sand, soil or earth" restrictions. They are most important raw materials. They can only be safely transported from their native habitats when packed in sand or soil. Probably no other seed loses its germinating power more quickly than some of the important species of palms, and the loss of a shipment due to improper packing does not mean simply the value of the seed but the loss of a year's crop of plants.

Like a Tariff Wall.

While we appreciate what may have been intended on the part of the Federal Horticultural Board as an effort to stimulate home production, its ruling, making it compulsory for us to produce certain lines of stock which have heretofore been imported from foreign countries (and which cannot be commercially produced here), shows every evidence of a trade protection measure against foreign competition, and, while we are satisfied that the board has not, intentionally, allowed its action to be influenced by any such considerations, we cannot help but feel that influence has been brought to bear upon said board and support has been given to it by some growers or nurserymen in order to further their own interests by closing the market to the trade in general for the purchase of many choice varieties of plants which we have heretofore purchased of foreign countries. We contend that the Federal Horticultural Board has, unwittingly and without realizing it, lent its aid to the furtherance of this improper purpose and has, therefore, not lived within the spirit of the act of congress which created it, and is assuming power not intended to be delegated to it, and which belongs to Congress alone.

While the discussion of the possibility or practicability of producing certain plants, bulbs, etc., commercially in the United States should be entirely foreign to the question of protecting the country against an invasion of bugs and pests, this has been injected into the issue by the board's ruling and we are forced to at least touch on the most vital points of this subject.

Items Excluded.

Among the most important subjects that this ruling excludes, from the florist's point of view, and to which the nurserymen will add many more, are azaleas, bay trees, Norfolk island pines, rhododendrons, boxwood, palms and tree peonies. While we admit that all of these and many other plants now imported can be and are grown here, but few of them—an insufficient quantity—can be grown commercially. We can do it only if—

First—We succeed in finding or creating suitable climatic conditions.

Second—We had the generations of patient, highly trained men that Belgium, France, Holland and other European countries have. We cannot get or train this material here.

Third—American capital will not interest itself in a business in which it must wait from ten to fifteen years for returns; particularly so with the Federal Horticultural Board holding an ax over its head which it can drop without a moment's notice after a few years, when it realizes what sad havoc it has created.

The past four years of warfare have given to our expert growers the greatest possible stimulus to produce here the varieties of plants formerly imported, and the fact that with few exceptions they are not being produced is proof that they cannot be commercially produced. Among these few exceptions are the dracænas and on these the board's ruling will rob us of the raw material necessary to produce them.

Orchids also are excluded. Our supplies of these come from tropical countries. The commercial varieties of orchids which are imported to supply cut flowers are short-lived—about five years being the average—and successive importations from their native habitats are necessary to keep up a supply. The department has found that these plants can be made safe by fumigation with hydrocyanic acid gas.

A Challenge of Fact.

We take the liberty, Mr. Secretary, of quoting from a letter bearing your signature, addressed to the Honorable William M. Calder, in which you say:

> It is true that, as a general rule, plants coming to the United States from Holland have been in better condition than those from any other country, and much freer from pests than those from Belgium. Nevertheless, many injurious insects have been detected in connection with stock imported from Holland since August 20, 1912, when the Federal Plant Quarantine Act became effective. During the period of six years of enforcement of this Act and inspection of imported plant materials, no less than 148 different species of injurious insects have been discovered on Holland nursery stock, much of which was house-grown. Many of these insects are not now established in the United States and would constitute new elements of danger to the horticulture and agriculture of this country.

One of the members of our committee has tabulated the number of importations made by his company during the six years you refer to and finds that his concern alone made 1,611 separate importations during that period. These were distributed among nineteen different countries and consisted of anywhere from one up to 100 or more cases each. All of these imports were inspected by state inspectors under federal regulations and in the entire lot there was not one shipment that was held up for quarantine.

We must quote part of this letter again: "No less than 148 different species of injurious insects have been discovered on Holland nursery stock, much of which was house-grown." Please note the clause: "Much of which was house-grown." We must take positive exception to this, it not being a statement of facts. While the bulk of the Belgium product is house-grown, there is practically no stock for export grown under glass in Holland. What greenhouses the exporters in Holland have are used exclusively for propagating purposes. While some of their plants are grown in pots, this is done in the open air and not in houses.

This, Mr. Secretary, should convince you that your informant in this report was either ignorant of facts or was careless in furnishing you with and misled you with these data.

Recommendations.

Finally, in coming before you, Mr. Secretary, we do so as American citizens, representing an important industry.

We have not come to you to beg for favors or mercy from the Federal Horticultural Board, but we ask for justice. This can only be done by Quarantine No. 37 being rescinded and if necessary a new regulation be substituted in place of same which will protect the country from any serious invasion of pests, but which will not place unnecessary restrictions or hardships on any branch of the horticultural trade.

It is recommended by this committee:

1. That Quarantine No. 37, with regulations, and which represents the subject of our protest, be rescinded.

2. That when further quarantine regulations are considered necessary, that such be made in accordance with Section 7 of the Act of Congress of August 20, 1912, and its amendments of March 4, 1913, and March 4, 1917.

3. That due notice for such hearings be sent to all of the horticultural trade papers, to the secretaries of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, the American Association of Nurserymen, the American Rose Society and to the leading firms in horticultural lines. That in said notices the items to be considered be given in specific and not in general terms.

4. That such hearings shall not be called between April 1 and June 1 or during three weeks prior to Christmas or Easter, at which time it is not possible for florists to attend.

We further suggest that when such hearings are held the details of any proposed edict be fully submitted, but if this is impracticable, then it would appear advisable to submit the final draft when completed to the officers of the representative horticultural trade bodies, whose committees should be given an opportunity to offer suggestions regarding additions or modifications which their practical commercial experience and knowledge might dictate.

THE BRITISH VIEW.

Plant Quarantine Stirs Exporters.

Speaking of Quarantine No. 37, closing the United States to foreign plantsmen, George Jackman & Son, Woking, Surrey, England, say:

"Such a measure must affect the British nurseryman adversely. Several firms have for years made special provision to supply the American trade. This, however, is not the only aspect of the matter. The same prohibition also applies to France, Holland, Belgium and Germany, countries which ship tens of thousands of pounds' worth of nursery stock to the States annually. The growers are not going to destroy their stock if they can get rid of it elsewhere at some price. Are we going to allow them to send it here? The nursery trade of this country has been seriously handicapped by foreign dumping for years. Is that to be increased tenfold? It is clearly incumbent on the government to take immediate action with a view to getting these new prohibitive regulations rescinded, and to prevent the dumping of foreign stock in this country."

Governments Are Busy.

A special committee appointed by the British Chamber of Horticulture has had under consideration the U. S. Quarantine No. 37, which is ordered to be effective June 1, 1919, says the Horticultural Advertiser. Acting under the instructions of this committee, the government and the foreign consulates have been communicated with and interviewed. The result is that steps are now being taken to secure a revision of the quarantine regulations. All British exporters of nursery stock and bulbs covered by the order, who have not already done so, are urged to send to the secretary of the Chamber of Horticulture, Norfolk House, Norfolk street, Strand, W. C. 2, in confidence, figures giving (a) the total annual turnover of their American export trade; and (b) the value of stocks which have to be kept on hand in order to meet American requirements.

"The nurserymen in Belgium, France and Holland are also up in arms," says the Horticultural Trade Journal, "and the united pressure, it is expected, will make its influence felt."

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Joint Committee Meeting.

When the publicity and the finance publicity committees met in joint session at the end of January the financial aspect of the campaign was thoroughly discussed, expenditures were minutely examined and everything was found in first-class shape. All accounts had been audited by a firm of certified accountants and were approved by the committees. The committees did not appoint an audit committee from their own body, it being decided that, as the campaign was conducted under the auspices and direction of the S. A. F., the official audit should be made by a committee to be appointed by the society's executive board, which was to meet next day at Detroit. The secretary was directed to prepare and send to every subscriber, as soon as possible, a summarized report covering receipts and expenditures.

At the meeting an appropriation of $20,000 was made to cover the magagine advertising for the spring season, a schedule of which has already been published in the trade papers, and the P. F. O'Keefe Advertising Agency, of Boston, was given a contract for the preparation and placing of the campaign advertising for 1919. The meeting was characterized by a feeling of great optimism as to the outlook for the year, as was demonstrated in the decision of the committees to set $100,000 as the amount of the fund to be raised for this year.

Gather at Detroit.

The enthusiasm of the publicity committees was echoed at the meeting of the executive board of the S. A. F. next day at Detroit, when the subject matter of the publicity campaign came up for discussion. Never in the history of the board was such interest shown in a particular phase of the society's work. So enthusiastic were the members of the board that, although liberal subscribers annually to the publicity fund, they added in the aggregate $2,065 to their 1919 subscriptions after the reports of the committees and secretary had been read and discussed. The accounts in the secretary's report, in accordance with the recommendation of the publicity committees, were presented to the board with the request that the board appoint a committee of its members to audit the same. Such a committee being appointed, the report was made that the accounts were correct in every way and commendation was due for the accuracy and neatness with which they were presented.

The report of the publicity committee was presented by Chairman Henry Penn and was as follows:

"The first twelve months of the national publicity campaign of the Society of American Florists have passed and if any doubt existed before we entered upon it, I feel that I voice the sentiments of not only the members of the publicity and finance committees, but those of every progressive, up-to-date man in the country who is engaged in the growing and selling of flowers, when I make the statement that it has greatly exceeded our expectations.

"Despite the obstacles with which every business had to contend during the last year and particularly those encountered by the florists, we should feel greatly pleased that we launched the campaign when we did.

Many Obstacles Overcome.

"I have talked with many florists located in different parts of the country and the almost universal opinion has been that their business was better than ever before. Granting that this is so, let us consider the local curtailment which was faced, other contingencies due to the war and the fact that flowers were in the so-called luxury class, and then if the publicity campaign did nothing more than to keep business normal during the trying year just passed the society has taken a great step in advance.

"We had planned to expend $50,000 during 1918 and this amount was to cover every expense. Adverse conditions, however, prevented raising the full amount, but, taking everything into consideration, we believe that the sum raised was satisfactory.

"Mr. Young, our secretary, will give in his report the exact sum raised and expended and you will see by this that during the year we used for advertising in the national mediums less than $30,000, the balance of the expenditures being used for the work of the promotion bureau in New York, printed matter and other incidentals; and right here I want to pay tribute to the wonderful work accomplished by the promotion bureau under the direction of John Young. Headquarters have been established in New York, where the florists of the country who visit New York can transact business, obtain information and keep in touch with business generally. Hundreds of columns of reading matter have been obtained in the newspapers and magazines of this country absolutely free, and every coöperation extended to help build up our business.

Mr. Young's Trip Benefit.

"The trip of Mr. Young from coast to coast not only increased subscriptions to the publicity fund, but tended to keep the florists of the country in closer touch with one another and with their business. I believe that on his trips he also obtained new memberships for the society to the number of several hundred, which, in itself, is quite an achievement. His work in enlisting the coöperation of the Red Cross was a great gain for our trade and, taking it all in all, I feel that the close coöperation of the promotion bureau with the publicity campaign has been the means of placing our business on a higher plane than ever before.

"Now that conditions in business are approaching normal, it seems to me that not only should we have a publicity fund of $50,000 per year, but that it should be closer to $100,000. If the florists of this country will only realize the possibilities for more business, as I feel sure they will, I believe that subscriptions will increase as time goes on.

"As some members may possibly think that this national advertising is expensive, I call your attention to one item as showing how little it does cost in comparison with the results accomplished.

Slogan to Be Advertised.

"For instance, we expended about $20,000 during the spring season of 1918 and about $10,000 during the fall season. Let me dwell for the moment upon the fall expenditure of $10,000 and permit me to tell you that for that $10,000 we appealed to over 10,000,000 readers of the national magazines at a cost of less than one-tenth of a cent per person. Just compare this with any form of direct contact that you can think of and realize how much more inexpensive are the results obtained through the medium of the national campaign.

"As we were somewhat delayed in getting the finance and publicity committees together to consider the 1919 campaign, it was decided that during January and February, 1919, we should concentrate our advertising efforts upon our slogan, 'Say It with Flowers,' and with this idea in view we are inserting this slogan during January and February in practically every magazine of prominence in this country. We are using small space, it is true, but we are obliged to do so, on account of the fact that we did not want to expend more than $5,000 during the entire two months and felt that if we could impress our slogan, 'Say It with Flowers,' upon the minds of over 11,000,000 people during these two months, we would be helping all future publicity work tremendously, because, after all, to my mind, this slogan, 'Say It with Flowers,' is one that is worth a great deal to the florists of this country and the more we can make people remember and think of it the more business will it make for all of us.

"It is regrettable that so few of our members have contributed to the publicity fund and yet are able to participate in the benefits of this campaign. I hope that as time goes on we shall find some method of educating the public to patronize those retail florists who display the sign, 'Say It with Flowers,' just as the United Cigars Stores and other institutions are enabled to direct people to their establishments.

"In closing, I wish to repeat what I have said before: That I believe one of the best things we have done as business men during my connection with the Society of American Florists has been the carrying on of this publicity campaign and I feel that its benefits will become more evident and that we shall all be glad to be identified and have it known that we are engaged in the business that we all love so well."

Mr. Penn announced the decision of the publicity committees to make an effort to raise $100,000 this year for the compaign fund.

Report of Finance Committee.

Chairman George Asmus of the publicity finance committee reported as follows:

"I am going to make some remarks and ask the secretary to substantiate them from the records. You have heard from Mr. Penn that there has been given to this committee the task of collecting $100,000. It will be a big job, but I think we can do it. Had it not been for the unusual conditions in October, there is not a doubt in my mind that I would have pulled over the $50,000 campaign as we figured. I am going to report to you that yesterday we again contracted with the O'Keefe Advertising Agency to carry on our work for the coming year and we have appropriated the sum of $20,000 to start this work. The report of the secretary will show you how the people of this country have appreciated this publicity by 'coming across' with their second subscriptions and you will hear some of the nice things that have been said by the people that did 'come across.'

"I want to ask the presidents of the affiliated organizations in this board to take every opportunity to spread the gospel of publicity and get contributions from every florist in their communities to carry on this important work. I want to impress that upon the various officers of the organization who are a power in their communities and in their organizations.

"It is true that in some instances wonderful work has been done; but in other cases we have met with a very lukewarm reception. Of course, the plan that we adopted of sending the secretary about the country is possibly the greatest thing that we did. In considering it among ourselves, we figured that the average cost per day in traveling expenses of the man who went out—Mr. Young accepted this job—would be from $10 to $15 a day. Mr. Young will substantiate what I am telling you now, that there were but few days that we did not average from $200 to $400, and in some instances $600 a day receipts. Now, any ordinary merchant, in selling goods, has to figure on a margin of about five or six per cent profit, or perhaps ten per cent, on his merchandise, and he thinks that does not seem much. But we have realized 100 per cent. If the secretary went into a town and secured the membership of but one man, who signed up for $10 for four years, that meant $40 collected from that man; and if he secured $500 or $600 worth of subscriptions—which in many cases he did—you should multiply that by four, for the number of years. Another thing that he did was to get the money for the first year's subscription then and there, which saved our committee a lot of expense and trouble.

Results Almost Marvelous.

"It must have been surprising to you gentlemen when you heard the secretary's report read, to see what a large percentage was sent in of the amounts subscribed. He started out receiving voluntary subscriptions, not money; but those subscriptions were all collected to within a few hundred dollars of the $45,000 subscribed, which was almost marvelous, considering the financial condition of most florists before the turn for the better came and the results of our publicity campaign showed up this year.

"This year we are going to aim at a higher goal. Everybody is interested in our object; we have a wonderful article to sell, and at a cheap price. The talking points are so numerous and so good that every one of you gentlemen can well feel proud to talk about them. Everything connected with this publicity campaign is above reproach. The expenses connected with the work have been as nothing when compared to the gratifying results obtained. The man who subscribed $100 a year and pays $8 a month, or $2 a week, most likely may be a man who is doing a $100,000 or a $150,000 business. Just think how little he is paying, yet how much he is doing. But the great thing is that we are trying to get everybody to pay his just share. It is indeed unfair to expect some big-hearted man, like Philip Breitmeyer, for instance, to subscribe $500 to this fund, unjust in proportion to what some of the other men, who are supposed to be good florists, are doing. Some do something and others little. It seems to me that we ought to seek to find some means whereby everybody shall participate to the same extent as Mr. Breitmeyer in the fund, or in proportion to their means. The trip of the secretary has given us a further opportunity. Take the state of California: Before Mr. Young visited there he had committees appointed in every section. I had the state vice-president suggest the names, and we tried in every way to get the livest wires possible—men who had been former officials and correspondents. The first trip of the secretary over the country proved its real benefit by putting the question to men direct, shaking them by the hand and, in nine cases out of ten, getting their subscriptions. We hope to get the secretary on such a trip again to interest the California section of the country, because we have only scratched the surface. For that reason, I do not think our committee will hesitate to say that we are going to increase the fund to $100,000. We expect all of you gentlemen to be mouthpieces whenever the secretary gets into your neighborhoods. We want you to turn out and help him, because he is doing your work, and I hope he will meet with the response from all of you and that you will all help us in this task, because it is 'some' task to collect $100,000."

The Secretary's Report.

Secretary Young read the figures of receipts and disbursements, accompanying the same by comments on various items. He stated that much of the money had been received since the first of the year, and that he did not believe there would be more than $200 or $300 that would not be collected. From the replies he had received from subscribers, he said, he believed they would probably pay two subscriptions at the same time. He stated that a great deal of the postage had been used in sending out "dealers' helps." It was the intention of the publicity committee to make no profit on these "dealers' helps," but it was required that they should pay their way. The more florists could be induced to use stickers, glass signs, etc., the more help it would be to general business. In addition to the financial report, the secretary read the report of the certified accountants, Edwards & Bouton.

It was after the reading of the reports that the directors showed the real enthusiasm, and one after another added sums to their 1919 subscriptions, until the amount previously mentioned was reached.

Philip Breitmeyer's Views.

Philip Breitmeyer, of Detroit, in a hearty endorsement of the campaign, said:

"I feel that our slogan is the most wonderful thing that has ever been introduced, in the florists' business or any other business. To 'Say It with Flowers' is just exactly what everybody wants to do. The florists' business has been increased, as you know, since this slogan has been adopted, fully twenty-five per cent. The business had been in a state of quiescence, had not been doing anything in the way of its advancement for the last fifty years. It seems to me strange that just at this time, when the people need awakening, this should come to us and should prove such a tremendous success. I, for one, am grateful that this suggestion has been made to us and its good effects are going to continue, I know, and will mean prosperity which we older florists never dreamed of. I class myself as one of the older florists because I have been in the trade some forty years. The last two years have held, because of this slogan, more business for the florists than I ever dreamed was possible. I hope every florist in the country, not simply those who are here, shares in the sentiment of gratitude that I have given expression to and will contribute to the cause in which, in my opinion, it is a privilege to help; not only because of the advertising, but because of the privilege of tying up with and working with it to make this business of ours ten times what it has been in the past."

John Young, Sec'y.

March 1, 1919.

Waterbury, Conn.—A. S. Lee is opening a flower shop.

Bridgeport, Conn.—James E. Beach has observed that funeral work has kept all hands much alive of late. A record of sixteen door sprays for one day recently was made.

New Britain, Conn.—The Volz Floral Co. is planning to rebuild part of its range, following spring business, which is expected to keep pace with the present busy condition.

New Haven, Conn.—George Munro took advantage of the opportunity to obtain the Reuter plant at Westerly, thus enabling him to expand his retail connection and wholesale the surplus.

Suffield, Conn.—Fire, supposed to have originated in a defective flue, damaged the greenhouses and boiler room at the range of Earl S. Spaulding to an extent estimated at $4,000. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

New Haven, Conn.—J. J. Sokol intends giving his range of glass a thorough overhauling during the summer, possibly adding a house for bedding stock, suggested by the present shortage.

Hartford, Conn.—Fire which originated in the boiler room of the range of Andrew W. Welch did considerable damage January 14.

Waterbury, Conn.—Saxe & Floto are among the number who are interested in the labor market, which, if favorable, will enable them to make many improvements that have been long deferred. Both business and stock are in excellent shape.

Waterbury, Conn.—Alex. Dallas & Son were forced to close down part of their extensive range of glass owing to the fuel restrictions and feel the effect in having to buy for present requirements. In consequence, the demand has seemed above normal, but given time, they will soon be in the race again with their usual high-grade stock.

New Haven, Conn.—Smith T. Bradley expresses the opinion that The Review, in exposing the methods in the sale of "Ironite," is doing excellent work and adds that there has, to his knowledge, been quite a little going on of late to the injury of the smaller growers, who "bite" freely when shown a testimonial purporting to come from a group of large growers.

BUCKEYE BULL'S-EYES

A FLORAL DEPARTMENT.

The establishment of a section devoted to flowers, in charge of a special editor, by Ohio's great newspaper, the Cleveland Plain Dealer, is an event of far-reaching importance to florists. Perhaps it is the first time in the history of newspaperdom that a powerful journal has got back of a commercial enterprise and florists may justly feel proud of the signal favor shown their profession.

This new feature of the Plain Dealer will be inaugurated in the Sunday issue of March 16 and will be conducted by Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson, who needs no introduction to the trade. It will occupy a quarter-page in every Sunday edition and, besides matter of interest to flower lovers in general, it will carry the local coöperative publicity, of the type that its editor has made justly famous. Mrs. Wilson will receive a nominal salary from the Plain Dealer, the greater part of her remuneration coming from the Florists' Club, which this year is planning to spend $2,500 in printers' ink.

Concerted effort upon the part of Cleveland florists alone has secured this inestimable advantage and it is to be hoped that the time will come when every newspaper of the land will sufficiently recognize the growing importance of flowers in the everyday life of the public to devote to them a special department. Possessing sentiment, above all other commodities, flowers are entitled to this special consideration. Sixth City florists have blazed the way for their contemporaries, who may also succeed in gaining publicity for their product by the practice of a generous and unselfish coöperation for the common good. A fuller commercial development is the great desideratum and it can best be attained by whole-heartedly pulling together. Mac.

THE FRIEDLEY COMPANY.

The late Elbert Hubbard was fond of driving home the dictum that "every institution is the lengthened shadow of a man." It is true and the writer was impressed by the peculiar force of the observation while visiting the greenhouses of the Friedley Co., in East Cleveland, O., formerly operated by James Eadie.

The Friedley Co. is an important factor in the supply of the local market.

While plants in great variety are the leading specialty, large quantities of cut stock are also produced. Judging from the present appearance of the place, the coming spring is going to be a highly profitable one. Practically every foot of space is jammed with something commanding a ready market, consisting of roses in all sizes and shapes, hydrangeas, spiræas, lilies, gladioli, bulbous and bedding stock, with numerous other small items sandwiched in between. A large stock of the splendid new pompon chrysanthemum, Christmas Gold, is being prepared in anticipation of a heavy demand. In addition to the wholesale business, a large retail trade is conducted.

The venerable Gurney Hill claims to have fashioned Frank A. Friedley and takes a just pride in the success of his former pupil. Having had a long and varied experience, Mr. Friedley's best asset is a thorough knowledge of his work. Whatever he grows is produced well and his bench space is kept working all the time. His agreeable personality enables him to retain a loyal corps of capable assistants, even in times of great labor stress.

Having always taken a leading part in organized activities, Mr. Friedley is well and favorably known throughout the trade. For a number of years he was secretary of the Cleveland Florists' Club and assisted materially in the development of that live trade body. He is now serving a second term as state vice-president of the S. A. F. We predict an eminently successful future for this young man. Mac.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The market continues strong, arrivals not being heavier in the aggregate than previously reported. Variations in supply occasionally affect one or another of the commodities, but, taken all in all, the conditions of the last few weeks are unchanged and the volume of business is a long way from normal. There is not the least doubt that the public is curtailing consumption on account of the seemingly high prices retailers set on their flowers, but it could hardly be different; nor does it matter much, for if the demand were heavier the supply would be short, and much business would have to go by the board. The diminished production on account of the fuel restriction order and consequent closing up of large areas of glass is being realized to the full and there is no remedy in sight.

Bulbous flowers, which usually at this time dominate the market, are in only scant supply, which means that staples suffer little on account of competition created by seasonable offerings. Little in the way of narcissi and tulips can be had for less than 50 cents per bunch, while good grades command 75 cents to $1, practically three times the prices obtainable in years of plenty.

Roses, while not plentiful as ordinarily considered, are arriving in quantity sufficient to meet the demand and clear without difficulty. Short grades are quickly snapped up and longer stock cleans out quite early in the day. American Beauty is in larger supply, causing a decline in the prices of the leading grades, the demand not absorbing the increase.

Carnations are in heavier supply and are settling down to values more nearly approaching the normal. While the range just now is $3 to $6 per hundred, flowers of exceptional quality at times bring $8. Some fine flowers of Benora and Mrs. C. W. Ward are arriving in limited quantity and easily bring the top price.

The supply of cattleyas is less than for some weeks and prices have advanced a little, the best flowers of hybrid varieties bringing as much as $75 per hundred. The gardenia supply is limited, with the best flowers at $9 per dozen. Arrivals of lilies have shortened considerably and the choicest stock is again bringing as much as 25 cents per flower. Lily of the valley is now in normal supply, with a demand anything but brisk at prices ranging from $2 to $4 per hundred. A few gladioli are coming in, but rarely bring more than 3 cents per stalk. There is a large assortment of other flowers available, which, in general, move well at remunerative prices.

Various Notes.

F. R. Pierson, of Tarrytown, as a member of the S. A. F. tariff and legislation committee, was in Washington, D. C., March 1, where, with J. D. Eisele, of Dreer's, Riverton, N. J.; C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., and Curtis Nye Smith, representing the Nurserymen's Association, an interview was had with Secretary of Agriculture Houston, at which the brief of protest against the quarantine of plants and bulbs was presented. What the result will be is at the present time a matter of guess.

Charles H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., was toastmaster at the annual dinner of the Nassau County Horticultural Society, held at the Oriental hotel, Glen Cove, L. I., February 27. On the same day the Tuxedo Horticultural Society held its annual banquet, at which Arthur Herrington, also of Madison, N. J., was the speaker of the evening.

The ball of the Greek-American Florists' Association, held February 27, was a huge success and was attended by many of the wholesale florists and their assistants. Dancing was kept up until the hour preceding daylight and everybody had a "grand good time."

According to Chairman Charles Schenck, of the New York Florists' Club's dinner committee, the dinner to be held March 15, at the Hotel Biltmore, will undoubtedly be the most successful affair in the history of the club. Many tables have been reserved and it looks as though the sale of tickets, which are $5 per person, will run to the maximum. There will be no set speeches, dancing being the principal item of entertainment. A surprise is expected in the way of souvenirs for the ladies.

At the meeting of the New York Florists' Club to be held Monday evening, March 10, at the club's rooms, Grand Opera House building, Twenty-third street and Eighth avenue, Edwin E. Salt, an expert industrial accountant, will be the essayist, his subject being "What Does It Cost? Getting at the Root of the Income and Outgo." F. R. Pierson will address the meeting on the situation as regards the quarantine on plants and bulbs, which is to be put into effect next June, and will speak of the interview of the plantsmen's interests with the secretary of agriculture March 1.

I. Goldstein, wholesale florist, is comfortably settled in his new quarters at 116 West Twenty-eighth street.

Visitors: S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia; B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass.; Henry Penn, Boston, Mass.

Tuesday, March 4, at 6 a. m., another harbor strike was on and the growers of New Jersey and Staten Island were sorely perplexed to get their flowers to market. Wholesalers had few roses to offer until the day had well advanced.

International Flower Show.

The schedule committee of the International Flower Show to be held in the Grand Central Palace, New York, next year, is entering upon the preparation of the premium schedule and, in order to make the scope of the exhibits as extensive as possible, suggestions are invited from those who can make small exhibits, or exhibits of but one variety, as to classes to be provided and the probability of filling the same. Any suggestions which may be forthcoming should be plainly stated and submitted to C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., chairman of the schedule committee, not later than March 20.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Julius Reck, of Bridgeport, Conn., is well pleased with the season's business thus far and is planning to add to his plant during the summer.

* * * *

V. S. Dorval's Sons, Woodside, L. I., are among the many who benefited by the recent high prices for flowers and now look for a big sale on plants for the spring trade.

* * * *

John Scott, of the John Scott Estate, Brooklyn, N. Y., observed that the demand for ferns, especially Nephrolepis Scottii, is as good as ever. It is stock that grows into money in any size, as it is not kept long enough to become too large for commercial purposes.

* * * *

F. C. Kolb, of Bridgeport, Conn., is strong on carnations and geraniums. He also has a fine lot of pansies, grown in coldframes, now in flower, the result of the mild winter.

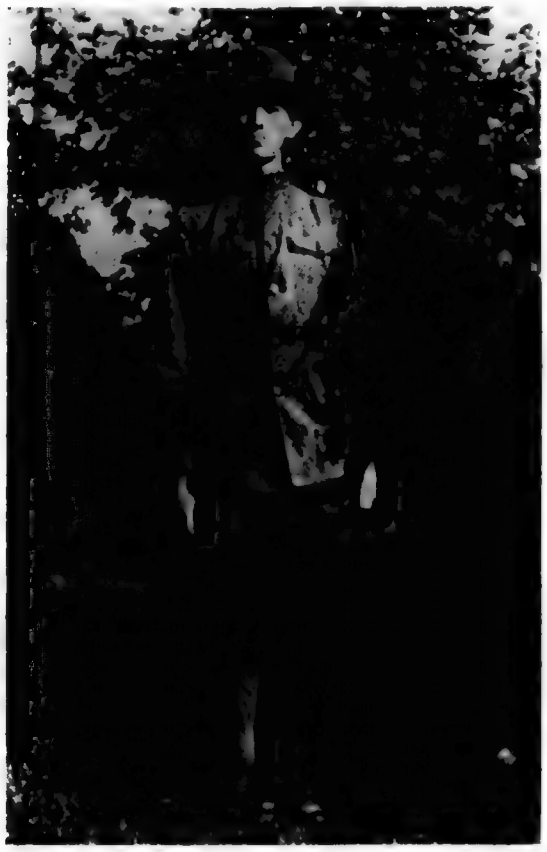
"Say It with Flowers," say Ryan & Powers, of Waterbury, Conn., who have used the slogan freely and successfully. "In fact," observed Thomas Ryan, "we have felt it a power from the beginning. To this, combined with the F. T. D., we ascribe the major part of our increase in business. You have no idea how much the illustrations of display cards that appear in The Review from time to time help us fellows in the smaller towns, as, while having our own ideas, often unique and effective, still we feel that those in the big cities are naturally in the lead, with greater opportunity for demonstrations of skill, which, I venture to say, we, in the rear, so to speak, gladly take note of and endeavor to copy."

MUSTERED OUT

THE APPROVED IDEA.

'Twill Help All.



Agreeing with the popular view that the end of war is the time for individuals and concerns, as well as nations, to beat their swords into plowshares, The Review will, with this issue, print the last page of news of soldiers and sailors. A page has been published weekly, beginning shortly after the United States entered the world conflict. The space vacated by the military will be used for printing matter which will help florists, ex-soldiers, ex-sailors, and all, to better their business and recover from the effects of the war.

The florists made an enviable record while Germany was being subdued, for from the trade came hundreds—perhaps thousands—of young men who made some of this country's best soldiers, sailors and marines. Some of these young men will never return to their homes. To these and to their families all honor is due. No tribute could be too great. Others served and have returned to their civilian life, while still others are still serving. To these, too, should be given the thanks of all, for they did their best and stood ready to make any sacrifice.

A Brave Officer.

Lieut. Thomas J. Cavanaugh is in a French hospital convalescing from wounds received in action last autumn. Only recently has word been received concerning his commission, received for bravery under fire. Lieut. Cavanaugh, who was a sergeant in Company G, 111th Infantry, was sent out with six privates to take a German machine gun nest near Fismet. Four men of the party were killed before they had advanced a hundred yards. Lieut. Cavanaugh and the remaining two succeeded in capturing not only the gun, but two prisoners as well. Returning, another of the party was wounded. The lieutenant ordered the remaining man to take in the prisoners and went himself to the rescue of his wounded comrade. Meanwhile he was twice hit, but dragged the man to safety, falling in a faint from loss of blood upon his arrival in camp.

Lieut. Cavanaugh is a "florist-in-law," being identified with the trade through Mrs. Cavanaugh and Miss Cecelia Reilly, both of whom are in the Johnston Flower Shop, of Braddock, Pa., and Miss Essie Reilly, who for several years has been with Randolph & McClements, Pittsburgh. E. E. S.

Aubrey W. Hooper.

Corporal Herbert G. Foss.

Aubrey Hooper in Service.

Aubrey Hooper, the eldest son of James D. Hooper, Richmond, Va., enlisted in the U. S. Army last July and went into training at the University of Virginia. After his graduation from the school he was assigned to Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Wireless Won the War.

It has developed since the fighting in Europe came to an end that the U. S. Army aeroplanes were communicating with the army headquarters by wireless telephone, a fact unknown to the Germans. One of the young men in the wireless service in France is James W. McPheron, son of R. A. McPheron, of the Cottage Greenhouses, Litchfield, Ill. The young man is well known in Chicago and St. Louis, where he worked in retail stores.

Trophies of War.

According to a recent letter received by Mrs. John M. Foss, of Sharpsburg, Pa., her son, Corporal Herbert G. Foss, is in Germany, accompanying the 305th Motor Supply Train, and has no prospect of returning to the United States before Easter. Corporal Foss already has sent home a helmet and cigarettes taken from a dead German and writes that he also has a ring procured from the same source which he intends to bring to his brother Carl. E. E. S.

Lieut. Tracy Returns.

Lieut. B. Hammond Tracy, Jr., son of the gladiolus specialist of Wenham, Mass., was in New York February 27, making calls on his acquaintances shortly after disembarkation from a transport from France. He left the United States in February, 1917, as a member of the ambulance service, but subsequently was with the 638th Aero Squadron, in which he had some months' actual flying. He has seen service on all the fronts, including Salonica, and consequently is able to relate some exciting experiences. His father met him in New York March 1, unaware of his return.

BE your own severest critic; in that way will come improvement.

EVERYBODY, it seems, wants to try Laddie carnation for next season. It is difficult to locate any young stock.

LET the public know flowers are cheaper; some of your customers may think you still are charging Christmas prices.

A SUBSCRIBER writes that on his last visit to England he saw one batch of 20,000 fair-sized kentias being packed on a single order for America. We can grow our own kentias, but it takes time.

A SMALLER number than usual, of carnations, was benched last summer, but the splendid prices this winter will have the effect of inducing many growers to go back into carnations to full capacity for next season.

IMPORTING houses will make great effort to bring over as much stock as they can before the quarantine becomes effective June 1, shutting out Belgian azaleas, French peonies, English palms, etc., but they will not worry about German valley pips—these can come any time after the peace treaty is signed.

ANY order which is not to be filled at once should be acknowledged and information given as to the date of shipment. The firms which get the cream of the trade are those that send a post-card acknowledgment of every order they do not ship same day; some even send a postal advising that shipment has been made, and how. It pays.

RECOGNIZING that good packing costs something, the trade has made no complaint over the addition of moderate charges on plant bills, but there seems to be a disposition to object to charges above five or six per cent of the cost of the stock in the cases. This charge does not cover the cost of packing pot plants, which usually runs from seven to ten per cent of the value of the plants.

ENVIRONMENT has a great deal to do with temperament, we are told by the scientists. Then why have not all florists beautiful natures?

THAT dark cloud which was hanging over the florists a year ago seems to have turned itself inside out, disclosing the proverbial silver lining.

EASTER will be a record-breaker in the trade, there is no doubt, and may make the Christmas business of 1918 look somewhat smaller to us all than it does at present.

ADVERTISING experts agree almost unanimously that "Say It with Flowers" is one of the best, if not the best, trade slogan ever coined. No florist should fail to use it.

PREPAREDNESS is as necessary to the trade as to a nation. Florists should make certain that they are not caught napping when the opportunity to do bigger business presents itself.

THERE is a story, said to be true, of a man who made a fortune selling sweetened water for medicine, simply by advertising. How much more business he might have done if he had been selling real value, as florists do, is a matter for thought.

Now that spring is so near at hand it may be permissible to speak of the winter which is drawing to a close. It has been a most unusual season and most satisfactory to nearly all florists. May the spring hold as much for the trade—that is our hope.

"PROPAGANDA" is a word that has acquired a bad reputation because of its use in tales of Teutonic intrigue in the newspapers, but it is a good word for florists to look up in the dictionary when trying to think of a way to place the "Say It with Flowers" idea before the public.

EACH of the recent seasons has seen an increase in the popularity and production of forced flowers of Iris tingitana. Iris is one of the things which will be excluded by the approaching quarantine. Some of the best tingitana have come from the Channel Islands, but the bulk of the imports has been from Holland.

LENT DOES NOT HURT.

Ash Wednesday, which in 1919 fell on March 5, did not see a falling off in business as it did in years when the use of flowers was less general than it is now. Probably Lent never will be the time for large social affairs, but it is not so widely or strictly observed as it once was and the use of flowers now includes so many purposes that some diminution in social activity produces little apparent effect. The arrival of Lent has been almost unnoticeable in the florists' business for the last two years, because social affairs were few during the war, and there is little reason to expect any other experience in 1919; flowers no longer are considered a social extravagance to be eliminated during Lent, but rather as a solace and refinement to be employed in days of calm.

GREENHOUSES SELLING WELL.

Greenhouse property, which has been practically unsalable except at a sacrifice during the last two years, is in request. The improved conditions and prospects for the trade have resulted in the appearance of a brisk demand for greenhouse property and several establishments which have been on the market for some time recently have changed hands at excellent prices.

It usually has been the case that well located small establishments have been easily sold, to those who were making a start in business, but that large places were slow sale, because the beginners could not command the capital for other than a modest start. Recently, however, some establishments of good size have been reported sold at good figures and the condition has resulted in several others being offered for sale. The For Sale columns of The Review the last few weeks have contained many interesting offers, ranging all the way from little one-man places to ranges of 275,000 feet of glass. There is evidence that the For Sale columns will be widely and closely read during the next few months.

THE COST OF COAL.

This is the last month of the coal trade's old year and thoughts already are turning to the new one. The growers have been looking forward to a material reduction in the cost of fuel now that the war is over, but it is not yet in sight. While it is possible to buy coal on track at some concession in price, usually in proportion to the quality of the coal, it is not possible to buy for next season at prices in line with growers' ideas. Indeed, some of the better liked coals are selling above the discontinued government maximum.

Operators are closing coal mines rather than sell at lower prices.

The trouble appears to lie largely in the cost of labor. Wages are still at the top and it is impossible to produce coal more cheaply than during the war.

Unless conditions change unexpectedly, another difficult situation will arise next winter. Whereas everyone bought coal in the summer of 1918, nobody will buy in the summer of 1919, with the result that there will be another flurry, perhaps a famine, next winter.

THE SEASON'S PRICES.

In certain quarters there is an insistent demand that the prices of stock come down, and the assertion frequently is heard that the season's average increase in wholesale prices has exceeded what the retailers could get from the public. Without doubt the retailers have had difficulties, but there are one or two points they should keep continually in mind.

In the first place, the wholesale prices are regulated absolutely by supply and demand, the conditions of October to February being wholly new, due to conditions none of us foresaw or could control. In the second place, the time of extreme shortage is past and the conditions which brought it about are likely never to return.

But, most important, if prices in this trade should fall faster than they do in other lines we all shall suffer. Growers can not pay big prices for coal, labor and supplies and sell their output low. To do so will be to drive us all toward the financial shoals, to curtail production, lower quality and create again a situation such as existed a year ago.

The growers must receive profitable prices if they are to maintain the production all others in the trade require as the basis for their own activities.

OBITUARY

Chris. Lund.

Christian Lund, one of the oldest and most widely known florists in Wisconsin, died at his home at Wausau February 21, after a long illness. He was 68 years of age and had been in the greenhouse business at Wausau for thirty-seven years.

Christian Lund was born in Denmark August 23, 1861. He came to America in 1882, settling in Wausau, and had resided there ever since. He received his education in Denmark and early took up the study of floriculture. He found a splendid field in Wausau for his line of work and started in a small way the business which has grown to such large proportions. The business is a monument to the ability of Christian Lund.

He was united in marriage in Wausau to Christina Houltman, by whom he is survived, as he is also by seven children: Mrs. James Colby, Johanna, Carolina, Hans, Edith, Evelyn and Alice Lund, all of Wausau.

The funeral was held February 24. Interment was in Pine Grove cemetery.

The business will be continued by the son, H. J. Lund.

Warner Bruin Slot.

Warner Bruin Slot, for seventeen years a florist in Grand Rapids, Mich., passed away at the home of his son, Levi Bruin Slot, February 20, at the age of 68 years. He retired from active business in 1915, at which time he sold out to his son, Levi Bruin Slot. The funeral was held February 23, and burial was made in Garfield cemetery.

William C. Gaethje.

William C. Gaethje, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gaethje, of Rock Island, Ill., died February 26, of pneumonia, aged 34 years. He leaves a wife and one child, besides his aged parents and one sister, to mourn his loss. This is the second death sustained by the Gaethje family in the last six months, an elder brother having died in November. The funeral, held February 28, was largely attended. The members of the Tri-City Florists' Club attended in a body.

Christ Penek, 167 Market street, Newark, N. J., died Saturday, February 22, of pneumonia. He was well and favorably known in the New York flower market.

George T. Earle.

George Timothy Earle, well known to the older generation of florists throughout Rhode Island and southeastern Massachusetts, died at his home, 720 Broad street, Central Falls, R. I., February 23, following an illness of nearly fifteen years. He was the son of the late Timothy and Phoebe (Barney) Earle and was born in Central Falls in the house adjoining the one in which he died, 65 years ago. His father had been a farmer and the young man, as soon as he finished his schooling, began growing plants in hotbeds and gradually established a greenhouse business that for many years was devoted to the growing of flowers and bedding stock. Failing health necessitated the curtailment of his business and eventually, about a dozen years ago, his retirement from active duties. Besides his wife, he is survived by two sons and two sisters.

C. G. van Tubergen.

C. G. van Tubergen, a well known grower of hardy plants and rare bulbs, died January 25 at his home in Haarlem, Holland. He was 74 years old. The funeral was held and burial made January 28.

MONTREAL, QUEBEC.

The Market.

Seldom has the well known slogan, "Say It with Flowers," been better demonstrated than at the recent funeral of Sir Wilfred Laurier, ex-premier of Canada. Glowing tributes were paid the deceased statesman, from press and pulpit, but it is doubtful if either will be remembered as long as the many beautiful floral tributes which filled the spacious capitol, where "Canada's grand old man" was lying in state.

The floral designs displayed in the funeral cortege made a lasting impression on those fortunate enough to witness it. Many visitors from Montreal and other large Canadian centers flocked to Ottawa for the occasion, among them being Leo McKenna and A. Riopel, of the firm of McKenna, Ltd., who were present to superintend the display of the numerous designs sent by their firm.

Montreal florists have every reason to be happy, for seldom has the market been brighter. There is plenty of stock, the quality is good, prices reasonable, and all stores report brisk business.

Roses have been retailing from $3 to $6 per dozen; carnations at $1.50, with an extra good quality at $2. Orchids are plentiful and sell at $1 each. Violets were never better and find a ready sale at $1.50 and $2 per bunch. Tulips, daffodils, hyacinths and narcissi bring from $1 to $1.50 per dozen and are of superior quality. Stock is arriving in splendid condition and sells at $1.50 and $2 per dozen, while myosotis, pansies, daisies and all the novelties that gladden the heart of the florist are beginning to arrive in quantities.

Various Notes.

Hall & Robinson have the finest lot of cyclamens the writer has ever seen, every plant being an almost perfect specimen.

Now that the war is over, Montreal society has awakened to the need of recreation and many are the social affairs being held, most of them in aid of some charity. Frank Fleury, florist in the Windsor hotel, where most of these affairs are held, has been busy looking after the decorations.

The Dominion Floral Co. is always busy and its attractive delivery car can be seen at all hours, but never standing still.

Mrs. Hill, successor to G. Hopton & Son, keeps up her usual neat and attractive display, regardless of how busy she may be.

Mr. Ley and his capable staff of assistants at Campbell's, report a busy week, due to the unusual number of orders they received for social purposes and funeral work.

Miss E. Cairns, who had a splendid display of spring stock, is kept busy and says business never looked brighter, while the orders of Rubin Bros. have made it necessary to work overtime.

Frank McKenna, managing director of the firm of McKenna, Ltd., reports a busy week. Mr. McKenna is a firm believer in the F. T. D. and the floral slogan, "Say It with Flowers." He is spending time, money and energy in a liberal manner, with a view to educating the 700,000 inhabitants of this thriving city as to the meaning of the two. The newspapers and other advertising mediums have been used for this purpose, while at the principal points in the city, one is greeted by huge illuminated signboards bearing the familiar slogan. Mr. McKenna states the results have been highly satisfactory.

Mr. George Eon, Montreal's newest florist, contemplates the erection of a greenhouse at the rear of his attractive store at St. Catherine street.

While Montreal is a progressive city and the same can be said of its florists, yet it is a question whether there is enough coöperation among them. They all appear to be good competitors; in fact, the competition at times is keen, but whether or not this competition can be termed healthy is an open question.

Now that people have come to a new appreciation of flowers it is extremely doubtful whether indiscriminate slashing of prices is harmful or beneficial, and the point to weigh carefully is whether or not "bargains" will influence the day's receipts sufficiently to pay for the extra effort and expense involved. Quick sales and small profits are not on the same basis as they were in other years. Margins must be bigger and it is the writer's firm belief that a retail association or a florists' club should be organized, where these problems could be discussed by all.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The spring crops have come on rapidly during the last few days and the retailers now have everything in their favor, a condition which has not existed for several months. Stock of all kinds is equal to the demand, causing a drop in prices and allowing the retailer to sell at a reduced price, meaning more sales for him, or at a better margin of profit. The condition is not due to a slowing up of business, which continues excellent, but to the heavier arrival of stock. Shipping business is as brisk as ever, with city business increasing as stock becomes more plentiful.

Roses in all lengths of stem are plentiful. Even Beauties are in large enough supply to take care of present needs. Prices have receded, but still are above those of the first week of March in recent years. Carnations are abundant, there being enough of all grades to meet the call. However, slightly lower prices are moving the stock in good shape. There is a good supply of spring flowers, enough for immediate needs. Tulips are available in larger quantity and, with jonquils, continue to meet with a brisk call. The supply of freesia is shortening up and the same condition exists with Paper Whites. Roman hyacinths are nearing the end, but the small supply is sufficient for the present call. Iris tingitana is arriving more heavily and there is no trouble in filling orders.

Orchids are plentiful and prices on these flowers have dropped to such an extent that the retailers find them a profitable item to push. Plenty of violets continue to come in, causing a drop in price. Valley is equal to the demand, but the price is holding up.

The spring crop of sweet peas is on and, after a winter of light receipts, these have become one of the most important items in the list. They are selling well at somewhat lower average prices.

Calendulas are increasing in supply. A good number of pansies are coming in and these move rapidly, being used extensively for corsage work. Snapdragons are plentiful. Calla and Easter lilies, for the first time in many months, are on the long side.

The green goods situation also has changed and there is now enough of everything to take care of the needs.

February Business.

No February ever saw better flower business in Chicago than did the month just past. Last year, because of its unusual conditions, affords no basis for comparison, but going back to February, 1917, which preceded our entry into the war and which was an unusually good month, we find that there is a big margin of gain in sales. The Chicago market seldom has had a better month of shipping business, with large demand, fair supplies and good prices. Nor has the local retail business been behind. The retailers have been busy and have been getting good prices in most cases.

McKellar Retires.

March 1 C. W. McKellar disposed of his business in the Atlas block to A. C. Spencer, who has removed his own establishment, from the smaller quarters he occupied in the same building, to the McKellar store, where Mr. Spencer will have facilities more nearly adequate to the needs of his large business in funeral flowers.

Mr. Spencer had felt for some time that he must have more room. When Ernst C. Amling and Paul Amling bought out Hoerber Bros. Co. they came into possession of a wholesale cut flower store for which they had no use. It afforded Mr. Spencer the opportunity to enlarge his quarters, so from the Amlings he bought the Hoerber wholesale store outfit and lease. Then came the opportunity to acquire the McKellar establishment, including the good will of a prosperous trade as well as the facilities of which Mr. Spencer stood in need, and the best located store of the three, considering the purpose for which it is to be used. So Mr. Spencer now has three stores on the second floor of the Atlas block, within little more than 100 feet of each other. He plans to continue his own business and the McKellar store, on the Randolph street side of the building. The Hoerber store and the smaller store Mr. Spencer has occupied are for sale. Several offers have been received, but nothing has been closed. Incidentally, the room Mr. Spencer is vacating is known in the market as something of a mascot. E. C. Amling once occupied it. George Reinberg's business grew faster while in this room than in any other stage of its development. John Kruchten outgrew the same quarters. No one ever made a failure there. The room should not be long vacant, considering its reputation for bringing luck to the tenant.

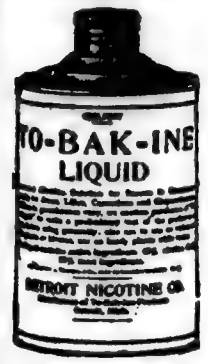
The Hoerber Transfer.

The following is from the real estate department of one of the Sunday newspapers: "Record was made this week of the transfer by Hoerber Bros. Co., florists, to Ernst C. Amling, of the greenhouse property of thirty-four acres in the township of Maine, between Des Plaines and Riverview, for an indicated cash consideration of $67,500, according to the revenue stamps on the deed."

It has been the talk of the street that the consideration for land, greenhouses, contents and city wholesale store, the going concern, was $90,000.

February Weather.

February was unusually favorable for the growers. The mean temperature was 30.5 degrees, or 5 degrees above normal. The percentage of possible sunshine was only 47, against 51 as the normal percentage obtained in the month.



The total amount of snowfall for the winter to February 28 was only 17.7 inches, which is in strong contrast with the snowfall of the winter of 1917-18, when 62.7 inches fell.

The Days We Celebrate.

C. L. Washburn's birthday always is celebrated at the store of Bassett & Washburn, but the sixty-first anniversary, February 27, Mr. and Mrs. Washburn were at Pasadena. But there were flowers on his desk.

A. Miller, president of the American Bulb Co., was born March 4, 1887.

Various Notes.

The most widely circulated daily paper has been publishing a series of articles on the high cost of dying. Undertakers do not appear in an enviable light, but florists do not sympathize. In this city there is little friendship between the two trades. The undertakers seem to regard flowers as an unmitigated nuisance and, because they make nothing on them, they frequently handle the flowers in a way that would be resented if the tables were turned.

C. A. Samuelson is expected home about March 15, to remain until after Easter, when he will return to his apple orchards in Idaho. Each year Mr. Samuelson devotes a larger part of his time to the orchards, leaving the management of the store more and more to Mrs. Samuelson and Edward Enders, who has been there thirty-one years.

Simon Durnberg, who travels south and west for A. Henderson & Co., has been having an excellent trip and reports the trade in his territory never was more active. Joseph Marks also has gone on the road again.

G. M. Reburn has been at home for several days and has been visiting growers in the Moline-Knight. He is acquiring a reputation as a speed king. On a recent trip to Morton Grove he had John Haase, of Pekin, Ill., as a passenger and Mr. Haase says he never rode so fast before.

Miss Clara Masilotti, proprietor of a flower store at 1001 South Racine avenue, has announced herself as a candidate for alderman—or is it alderwoman?—to represent the Nineteenth ward. She will make the race on the ticket of the new Labor party. Miss Masilotti is 25 years old and a native of Chicago.

H. A. Woolf, who has been a member of the staff of The Review for a year or more, will transfer to the force of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association March 10.

It is gratifying to know of the many retail florists who appreciate a Wholesale House that has taken the lead to conform to the principles of "Wholesale Only."

The Wilmington Florists' Club held its February meeting at the office of Wm. N. Potter. It was well attended. Several new committees were appointed, one to secure permanent quarters. Of course, the main topic of the evening was plant exclusion. B. Frank Brinton, of G. W. Brinton & Son, one of the largest growers of plants for the local trade, read an interesting and comprehensive paper on this subject, followed by a general discussion, which resulted in a resolution of protest being passed and ordered sent to Chairman Marlatt.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The first week of March finds a fair cut flower market. There are more roses than there were, and not quite so many carnations. The fine weather has favored production. Most of the other varieties of flowers are more plentiful. Business is active out of town.

There is a heavy crop of the Killarneys, coincident with a more moderate crop of other roses. The buyers generally prefer the other roses. The result is that Killarney and White Killarney sell slowly at about one-half the prices, grade for grade, of other roses. Beauties are just a little more plentiful.

Carnations are steadier in price, owing to the smaller supply. Even short-stemmed daffodils bring good prices, as the supply is small. The variety is Golden Spur. There are only a few Emperor so far. Sweet peas are good, but not quite so fine as they have been. A large number are short-stemmed. Spanish iris is coming in freely. The supply of the fine variety, tingitana, is larger than last season.

There is a good stock of lilac, mostly white, some colored. Paper White narcissi continue, but Roman hyacinths and Freesia Purity are disappearing from the market. There is nothing of especial interest regarding the other flowers beyond the general statement that they are in favor. Forsythia and larkspur have come.

Florists' Club.

The carnation meeting of the Florists' Club was held on the roof garden of the Adelphia hotel Tuesday evening, March 4. It was preceded by a club dinner at which 100 were present; there were 250 at the meeting. The leading address of the evening was by William J. Bunton. Charles J. Theis, talking on "Why the Retailer Does Not Use More Carnations," brought out a discussion between the wholesalers and retailers that suggested daily shipment and closer grading. Theodore Wirth, superintendent of parks at Minneapolis and an ex-president of the S. A. F., was present and made an interesting talk. Charles H. Grakelow followed, his subject being, "The A B C of the F. T. D."

The following were the exhibits of carnations: William Kleinheinz, Ogontz, showed Laddie. Strout's, Biddeford, Me., showed Sunshine and Improved Ward. Scarlett Bros., E. M. Parker, manager, showed their seedling. Jacob Weaver, Lancaster, Pa., had Laddie. Edward Reid staged Matchless for J. Howard Thompson, Ward and Benora for J. H. Palmer and Matchless for Lawrence Thompson. The Bickmore Greenhouses, of Wallingford, exhibited Enchantress Supreme, Belle Washburn, Ward, Matchless and Benora and also showed Iris tingitana and Lilium giganteum.

The W. Atlee Burpee Co. staged forty-four varieties of sweet peas and Edward Reid put up the flowers of J. Howard Thompson. Alois Frey, Crown Point, Ind., sent a handsome display of Rainbow freesias, and the named varieties, Viola and General Pershing. Richard Bagg, Hartford, N. J., staged giant white freesia. The rose exhibits of the evening were by the Joseph Heacock Co., which showed Columbia and Hadley, and by J. Henry Bartram, for whom Edward Reid staged Ophelia and Sunburst.

Kennett.

It is quite a long trip to Kennett, when the number of miles traveled and the number of minutes consumed is weighed against the few minutes there. It seemed like just nothing at all when the pleasure of spending all of those minutes with William Swayne is considered, for William Swayne is a successful grower with definite aims and ambitions which he discusses without reserve.

It may be that Mr. Swayne would be surprised, should he chance to read these lines, at this description, yet it is exact. Mr. Swayne's aim is to produce good stock and his ambition is that that stock shall be produced on his own place in moderate variety. Of course, he has some novelties. He keeps close watch on new ideas where they are improvements, but he relies on standard varieties of recognized merit. The best example is his house of calla lilies. The house is a beautiful sight, the plants uniform and vigorous. The plants have splendid blooms, borne in profusion amid wonderful foliage. The method of growing these calla lilies is interesting. The bulbs are chiefly of the old-fashioned variety, though there are some Godfrey planted in 6-inch pots that are plunged in ashes on raised benches. The pots confine the roots, the ashes hold moisture, the raised benches encourage growth in winter. Some of these calla bulbs are 30 years old; all are in prime condition.

Next in point of interest is Delphinium Belladonna, just coming into bloom. The plants are even, with five or six flowering shoots each, the blooms of that delicate shade of blue that is so popular with flower lovers. A house of snapdragons in full crop was a sight. The yellow is grown, because of the popularity of pink with other growers and because of its sterling qualities.

The chrysanthemum house of stock plants looks well. Entirely free from mite, some twenty-five Japanese varieties and a lesser number of pompons present a sheet of green cuttings. The first batch of cuttings are just nicely rooted in the sand. The strain of calendula grown is that of deep, rich orange that gives so charming an effect in floral arrangement. There are single and double daisies, mignonette, pansies and primulas, the latter in pots.

Mr. Swayne devotes part of his greenhouses to vegetables in winter and early spring. Tomatoes lead. The stock of Lorillard and Comet in small pots was fine evidence of good culture expended on carefully selected greenhouse-grown seed. Radishes and carrots planted after the chrysanthemums, right in the same soil, were excellent.

Mr. Swayne is having an excellent season. He feels fully satisfied that it was best to go right ahead with his work despite the high cost of production.

Various Notes.

The Lord & Burnham Co. has reopened its office in this city at 718 Land Title building. R. C. Fontaine is in charge. D. T. Connor will assist him.

Samuel S. Pennock believes that every florist should take at least one of the partially disabled soldiers on his force from a sense of patriotism.

There are a large number of gardeners seeking employment now. There were thirty-five at one time in the store of the Henry F. Michell Co., a few days ago.

Alfred M. Campbell assumed command of the Ellenwood Greenhouses near Hatboro March 1, a month earlier than at first planned. March 3 William Lausterer took charge as manager for Mr. Campbell. The place will be planted with roses, Ophelia, Double White Killarney and Premier, 20,000 in all.

The death of William J. Stewart is deeply felt by his many friends in this city.

The Market.

With the near approach of spring, cut flower arrivals are increasing and prices have shown a softening tendency. February proved a good month and it is doubtful if growers ever realized more satisfactory prices. While the arrival of Lent may put a quietus on social activities, it has not of late years adversely affected the market, and no one looks for any considerable slump in values.

Roses are not yet abundant, but are a little lower in price. The bulk of the hybrid teas make from $4 to $20 per hundred, with some fancies higher. American Beauties continue to bring good prices. Carnations have declined a little and bring $3 to $5, with such varieties as Good Cheer, Benora Sport and Ward higher. Laddie makes $12 to $15 and is in good demand at these prices. Violets vary from 50 cents to $1 and are coming in more freely. Yellow primroses are arriving from several growers and are popular. Sweet peas command a big sale, the best still making $2.50 to $3 per hundred. Lilies are lower; so are callas. Calendulas, wallflowers, forget-me-nots, bachelor's buttons, snapdragons and pansies are all more abundant. Practically all varieties of bulbous flowers are now obtainable, including Darwin tulips.

Club Victory Banquet.

There was an attendance of over 200 at the Victory banquet of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club in Horticultural hall February 26. The dining tables and stage were beautifully decorated with plants and cut flowers and never previously presented so attractive an appearance. Flags of the United States and her allies adorned the walls. Victory books of songs were found at each plate and many of these were sung with great zest. Andrew K. Rogers acted as toastmaster. William C. Stickel responded ably to the toast of the United States of America. F. E. Palmer spoke for France in his usual finished style. Robert Cameron waxed eloquent over the part played by the British Empire toward winning the war. William Downs paid touching tribute to heroic Belgium and Peter Pederzini covered himself with glory and received rousing cheers for his tribute to his native land, Italy.

Nathaniel T. Kidder, a past president of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, responded for that body, and W. N. Craig said a good word for the ladies. A silent toast was drunk to the memories of M. W. Roberts and John E. Blocksidge, club members killed in action in France. Of the forty-five members in various branches of the service, several have received the croix de guerre and other decorations for bravery. The audience stood also and voiced its sorrow at the passing of W. J. Stewart, the club's first president, who was interred at Mount Auburn cemetery a few hours before the banquet.

At the conclusion of the banquet and toasts, which latter were interspersed with songs by talented artistes, the floor was cleared for dancing, which was enjoyed until midnight.

Funeral of William J. Stewart.

Funeral obsequies for the late William J. Stewart were held Wednesday afternoon, February 26, in Mount Auburn cemetery chapel, Cambridge. Services were private and only one or two friends in the trade, with the members of the family of the deceased, were present. There was a magnificent display of floral souvenirs, which had been tastefully arranged in banks of palms and other foliage plants on standing easels by J. Eiseman, head decorator for Penn. A huge spray of red roses from W. F. and A. Gude covered the casket. W. A. Manda sent a spray of orchids and erica. C. H. Grakelow sent one of handsome

Various Notes.

Growers of dahlias, gladioli, herbaceous perennials and vegetables breathed a sigh of relief when it was learned February 27 that the whole state would not be quarantined against the corn root borer, but that Commissioner of Agriculture Wilfrid Wheeler had been given the authority for which he asked to quarantine the infested sections within the state. Quarantining of the whole state would have meant practical ruin to many growers of plants, bulbs and vegetables.

February proved to be a warm month. The mean temperature was 33 degrees, against a normal of 28 degrees. Rainfall was 2.66 inches, or .78 more than normal. Snowfall was 6.2 inches. There were eleven clear days, thirteen partly cloudy and four cloudy days. The highest temperature in Boston was 53 degrees, lowest 16 degrees. March came in like a lamb, with weeping skies, and with little frost now in the ground and only thin ice on ponds and lakes, indications point to an early spring.

Thomas Roland is sending in a fine lot of French hydrangeas and genistas. At present he is not getting a heavy cut of roses at his Revere establishment.

There will be an exhibition in Horticultural hall March 8 and 9. The imposing display of orchids from Douglas Ecclestone, superintendent to A. C. Burrage, Beverly Farms, will be the star feature, but other growers will also make contributions, although no cash premiums are offered.

Henry M. Robinson & Co. report business for February the best they ever had in that month. All departments are being kept busy.

The W. W. Edgar Co. has received a fine importation of bay trees and azaleas from Belgium.

Wollrath & Sons have received their azaleas and rhododendrons from Europe and hope to flower a good proportion of these for Easter. Their large batch of roses looks remarkably well.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Conditions at the wholesale houses were reported as excellent last week. The clear weather during the week brought out a large increase in all seasonable flowers, especially in bulbous stock, sweet peas and violets. The retailers also report a splendid trade, as society is working overtime with social functions before the Lenten season begins, creating considerable business, especially for the west end florists. So far this season there has been no actual glut of any one variety of flower. During last week the market afforded a splendid cut of roses, all of which were in good demand, with fancy Russell, Ophelia, Columbia and Stanley cleaning up daily.

Carnations have been holding up in price all the week, as there was no oversupply in any one variety. These were held at 8 cents for top price on long, fancy stock and 4 to 6 cents on the poorer grades, all Enchantress varieties having the call. The consignments of sweet peas were heavy and prices took a drop from regular market quotations. Fancy Spencer varieties held their own in demand and price, but the lower grades suffered in price. Violets, too, were more plentiful than the demand called for and the left-over stock sold cheaply in thousand lots. The weather is just right for a big crop for this week.

Bulbous stock is coming in heavily and large consignments of tulips, jonquils, Von Sions, Paper Whites and freesias arrive daily, with a good demand. Excellent valley and a good cut of callas and Easter lilies are seen daily. The week also had a good demand for all kinds of greens, especially smilax and asparagus.

Club Meetings.

The Retail Florists' Association held an interesting meeting February 24 in the Knights of Columbus hall. The feature of the meeting was the annual election of officers, which resulted as follows: President, Fred C. Weber, Jr.; vice-president, Andrew Meyer, Jr.; secretary, Oscar Ruff; treasurer, Andrew Hoffmann, Sr.; sergeant at arms, A. J. Hermann; trustees, Carl Beyer, L. J. Bourdet and W. H. Kruse. The rest of the evening was taken up with discussion of the Milwaukee system of publicity. It was adopted as the best method of raising funds for the purpose. The association meets twice a month, the second and fourth Monday nights. The new officers are well known in the trade as hustlers and have pledged themselves for a big increase in membership for the year. The next meeting of the association will be held March 10, when the new officers will be installed, and every retailer in the city, regardless of membership, is invited to attend. The new secretary, Oscar Ruff, is already on the job with strong notices for this meeting.

The St. Louis Florists' Club's carnation meeting will take place Thursday afternoon, March 13. The exhibition and meeting will be held at the establishment of the Bourdet Floral Co., Magnolia and Tower Grove avenues. The meeting will open promptly at 2 p. m. Refreshments will be served and an attendance prize will be offered. All florists in the city and vicinity are invited to attend. Growers of new varieties are requested to send blooms, and shippers to this market are also requested to send samples of their stock. The officers of the club met at the home of Trustee Lurie, February 27, and all arrangements were made for a record attendance.

Various Notes.

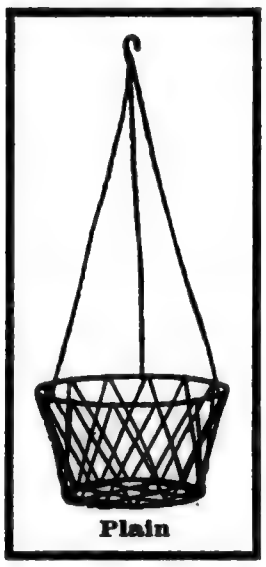
The Florists' Board of Trade held its first meeting February 25, at headquarters. L. J. Bourdet was elected chairman and Frank A. Windler secretary. The board transacted a lot of business and decided to meet the first and third Monday in each month.

The florists' publicity committee held a meeting February 25 to settle up the year's business and audit the books of the secretary and treasurer.

Visitors last week were: A. Miller, of the American Bulb Co., and E. C. Pruner, representing Poehlmann Bros. Co., both of Chicago. They made their headquarters in the wholesale district during their stay.

Fred Alves, head of the cut flower and supply department of the George Angermueller Co., has been on the sick list for the last week, but it is reported he will be back on the job in a few days.

The Ladies' Home Circle will be entertained by Mrs. Thomas Miller at her home, 5886 Delmar boulevard, Wednesday afternoon, March 12.



Paul Reden, head of the Missouri Pottery & Supply Co., reports the heavy demand for all sizes of pots has kept the big force busy both in the factory and shipping rooms.

Charles Young, president of the C. Young & Sons Co., celebrated his wedding anniversary February 22. Mr. Young was married on Washington's birthday eleven years ago to Miss Katherine Courtney.

J. W. Patten, who opened a retail flower store in the wholesale district at 1300 Pine street, reports that business has been more than satisfactory.

ciety, was rejected by the Missouri house of representatives at Jefferson City, Mo., last week. The names of a number of other flowers were presented, but all were voted down.

Otto Sander's store on Seventh street attracted a lot of attention last week with its pretty window display of seasonable bulbous stock. He reports transient trade as being large all the week.

The County Growers' Association did not hold its monthly meeting February 26, as stated in my notes last week. The date should have read March 5, the first Wednesday in each month being the regular meeting date.

The consignments of the W. A. Rowe Co. to the Windler Wholesale Floral Co. last week were of extra fine quality in all seasonable bulbous stock, carnations and sweet peas. The Rowe establishment is one of the largest in Kirkwood.

At the Missouri Botanical Garden a number of interesting plants are now in full bloom in the various conservatories. One of the leading attractions now is the false holly, Chorizema ilicifolium, with its showy masses of orange-red, pea-shaped flowers. Corporal C. L. Moody, who has been at Camp Devens, Mass., for the last year, has been discharged from the army and is now back at the garden, filling his former position as foreman of outdoor gardens.

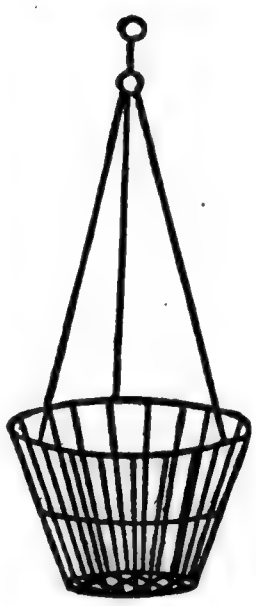
The Market.

The last two weeks have been colder than we had any reason to expect after the unusually warm winter. February went out with a bluster and cold enough to freeze the ground an inch or two. Of course this delays outdoor stock and is for the good of the trade. Daffodils are growing rather scarce and will continue to be so till more of the outdoor flowers open. There are a few in protected places, but they have not appeared on the market as yet. Hyacinths are beginning to be fairly plentiful, both in pots and cut. While we have seen some good hyacinths, on the whole they are not up to their ordinary quality. It is evident that they were not grown and selected so carefully in Holland last year as usual. Few Soleil d'Or narcissi reached this town last year and no Roman hyacinths. The former are all gone. In normal times they are one of the most popular flowers in this market at this season.



There are unusually good cinerarias on the market just now and it seems as though the trade went in more heavily for primulas than usual. They are selling well.

We have seen few freesias thus far and sweet peas are just beginning to be plentiful. Violets are scarce and have been all winter. Carnations have done their best to make up for all deficiencies. Roses are coming more freely again. In fact, the last ten days have been the first time in months when there were all the flowers that could be sold, with a few to spare. Never before have so many calendulas been grown here and they have been decidedly popular.

Various Notes.

Our florists are ordering enough of Rose Premier to make sure that it will be a figure in the market next year. But they are not buying it so freely as they did Columbia a year ago, perhaps because most of the growers think that Columbia is about as good a rose as they can get. All are eager to welcome a really good red rose, however. Sunburst, Ward and Hillingdon have all but disappeared from the market. Everyone admits their selling qualities, but they say they do not produce enough.

McIntyre Bros. gave us the best colored Russell and Columbia roses this week that we remember having seen. If they could produce this quality right along, and in large enough numbers, their fortune would be made. After dismantling their old place they decided to erect two new houses at the new place. They have begun construction on these. They will be modern in every respect, with cement benches, but as there was plenty of good material from the old place, they are wooden frame buildings.

Thomas Joy spent most of last week in Chattanooga, overseeing repairs on the store there. He reports that there are no traces left of the Christmas fire. Miss Louise Sloan, of the Joys' retail store, has been at home several days on account of the serious illness of her mother.

Geny Bros. are cutting an abundance of sweet peas, including the best lavendar orchid-flowered pea we have seen grown here.

Louis Haury is putting up a fine display of pot plants in the market house this spring. He is devoting more and more of his glass to plants and flowers, though still gardening on a large scale.

ply and meet with an excellent demand. Bulbous stock is becoming plentiful. The list includes both forced and southern daffodils and jonquils, double and single tulips, Dutch hyacinths, freesias and Paper White narcissi. Snapdragon meets with a good demand. Other offerings are calendulas, orchids, violets, baby primroses, wallflowers and forget-me-nots. Greens of all kinds are meeting with a good market.

Various Notes.

E. G. Gillett's wirework department has been exceptionally busy during the last several weeks.

C. E. Critchell has been getting in some excellent sweet peas that have been finding a ready sale.

Among recent visitors were Philip L. McKee, president of the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., Chicago; Robert Rahaley, Detroit, Mich.; S. J. Hider, Hillsboro, O.; John Scott, Huntsville, Ala., and Joseph Hill, Richmond, Ind.

Clarence Conger, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Conger, who was waylaid and shot a week ago at Wichita, Kan., died March 1 from his wounds. His parents and family have the sympathy of their friends in their bereavement.

Mrs. Theresa Buschle, wife of E. Buschle, passed away at her home last week. She was a victim of influenza. Her husband and a child survive. The trade extends to them its sympathy in their bereavement. C. H. H.

DENVER, COLO.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Lewis, of the Columbine Flower Shop, has been confined to her bed for the last seven weeks by the influenza and complications. She is slowly improving.

Sergt. K. C. Davis, who served for more than a year in the Quartermaster Corps, has returned to Denver and is now with C. F. Maler. His only regret is that he was not sent overseas.

A recent letter from William Cash, who is in a company of the Engineer Corps in France, states that he expects to be home before Easter. R. S.

Monticello, Ill.—G. E. Switzer, of Frankfort, Ind., who formerly was associated with his brother, C. I. Switzer, in the Monticello Floral Co., recently visited the latter here. G. E. Switzer now owns and operates greenhouses in Frankfort.

Atlanta, Ga.—It is conceded that most of the young men who do not "Say It with Flowers," say it with candy. Well, Nunnally's don't care how much the swains talk, for both flowers and candy are handled. This is one of the leading stores in the south.

Camp Hill, Pa.—T. J. Opperman, by taking advantage of the opportunity to purchase the greenhouses of a defunct neighbor, will make an addition to his range, for business is fine. This firm cannot supply the demand at good prices.

The Market.

A day or two during the week were reminders of approaching spring. The flower buyers readily respond to such days and the cashier registers a satisfying increase in counter sales. Spring flowers are in demand. Daffodils, tulips, narcissi, sweet peas and violets find a ready market at good prices. The carnation supply has fallen off slightly, no doubt helping to hold the price where it should be. The supply of roses has increased slightly, but not enough to make any impression on prices. There have been some fine shipments of Russells, mostly Chicago-grown. They have fine heads and good keeping qualities and are the most satisfactory roses in this market. American Beauties are scarce.

Various Notes.

John L. Kramer has a neat new Dodge delivery car. In addition to this indication of success, he has installed an electric sign which represents a vase of roses and at the bottom are the words: "Say It with Flowers."

The Queen City Seed & Nursery Co., Inc., held its opening March 1. This store will carry a line of bulbs, seeds, nursery stock, fertilizers and garden tools. It will also make landscape work and gardening a specialty. Such a store has been a long-felt want in this city, and if the motto it has adopted is lived up to it cannot help but be a success. The motto is "Quality and Service," and the men behind it have been known to most of the trade for many years. Henry H. Elbers is president and manager. Mr. Elbers is the former director of the South Park Botanical Gardens, having acted in that capacity for many years. Emil C. Brucker is vice-president, Wallace A. Eiss is secretary and Edward Stengel is treasurer. With them they have E. Douglass Savage, who has a comprehensive knowledge of seeds and bulbs. Mr. Savage was formerly with S. A. Anderson. Many friends of the new company expressed their thoughts through flowers and plants at the opening.

The Florists' Club will give a banquet and entertainment at the Statler hotel March 11, when the new officers nominated at the last meeting will be elected. Every member ought to buy a ticket and help to secure a record attendance.

been for some time. Roses are good and the best grade of Columbia, Russell, Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty brings from $6 to $10 per dozen. Carnations remain at $2 per dozen. Sweet peas are extra good and are selling at from $2 to $4 per hundred; double violets at $3 to $5 per hundred. Paper Whites are bringing $2 per dozen; tulips, $1 to $2 per dozen; orchids, $1.50 to $2 each; jonquils, $1 per dozen.

Owing to the mild weather, outdoor jonquils are coming in large quantities and can be bought from the wagons at the city market as low as 10 cents per dozen. This, however, does not seem to affect the sale of better jonquils in the flower stores at $1 per dozen.

There is a good supply of cyclamens, hyacinths and jonquils, and they are quick sellers at from $1 to $3 per pot. Quite a number are being sold in made-up baskets at from $5 to $12.

Seed trade is beginning to pick up as gardening time gets nearer and the demand for flower seeds and bedding plants promises to be greater this season than ever. The same spirit that prompted war gardens seems to prevail in regard to peace gardens and the activities along this line promise to be even greater this spring than they have been the last two years.

The stock list shows that close to half a million Manetti stocks are in operation, either worked or prepared by the army of "florettes." More than a quarter million chrysanthemums are in the sand, and a like number of carnations are in the same stage. Attention was called to a seedling carnation, No.

The Market.

Flowers are in good variety and supply and business is brisk. Sweet peas, bulbous stock, roses and carnations are fine and clean up each day. Green goods are scarce, especially smilax. The outdoor temperature is below normal, with no snow and little rain. Bright days are the rule.

Various Notes.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. is experiencing its usual heavy business. This company's window is prettily decorated with plants, such as Paper Whites, jonquils, hyacinths and cinerarias, as well as cut flowers.

Karl Zeidler is extra busy with funeral work and has a hard time finding enough smilax.

C. L. Niednagel is propagating the Columbia rose heavily. He has sale for all he can grow in 2-inch pots. He recently purchased a large Haynes touring car.

Niednagel & Sons are cutting extra fine carnations and sweet peas. Business is excellent. Their shipments of coleus cuttings are heavy.

Theodore Kuebler is having considerable funeral work. He is well supplied with flowers, such as sweet alyssum, freesias and carnations. He also has some chrysanthemums of good size and quality. He has just sent out his catalogue of chrysanthemum rooted cuttings.

Henry Seymour's son, Wilbur, has secured his release from the navy and expects to accept a position in Chicago.

Mrs. J. C. Elspermann is so busy with funeral work that she has trouble in securing all the flowers and greens she needs.

The Lockyear Floral Co. has an active trade in both plants and flowers. Mr. Lockyear was a visitor in St. Louis last week, calling on a number of the wholesalers there.

Royston & Fenton report an extra heavy demand for coleus. E. L. Fenton was 39 years old March 2. E. L. F.

TERRE HAUTE, IND.

Henry B. Henley and his brother, Howard E. Henley, have bought the establishment of the Terre Haute Rose & Carnation Co. It consists of 50,000 square feet of glass and five acres of land. Henry Henley will operate the greenhouses. He has a half interest and Howard Henley a half interest in the firm. The greenhouses will be devoted entirely to growing cut flowers and plants for the wholesale trade and the firm will be known as Henley Bros. Robert M. Henley has bought the half interest of his brother, Henry, in the firm formerly known as the Hartford City Floral Co. or Henley Bros., at Hartford City, Ind. Robert will operate the greenhouses at Hartford City. The firm will be known as R. M. Henley, Florist. The latter firm will make a specialty of growing pelargoniums for the wholesale trade.

Holland, Mich.—Peter Pluim and Henry Huizenga, of the Twelfth Street Floral Shop, started in the florists' business three years ago, and are more than pleased with the trade developed. Their window display features hyacinths, daffodils and jonquils, all of which meet with a ready demand.

It will happen to you too

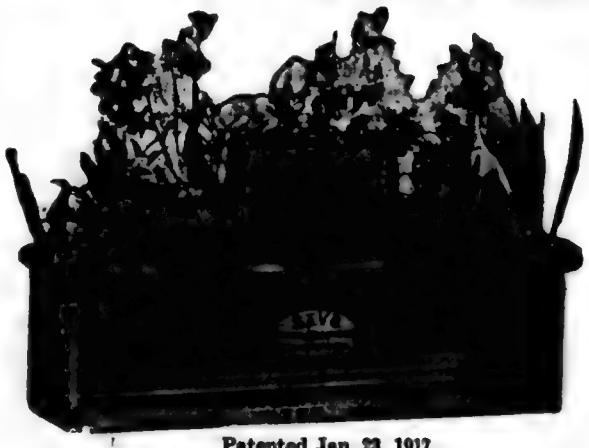
Manager: "Here is a rush order for a $7.50 Eastern Star for the 4:10 train—just 20 minutes to make it in, too."

Designer: "We have no yellow flowers and are out of immortelles and we used the last star frame yesterday for Mrs. Snow. We have had them ordered for a week, and how I wish the government officials had to EAT all the delayed shipments."

(Door opens and in steps Bayersdorfer's man from Philadelphia. He notes that all is in confusion, and offers his help---Manager explains, and he offers real help.)

Traveling Man: "I can help you. Get me about a foot of 6-inch white chiffon." It is produced, and he simply attaches an Eastern Star Frat-M to the chiffon and places it in the center of a pillow which was already made up, and Bob gets a box, packs it and makes the train. Figure the saving to the florist.

(HERE IS THE PILLOW.)



Manager: "For heaven's sake send us some of those Frat-M's; they saved our life today, and will do it again. What are they worth?"

Traveling Man: "They cost 20 cents each, and will sell for 50 cents and will save you more real money, time, worry, and flowers than anything you buy."

Frat-M's are reproductions of Fraternal Emblems in the colors as demanded by each order. They can be bought of any wholesale supply house or the

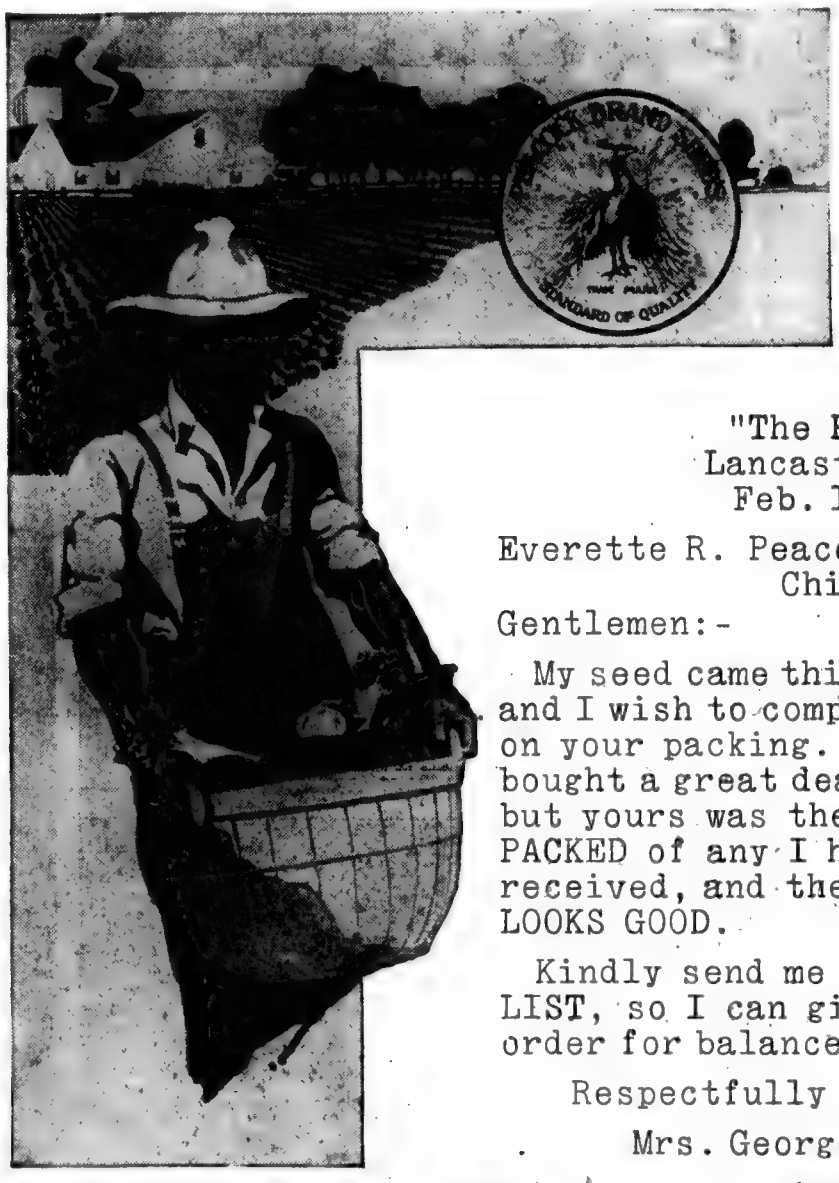
Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.; thirty-seventh annual convention, Chicago, June, 1919.

IMPORTERS and jobbers are finding it extremely easy to book orders for future delivery; the trade is willing to place orders for plants, bulbs and everything but seeds at open prices.

A LIST of the principal seed merchants, seedsmen and nurserymen of Sydney, Australia, may be had by writing to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Washington, D. C., and referring to File No. 9598.

MANY of the general catalogues show a sharp reduction in size, but it is not apparent that there is any decrease in selling qualities. Of course, most of the books were planned while the War Industries Board was urging the conservation of paper, of which they show the effect, but the increased cost also was a factor. There is a probability that paper will cost a little less next season than it did last, but otherwise the cost of printing will be still higher.



SEEDS IN ENGLAND.

A census of stocks and prospective supplies of agricultural and garden seeds in England and Wales recently taken by the British Board of Agriculture indicates that, with a few relatively unimportant exceptions, ample quantities are available to meet the estimated demand for sowing this spring. Purchasers are reminded that under the Testing of Seeds Order seedsmen are required to disclose certain essential facts regarding the quality of the seeds they sell. Standards of germination and purity are specified in the order and small packets of vegetable seed falling below these standards must be so declared. An implied guarantee that the seeds are up to or above the standards specified in the order is therefore given with all packets of vegetable seeds affected by the order unless the seller makes a declaration to the contrary at the time of sale. The Official Seed Testing Station for England and Wales, 72 Victoria street, London, S. W., is prepared to test seed for those who intend to use the seed for their own sowing at the rate of 3d (6 cents) per sample.

PITY THE POOR BULB GROWERS.

A few months ago there appeared in this column of The Review comment on the packing charges on the 1918 shipments of Dutch bulbs to America, which were uniformly $3 per case, for some 18,000 cases, making the trade in this country a little item of expense of about $54,000. There also was a facetious comment that the French shippers seemed to have overlooked a bet, as their packing charges last season were only $1 per case. The item was copied into the European trade papers and has provoked much discussion. The following letter was sent to the Horticultural Advertiser by C. M. Grullemans, Sr., of J. J. Grullemans & Sons, Lisse, Holland:

"The buyers of bulbs in the future have as yet not much to say regarding prices of bulbs, doubtless because their breath has been taken away. Now, I can only wish that those who have lost their breath shall regain it in time, and I have no doubt they will succeed if they only consider things in fair way.

Allow me to give you one or two hints. Before the war the surplus of bulbs in Holland had reached the top, with the consequences that prices came down below low watermark; in fact, we delivered bulbs at most ridiculous rates, and not sufficient with that, we started to cut one another's throats by offering f. o. b. Rotterdam, and not sufficient even with that, some went so far as to deliver bulbs free destination, including all packing charges free.

"Every business man will admit that only the overproduction brought things to such a state.

"Now, since the war broke out, one has to see matters in another light. Labor forty per cent higher, while manure, which is used in tremendous quantities, has reached a price which one never thought possible. To give an idea: Before the war we paid 7 shillings ($1.68) per square yard; present price, 30 shillings ($7.20). So if prices of bulbs had not been raised in proportion, we might just as well have closed our doors.

"Another matter is that tremendous quantities of miscellaneous bulbs and plants, and also large quantities of crocus, narcissi, hyacinths and the cheaper kind of tulips, have been sold. Tulips for baking powder, while hyacinths and narcissi were turned into starch. This, together with the high costs of exploitation, has reduced the stock to such an extent that if the demand will be only half as large as before the war, considerably higher prices will have to be paid for the future.

"I now turn to the heading, packing charges. The writer put this in a light as if we were trying to 'do' our friends in the trade. It is for that reason that I will try to take such impression away. What are the present prices in Holland? Does a bulb grower, by charging $3, make a profit? By no means.

"Before the war an ordinary bulb case cost about three and sixpence (84 cents); present price, 9 to 10 shillings ($2.40), while paper bags were raised in price from 3d per pound to 1 shilling per pound (from 6 to 24 cents). This, with the absurd high price for buckwheat, makes $3 a price by which a bulb grower has more chance to lose than to gain.

"We further wish to remark that where the cases from France are charged at $1, our substantial cases, including the first-class packing material, are selling cheap at $3. We invite the writer in The Florists' Review to come and have a look in our books and we will convince him further."

catalogue, with clear, concise descriptions and with only two or three illustrations.

Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.—Thirty-fifth annual seed catalogue, illustrated; 112 large, compactly printed pages, with a tasteful cover in three shades of brown. At the beginning is a condensed alphabetical list of vegetable seeds, with prices but with no descriptions; then follows the descriptive list, without prices. Next in order are flower seeds, with prices. In the third section of the book, devoted to field seeds, no prices are quoted, "owing to the unsettled condition of the market and to the fact that this catalogue is necessarily prepared in advance of the date of issue." At the end are peonies, berry plants, roses, gladioli, tools and supplies.

H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., Nursery, Mo.—An illustrated list of general nursery stock, roses, perennials and greenhouse plants; forty-eight pages, in narrow, pocket form. "On account of the high cost of paper and at the request of the government," says the company, "we are this year only issuing a price list. We expect, however, to publish a descriptive catalogue sometime during the coming summer."

The D. Hill Nursery Co., Inc., Dundee, Ill.—Illustrated, 24-page wholesale catalogue, "for nurserymen, florists, seedsmen and dealers." Evergreens, the Hill specialty, are offered here in many sorts, shapes and sizes, to suit the different requirements of the trade. The list comprises fair-sized evergreens and large specimens, seedlings and rooted cuttings for bedding out, small plants for window boxes, dwarf stock for many purposes, boxwoods and other varieties in tubs. Deciduous stock also is listed, especially young stock for lining out.

F. H. Ebeling, Syracuse, N. Y.—"Fiftieth Annual Catalogue of Seeds, Bulbs, Hardware and Farm Supplies," illustrated; eighty-eight pages, in a colored cover of the offset type. The list of farm and garden equipments is so extensive as to occupy just half the book. The implements range from sulky plows, harrows, cultivators, hay loaders, manure spreaders, grain drills, traction sprayers and potato diggers down to the smallest tools used by the gardener or farmer.

SNAPDRAGON

Soon be time to sow seed for bedding. Be ready with a big lot of snap plants. They will sell.

We have added some new ones. Note the following list: Seed of our famous Silver Pink, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of our new Hybrid Pink and of our new Golden Pink Queen, same price. Seed of Keystone, Nelrose, Garnet, White, Yellow, Light Pink, Buxton and Fancy Mixed, 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00. Free cultural directions. All orders cash.

the whole has been good and has shown the activity that has been partially lost during the last year and a half. Funeral work is an important factor. Social affairs are coming into prominence again, but so far most of them are on a small scale.

The cut of carnations has dropped off considerably during the last week; the supply is hardly sufficient to meet present demands. Roses are in good supply. The demand is chiefly for the medium grades. A small quantity of snapdragon is seen in pink and yellow and sells readily. Sweet peas are in fair supply, of extremely good quality. Good quality tulips are seen and move well. Paper White narcissi have been clearing well. Jonquils are in good demand. Double daffodils are arriving and are good. Freesia is not plentiful. Roman hyacinths sell well. The demand for violets this week has been good, with insufficient stock some days to go around. Cattleyas and other orchids are in good supply; the demand is fairly strong. Anemones, pansies, wallflowers, forget-me-nots and calendulas are among the flowers noted, but are in small supply. Easter lilies are scarce, but this scarcity is overcome by the large supply of callas. Cut lilacs are available and are of excellent quality.

The supply of Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri is quite small, several of the southern growers being unable to ship on account of recent frosts. Potted plants continue to sell in a satisfactory manner.

Various Notes.

The Rochester Floral Co. has just purchased the business and good will of H. P. Neun, at 8 North street, and will occupy the store soon after Easter. Since 1907 this business has been identified with the city's growth. Twelve years ago H. E. Wilson opened a branch at 379 East Main street, and remained there three years. The business was then moved to 245 East Main street and continued there four years, until it moved to the present site four years ago. This store has recently been purchased by a candy company.

composed of baskets of cut bulbous stock, were seen at the store of J. B. Keller Sons this week. At their greenhouses they have a fine display of bulbous stock, which is selling well.

Another addition to the florists' business in this city is that of Arthur W. Morrisey, of 372 Plymouth avenue, who has started up in the wire design business.

George R. Case, of James Vick's Sons, spent Sunday in Auburn, N. Y., with relatives.

William De Graff, a prominent attorney, will address the members of the Rochester Florists' Association at its monthly meeting to be held March 9, at 8 p. m. His subject will be "The League of Nations." Friends of the members are invited to attend.

The extensive decoration for the policemen's ball which was held at the N. Y. S. Armory February 24 reflects credit on George T. Boucher and Oliver T. Boucher. It is the opinion of many experts that this was the most artistic decoration ever accomplished of its kind in the city. The lighting effect was a perfect fairyland and the combination of flowers and lights was wonderful.

H. J. H.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

The market has been easier this week than for some time. All lines of stock are in much better supply than at any time this winter. Roses, which have been off crop and consequently scarce, are now in good crop and of exceptionally good quality. Carnations are up to the demand and, like roses, are of that quality that we usually speak of as "A1." Sweet peas, which have been so scarce all winter, are now trying to shove everything off the market and, judging from the quantity that comes on the market, either nature or the boys have found some effective remedy for bud dropping. Paper Whites, like all miscellaneous stock, are in good supply. I think everyone will agree with me that the fine, springlike weather we have been having is more responsible for the production of flowers at this time than anything the grower can do. The demand for flowers still holds good and the wholesale houses clean up well each day.

Club Meeting.

A meeting of the Florists' Club was called to consider radical changes in the constitution and by-laws. A committee had been appointed, with William F. Ekas as chairman. As Mr. Ekas read the recommendations of the committee, one would have supposed the club was going through a process of reorganization and this is about what it amounts to. Right here I want to speak of the credit which is due our retiring president, R. A. Vincent. Although he had eighteen miles to come, he never missed a meeting. I shall always feel that the club was most fortunate in having a man of Mr. Vincent's type for its presiding officer during one of the most trying years of the thirty-two of its existence. After Robert Halliday had been nominated for the ensuing year, Mr. Vincent showed the stuff he was made of, when in a short speech he said there was no man in our city he would rather see succeed him and the new president would find him just as willing to work for the welfare of the club in the ranks as he had been as president.

The year has been a hard one on our club, as I understand it has been with most clubs throughout the country, but owing to the energy of Mr. Vincent the Baltimore club has a good nucleus to begin life anew, which is just what we propose to do. I am sorry to say that death has robbed us of some of the most faithful members; then war conditions and the weather of last winter have been most trying, but none of these things can keep a bunch of florists down. Our slogans during the coming year will be "Watch us Grow" and "Say It with Flowers."

Various Notes.

A short time ago several of us were speaking of the most popular men connected with the trade in Baltimore. Among others, the name of J. J. Perry, of the S. S. Pennock Co., was mentioned. This was forcibly brought home to me today. Usually the last thing I do before writing my letter for The Review is to call up Mr. Perry and see if there is any belated news I should have. Today he was too busy for me to get his ear even for a minute. About half an hour afterward I was walking down Courtland street when I heard someone call me. I turned and there was Perry, in his "tin lizzie" that so many of us know so well, with an apology for not having been able to talk to me when I called. His delivery trucks were out and he was delivering a hurry-up order himself to a customer in East Baltimore. This is the accommodating spirit which has, during the last twenty-five years, made Mr. Perry one of the most popular men in the trade of our city and invaluable to the house of Pennock.

George J. Muhly has launched his new enterprise. It has been incorporated under the name of the Baltimore Florists' Exchange and was opened for business February 24, at 512 St. Paul street. Mr. Muhly assures me it will not be long before everything will be running smoothly. Tate.

Flowers as large as cosmos, a most beautiful yellow, with good long stems. Every one that likes yellow will find this grand for cutting. Blooms in June and July.	.08
DICTAMNUS (Gas Plant)—A very showy perennial, forming a bush about two and a half feet in height, having fragrant foliage and spikes of curious flowers during June and July, giving off during hot weather a fragrant volatile oil, which ignites when a match is applied.
Alba, pure white	.08
DELPHINIUM BELLADONNA (Perennial Larkspur)—The most continuous blooming of all, never being out of bloom from the end of June until cut down by hard frost. The clear turquoise-blue of its flowers is not equaled for delicacy and beauty by any other flower.
Select clumps	.14
Extra large clumps	.40
FUNKIA UNDULATA VARIEGATA (Day Lily)—Graceful green leaves having fluted white edge. Very conspicuous plant for border	.10
GAILLARDIA GRANDIFLORA—This is considered one of the most beautiful and desirable plants in cultivation, beginning to bloom in June; they continue one mass the entire season. GYPSOPHILA PANICULATA (Baby's Breath)—A beautiful, old-fashioned plant, possessing a grace not found in any other perennial and attracting the eye of everyone. PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Loomis, Cal.—Owing to many contracts for carnation cuttings taken from the field, to be delivered January, 1920, W. H. Hawkins, proprietor of the Loomis Carnation Co., has decided to build another large propagating house.

Berkeley, Cal.—W. F. Norton has an unusual distinction: Where most florists have suffered only one attack of the "flu" this season, he has had two attacks and has been able to give only a small part of his time to the business for several weeks. He is pleased to think that he now has fully recovered.

FRISCO FLORISTS AWAKE.

Aware of the value of getting the idea of the F. T. D. before the public, the florists of San Francisco succeeded in getting the following article printed in the San Francisco Bulletin as part of their campaign of education along these lines:

"'Say It with Flowers'—a slogan adopted by the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, with members in the principal cities of the United States—has a significance that is not fully understood by the majority of people. A person hearing of the service for the first time usually asks: 'How can flowers be sent by telegraph?'

"Desiring to send flowers to a friend or relative in some distant city, one places his order with a local member of the association. The order is telegraphed to a member of the organization in the town the delivery desired is to be made. Within about one hour from the receipt of the telegram the flowers ordered will be delivered to the desired address.

"Members of the organization are under bond to give the best of attention to the order and also to see that the order is delivered promptly.

"The slogan phrase has an additional meaning. The fragrance, the warmth and beauty of fresh blossoms and green can express, in a way that words cannot, the thought and feeling that the sender desires to convey.

"San Francisco members are MacRorie & McLaren, Mrs. R. E. Darbee, Julius Eppstein, B. M. Joseph, Pelicano, Rossi & Co., and the Art Floral Co."

PACIFIC COAST POINSETTIAS.

Since the poinsettia is a native of warm regions in Mexico and Central America, the conditions which the skillful grower can provide for it in the mild climate of the California seacoast ought to be highly satisfactory to it. It ought to feel really at home in a California greenhouse and be healthy and happy there. The tropical or semi-tropical characteristics of the plant's original abode can be more closely imitated in California, perhaps, than in most other parts of the north temperate zone. The protection of a greenhouse, combined with the continuous but gentle ventilation that is possible in the kindly California air, is the best attainable substitute for the plant's natural environment.

But even the highly praised California climate needs close watching and so does the poinsettia itself. If the poinsettia is neglected, it is liable to retaliate suddenly, without giving the grower what might be considered fair warning. It quickly drops its leaves and looks sullen and disreputable. If the grower turns his back to it too long, it is prone to misbehave, and when he faces it again the damage has been done and is irremediable.

Two Thousand Pots of Poinsettia, all Alike as Peas in a Pod.

It is evident that the poinsettias shown in the illustration had no opportunity for such misconduct. They were grown by the Hayashi brothers, of Oakland, Cal., who formerly were known in the trade as H. Hayashi & Co., but have recently changed the name of their establishment to Hayashi Bros.' Nursery.

This house of poinsettias contained 2,000 single-stem plants, grown for last Christmas. Two other houses in the range were filled with poinsettias for the same occasion. Not all of the company's poinsettias, of course, are grown as single specimens in pots, but the stock is treated in different ways to suit all phases of the demand. A considerable proportion of the plants are made up in pans, shallow boxes and other such receptacles. The Hayashi brothers make a specialty of producing various species of plants, such as poinsettias, cyclamens, Easter lilies, ferns and rambler roses, for the wholesale holiday market.

than in summer, when dull times are expected, but there are usually some dull days in February. The wholesalers, on the other hand, say that shipping has kept up well. So far, there has been no trouble with washouts and shipments have gone out regularly, thus preventing disappointment and delay at the customers' end. Roses are more plentiful now than for a long time and the small polyantha types are beginning to come in from outdoors. Carnations are improving and the cool, moist weather is fine for violets. Sweet peas are more plentiful and many fine varieties are now coming in. Orchids are about even with the demand. Greens and plants are about as last reported.

Various Notes.

Thomas H. Wright, of Wright's Flower Shop, has been putting in a good deal of time at the greenhouses of late, arranging for the planting of new rose stock. He figures on trying out several novelties. In the meantime the staff at the store is kept busy every day with decorations and transient business.

Roy W. Benner, who has been in the army fourteen months, and Otto Briscoe, who has been in the service a shorter time, have both been honorably discharged and have joined the force of the Broadway Florists.

D. S. Purdie, of Purdie & Co., has been suffering from a severe throat attack, which has caused him considerable pain.

Morris Goldenson is around on crutches, as the result of a fall through the ceiling of the store while the work of rearrangement was in progress. He struck his head in falling and was rendered unconscious. He was bleeding profusely on being taken to the hospital. Later it was found that no bones were broken, but he was badly bruised and is stiff, suffering great pain. His daughter also has been on the sick list. The new arrangement of the store, with its rockwork effect and fountain, has a cool and attractive appearance and is quite distinct from anything else in town.

S. Murata & Co. report large arrivals of fine daffodils and other bulbous stock. Mr. Murata says the shipping business is holding up well for the season.

Walter Armacost & Co. have secured all the pipe and fittings for the five houses, each 36x300 feet, that will form the first unit of the new construction. Mr. Armacost says that greenhouse building at present puts an awful crimp in the bank roll, but he believes that it will pay to be among the early ones. Among the items showing the high cost of building are boilers at $3,000 each which a few years ago were quoted at $900.

The L. A. Floral Co. is branching out considerably in plant shipments and there has also been a good local demand for some excellent stock of Primula malacoides in large pans. In addition, the cut flower shipments are holding up well.

Frank Lichtenberg reports a lot of table and other decorations that are taking the place of funeral work—a good sign. H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Arrivals of roses and certain other flowers increased during the last week, but the passing of the early crop of daffodils and a falling off in the supply of freesias and carnations tended to keep the aggregate about the same. The roses generally show excellent quality and more could still be used on certain days, as there is an active shipping demand in addition to a seasonably brisk local call. Prices have receded slightly, but the market is firm for this time of the year. Hadley roses show up particularly well at present and clean up easily, and the same may be said of Russell and Ophelia. American Beauties leave nothing to be desired. A nice cut of baby roses finds a ready market. Daffodils are missed, the early crop having gone off abruptly a week or two before the later varieties are due. The limited offerings have been bringing $1.75 and as high as $2 a hundred, whereas the best blooms to be had sold for 40 and 50 cents a week ago. Though in lighter supply, carnations have not advanced, the best grades bringing 75 cents a bunch. Freesias also remain at the same price.

A heavy cut of daffodils is expected to start again in a week or ten days. Meanwhile there is an increasing supply of tulips and hyacinths, which work in nicely, and ranunculi and anemones are getting more plentiful from day to day. Violets are at their best now, following the recent rain, and an active shipping demand, in addition to local requirements, cleans up the daily receipts without difficulty. Lilies continue on the short side of the market; few callas and still fewer Easter lilies are to be had here. Orchids are not quite so plentiful as they had been for several weeks, but gardenias are in a little heavier supply, about evening things up. Spring blossoms constitute a prominent item, and much acacia is used for decorative work, as well as pussy willow. An urgent need is felt for more Asparagus plumosus.

Various Notes.

J. A. Axell, manager of the E. W. McLellan Co., reports business fine. Local trade keeps his staff busy early in the day and shipping orders require attention later. Many roses are now being sent to Seattle, Tacoma, Bellingham, Pocatello and other points in the Pacific northwest, the company having a fine cut of Hadley, Russell, Ophelia and baby roses. Large out-of-town orders also are being filled for violets, freesias and other flowers.

W. B. Clarke, manager of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries in San Jose, Cal., has been making frequent visits to the Bay district recently in connection with the distribution of stock shipped from the Ward place at Eureka, Cal. He announces that special attention is being devoted at San Jose to new rose specialties and flowering fruit trees. The local trade has been supplied with some fine azaleas from the Cottage Gardens Nurseries at Eureka.

The C. Kooyman Co. has on display this week a specimen heather plant from the Cottage Gardens Nurseries at Eureka. It is about six feet in diameter and six feet high and has attracted much attention from visiting florists and passers-by.

Domoto Bros. expect to have a fine lot of rambler roses and hydrangeas for Easter, but only a few lilies.

Enomoto & Co. report that the shipping demand for violets is holding up exceedingly well. They also report a good demand for roses, carnations and spring bulbous stock. They are agents in this vicinity for Carco, a new insect spray, for which Arthur Cann, of San Jose, has the exclusive California agency.

The United Flower & Supply Co. has no complaints to make about business. A brisk shipping trade and a normally active local demand take care of quantities of flowers daily.

In response to a call from a committee of local florists, a meeting was held February 21, which was attended by representatives from most of the downtown stores and some from the outlying districts. Had the night not been so stormy, a larger gathering would no doubt have materialized. Plans were discussed for arranging a banquet in honor of men returning from the service, and a committee was appointed to devise ways and means for such an event. The committee consists of Victor Podesta, of Podesta & Baldocchi; Frank Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co.; P. V. Matraia, of the Art Floral Co.; P. Ferrari, of Ferrari Bros., and Mr. Thomas, of the Thomas Floral Co. The members are to canvass the trade and report at a meeting called for March 14.

Angelo J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., says business compares favorably with the corresponding period of former years.

Miss Ednah, a popular employee of F. C. Jaeger & Son, has been off duty on account of illness.

own well, both at the store in Powell street and the Palace hotel stand. He is getting an excellent cut of heather from the company's Lake Merced nursery and is also supplied with plenty of fine cyclamens and primulas. In view of the general shortage of Easter lilies, Mr. Bertrand is much gratified over the MacRorie-McLaren Co. having an ample supply in sight for the holiday.

Mrs. Copeland, who conducts the Hannon Sisters' place on Sutter street, notes a marked increase in social work, indicating a good deal of entertaining during the pre-Lenten period. Several good-sized wedding decorations have helped out well in the last two or three weeks.

A. Cuneo, designer for the Art Floral Co., reports a good many nice decorations of late, and says store trade leaves no ground for complaint.

Avansino Bros. expect to have a fine cut of daffodils again in a week or ten days. At the store on Geary street the sales for February showed a good increase over the same month last year.

While there was no special activity in business last week, B. M. Joseph finds that each day's sales have totaled up to a satisfactory figure, the demand being quite evenly divided among funeral work, table decorations and store trade.

Mrs. Roberts, of the J. B. Boland store, says February was a fairly good month all around. M. M.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Owing to the dark and rainy weather last week, stock has been kept down to a normal supply. Some of the florists report a shortage of certain lines, but, taking everything into account, the demand is about equal to the supply and business has been good. The Rotary Club convention and the automobile show have stimulated business to an appreciable extent. The florists all seem to be optimistic and are looking forward to excellent business this spring.

Various Notes.

Lawrence M. Johnson, with the 2d Artillery, recently returned from the war zone. He is now back in his former business of making all kinds of wire novelties and floral designs.

Hans Niklas was in the Sound cities for a few days last week, on business and pleasure.

C. P. Kipp, of the Spokane Florist Co., is in town attending the international convention of the Rotary Club.

Max Smith says that the Rotary Club convention has brought him an unusual amount of business. He secured the work of decorating the Auditorium and the Benson hotel.

The Wilson-Crout-Gehr Co. has put in a full line of florists' supplies. There is no reason why the company should not do well in that line. L. T. S.

MIDGE ON CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

I am sending some leaves taken from chrysanthemum stock plants of the variety Chieftain. Will you please tell me what is the matter with them?

W. E. S.—N. Y.

The leaves sent are infested with what is known as chrysanthemum midge, which has been discussed frequently in these columns. Persistent nightly fumigation seems to be the only effective remedy. If your plants are too badly infested to be cleaned off by fumigation with tobacco dust, we would suggest throwing out the entire stock and making a new start, unless this would mean a serious loss. FRUIT STOCK PROBLEMS.

Much Study Required.

The soils of France and America, as well as the souls of those two countries, have been blended—literally. The most notable instance of the incorporation of American soil into the soil of France was the taking to France of several barrels of American earth in which to bury the body of Lafayette, but French soil has been incorporated into American soil in literally millions of places. Probably every county in the United States has its admixture of French soil, and it is scarcely too much to say that some particles of it have found their way to practically every farm throughout the length and breadth of the country.

How did it come? On fruit stocks. The above-ground portion of your fruit trees may be pure American, but the under-ground portion is likely to be foreign. With the exception of the apple and peach, most of the seedling plants on which grafting or budding is done are imported and even with the apple inconsiderable progress has been made in producing American-grown seedlings. Instead of importing French seed many nurserymen have thus far preferred to import apple seedlings from France and to pay more for them. Just now, however, attention is turned toward a solution of the problem of fruit stock production in this country. All of the peach stocks are now home-grown from seeds produced in this country.

Scientific Methods Urged.

"We are beginning to appreciate more and more," says one of the plant pathologists of the United States Department of Agriculture, "that our future successful fruit culture is intimately associated with the problem of stocks. With the exception of the grape, no far-reaching studies have been made on stocks in this or any other country. We have followed certain empirical practices in the past, but as competition becomes greater and the demand for the highest grades of fruit and plant products increases, we must know more of the actual relation of stocks to quality of product, to the length of life of the tree or plant, to adaptability to soil and climate, to resistance to disease and insect attacks."

One of the questions to be solved, according to the Department of Agriculture, is the practicability of producing in this country the millions of ordinary apple, pear, plum and cherry stocks which hitherto have been obtained largely abroad. Another need is the systematic study of stocks with a view to their improvement and better adaptability to the wide variety of conditions and needs that exist here and that are likely to develop as the fruit industry becomes more complex. If fruit industries are to be maintained, the department thinks it is imperative that there be available full supplies of the ordinary stocks, and it is desirable to find or develop stocks that may prevent some of the losses from insects and diseases.

Government Aid Needed.

"If stocks are to be produced in this country to take the place of those hitherto secured abroad," the statement continues, "it would seem proper that efforts should be made by the government to aid those who are anxious to know where the work can best be done and how it may be done to the best advantage. The problems involved are so complex that private interests cannot well handle them. The chief problems are to find regions and soils in this country where stocks may be commercially grown and to demonstrate on a commercial scale that such stocks are equal to or better than those grown abroad. Correlated with the problem of commercial stock production is that of securing seeds for stocks. There is need for developing our home supplies. This is a long-time proposition, as there are few recognized sources of supply here, such as exist in Europe."

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

The List of Chrysanthemums we are offering for the season of 1919 shows many changes from last season and these are, we believe, a great benefit to us and no injury to our trade. We have discarded many varieties and have kept only such as have shown themselves really needed to maintain a balance of color and season. This selection has eliminated many for which we may have calls during the planting season, but in the

The following exhibition varieties are produced on a more or less extensive scale by commercial growers. These we offer as rooted cuttings in addition to pot plants:

C. H. Totty Wells' Late Pink
Glenview William Turner Yellow Wm. Turner

Rooted Cuttings, 75c per doz.; $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1,000

NEW CHRYSANTHEMUMS FOR THE COMMERCIAL GROWER.

BETSY ROSS. (Smith.) An incurved flower borne on good strong stems. It is absolutely pure white in color. Matures Nov. 10.
Rooted Cuttings, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1,000
2¼-inch pots, 1.50 per doz.; 10.00 per 100

GOLDEN MISTLETOE. (A. N. Pierson, Inc.) This variety, as shown by the name, is a sport of Mistletoe. The parent is our latest flowering variety, coming well into December. It is ball-shaped. An excellent companion for the parent. We have grown it in quantity and know that it will be a favorite.

Rooted Cuttings, $1.25 per doz.; $ 8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1,000
2¼-inch pots, 1.50 per doz.; 10.00 per 100

OTHER NEW AND VALUABLE SORTS.

Rooted Cuttings, 75c per doz.; $5.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1,000
2¼-inch pots, $1.25 per doz.; 8.00 per 100

BARBARA DAVIS. In color, a rich shade of reddish bronze and entirely distinct from any other variety. It was disseminated by us in 1917 and has proved a decided acquisition either as a cut flower or as a pot plant. In habit of growth it is short-jointed and inclined to be dwarf, but makes good stems from early propagation. The flower is reflexed when fully open and is at its best just before maturing.

DECEMBER QUEEN. Bright yellow in color, shading toward bronze-yellow. Flowers very large and full, appearing the latter part of November or early in December.

HELEN LEE. In color a delicate shade of pink. The form of the flower is excellent; incurved type. Strong, sturdy grower, with stem ample to carry the flower. Midseason variety.

MISS ELIZABETH SMITH. An incurved flower, orange-bronze in color. Good stem and foliage. One of the best of the new varieties.

RICHMOND. The phrase, "An early Bonnaffon," describes this variety. A bright golden yellow that has every promise of making a name for itself. Perfect in form and perfect in color.

WHITTIER. Bright, golden yellow in color, coming into bloom just after Richmond and just before Bonnaffon. It is an incurved flower of the Bonnaffon type. It is a promising variety and worthy of cultivation by those who seek to grow better Chrysanthemums.

YELLOW CHARLES RAGER. A sport which originated with us. Light yellow, but a strong, healthy grower. The flowers are well-formed and, like its parent, it is an easy variety to grow.

The Market.

Business is holding up well. The supply is slightly increased, but prices are firm. Roses are more plentiful, mostly the longer grades, the shorter grades cleaning up well. Carnations are not so plentiful and clean up daily. Sweet peas are arriving in good supply and hold up well in price. Easter and calla lilies clean up well. Violets are moving slowly. Short-stemmed American Beauties are arriving in quantity, the longer grades still being scarce. There is little valley in the market, the same being the case with orchids. Good bulbous stock is offered, consisting mostly of daffodils, tulips, hyacinths and Paper White narcissi. Other offerings are wallflowers, forget-me-nots, baby primroses, marguerites and schizanthus. Greens are scarce.

Various Notes.

C. C. Beingesser, of Lorain, O., underwent an operation at Charity hospital and is doing nicely. Mr. Beingesser has been in ill health for some time.

Herman King, of Steinbrenner & King, is on the sick list. Mr. King is ailing with heart trouble and will be confined for some time.

W. H. Temblett, landscape architect and forester, who has been running a flower shop in the Euclid-Doan market, has been having an excellent and increasing trade. He will open another flower shop at 10313 Euclid avenue about March 8, where he can take care of the better class of his trade. Mr. Temblett will open with a first-class line, including the best of service, and intends making this store his headquarters and the office for his landscape and forestry work. W. F. B.

Dallas, Tex.—J. T. Woods has started in the business at 2410 Haskell avenue, under the name of Woods Floral Co.

FOR ALL PURPOSES

list presented we have the superior of the discarded variety. Our aim is to grow in quantity those varieties which we, ourselves, would grow for the cut flower trade, regardless of the fact that we have limited the list of offerings. There is no break in the Mum crop from the start to the finish of the Mum season if planted from an intelligent selection of varieties from this list, commercial cut flower production governing this selection.

NEW SINGLE VARIETIES.

The (*) before the name indicates good commercial varieties.

ELIZABETH FIRESTONE. (A. N. Pierson, Inc.) This bright pink seedling has appealed to the commercial grower and to the store-man as a valuable and much-needed acquisition. The stems are strong and carry the flowers well. This characteristic must not be overlooked in growing flowers for market. It comes into flower from November 15th to 20th, which is after Mrs. W. E. Buckingham and just before Mrs. E. D. Godfrey is ready to cut.

Rooted Cuttings, $1.00 per doz.; $5.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1,000
2¼-inch pots, 1.25 per doz.; 8.00 per 100

MRS. E. M. HORNE. (Horne-A. N. Pierson, Inc.) Light, bronze-yellow shaded old-gold. The flowers, which are flat in form, are produced in good-sized graceful sprays which bunch well. Growth vigorous and erect. Matures Nov. 5th to 10th.

2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100

MOLLY WHITMORE. (A. N. Pierson, Inc.) Deep, golden-bronze, effectively suffused with terra-cotta; distinct, deep yellow center. The well-formed flower carries three rays of petals, which incurve slightly. This is a desirable trait where they are subject to shipping conditions or considerable handling. The growth being erect in character, this variety may be planted closer than the more branching kinds.

2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100

PEGGY BULKELEY. (A. N. Pierson, Inc.) We consider this new variety one of the prettiest in our entire collection. The color is a soft, yet luminous, pink, changing as the flower matures to a delicate mauve-pink. The blooms are large, averaging four rays of petals, which recurve gracefully from a golden-yellow center. The growth is vigorous and erect, producing large sprays, which show the individual flowers to the best possible advantage. An ideal cut-flower or pot-plant variety. Matures Nov. 10th to 15th.

2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100

EARLY-FLOWERING CHRYSANTHEMUMS FOR OUTDOOR GROWING.

The question of hardiness in the Chrysanthemum family is such that to call these hardy, as we have formerly done, is unfair, because so much depends upon the character of the soil and the drainage. Too much covering in winter has ruined more plants than a cover of any kind has saved. Some firms class these as Decorative varieties. Several in the list do well indoors, as among the Pompons and Singles there are those which do well outdoors. The varieties listed have larger blooms than the larger-flowered Pompons, unless otherwise described.

Rooted Cuttings, 60c per doz.; $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1,000

The Market.

We had a taste of real winter last week, when the thermometer dropped to 12 degrees above zero. However, there was plenty of sunshine during the week and it helped production to a great degree. Although there is no surplus on the market, yet there is enough to supply the demand, which has accelerated since Washington's birthday, particularly in funeral work. Many of the retail stores had extra help in order to get out all the funeral pieces. Social affairs were numerous also, probably on account of the proximity of the Lenten season. Counter trade was exceptionally brisk.

Bulbous stock is not any too plentiful and the best grades are bought up as soon as the stock arrives on the market. Narcissi are scarce. Carnations are on the short side and prices remain firm. Roses are bringing top-notch prices, especially for the selects in such varieties as Russell, Columbia, Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty. Spencer sweet peas are more plentiful and sell readily. Prices on violets remain firm and the call for them is good.

Cinerarias are being offered in excellent quality and find a ready market. Easter lily plants are being offered in limited quantities. Primroses are in fine form and prices obtained for them are satisfactory.

There is a scarcity of almost every variety of greens, excessive funeral work having depleted the supply.

Various Notes.

A. J. Lanternier & Sons executed a large moose head in flowers for the flower festival of the Moose lodge last week. They also had elaborate decorations for the auditorium and receiving rooms of the Moose building.

Private George W. Doswell, of the Doswell Floral Co., has been discharged from the army and has arrived home from Camp McClellan, Alabama. He will take up his work again at the store.

Mrs. Clem Lanternier is spending a week's vacation in Toledo, O. Miss Ruth Lanternier is assisting in the store during her absence.

Among the florists who took part in the coöperative advertising for Valentine's day, and who reaped such satisfying results from their efforts, were: Doswell Floral Co., Freese Floral Co., Ed. Wenninghoff, A. J. Lanternier, W. J. & M. S. Vesey and the Flick Floral Co. The ads were run in the daily papers and featured the telegraph delivery service.

Washington's birthday specials in the way of novelties sold with a vim at the store of the Flick Floral Co. R. F.

Mount Prospect, Ill.—Charles J. Homeyer has things pretty soft: He grows tobacco, for sale and for his own use, and manufactures his own nicotine extract.

Greenhouse Heating

CAN THE BOILER DO MORE?

The boiler I am using has a firebox 4x4 feet and about four and one-half feet high, and contains forty-two 2½-inch flues, ten feet long. At the present time I am heating two houses, each 18x100, to 50 degrees; one lean-to 8x100 to 50 degrees; one house 14x100 to 50 degrees; one house 12x50 to 60 degrees, and one house 8x30. The three largest houses are twelve feet high to the ridge. Should this boiler be able to heat more glass without much forcing? There are two 6-inch flow pipes from the boiler and two 6-inch returns to the boiler. In the houses the flows are 2½-inch and the returns are 2-inch. Zero weather is not unusual here and the mercury has dropped as low as 15 or 20 degrees below zero. If the present boiler is used to heat additional space, will more flows from the boiler be needed?

A. R. S.—Mont.

The letter does not state whether steam or hot water is used for heating, but from the sizes given for the flows and returns we infer that it is hot water.

If there is no glass in the side walls, it should be possible to heat the houses described with about 2,000 square feet of radiation. We judge that the boiler is rated at about twenty-five horsepower. At a low estimate, this should heat about 3,200 square feet of radiating surface, which would be sufficient for 3,600 square feet of glass to be heated to 60 degrees, in addition to the present houses. One 6-inch flow pipe and a return of the same size should be able to handle the radiation in the present houses, which would leave a flow and return of the same size for additional houses. To some extent the efficiency of the main flow and return pipes, as well as that of the coils, will depend on the height of the coils above the top of the boiler.

The number of the flow and return pipes is not given and may be slightly modified according to the kind of pipe on hand, but for heating the two houses 18x100 to 50 degrees we would use two 2½-inch flows and six 2-inch returns. The lean-to house 8x100 we would heat with one 2½-inch flow and three 2-inch returns. The house 14x100, to be heated to 50 degrees, should have two 2½-inch flows and five 2-inch returns. The house 12x50, to be carried at 60 degrees, should have two 2½-inch flows and five or six 2-inch returns. In the house 8x30 we would use one 2½-inch flow and four 2-inch returns.

COAL MINES CLOSING.

In its review of the coal situation at the end of February the Coal Age, New York, said:

"If one wanted a phrase to convey tersely the present status in the coal market, he could do no better than choose the one made famous before our entry into the world war—watchful waiting. Unlike other industries, the coal mines cannot store their product against the time when demand becomes active and an urgent call for fuel is again manifest. If the public does not buy coal, the mines cannot operate. Coal cars on railroad sidings the country over stand loaded with coal, all awaiting a market that is slow to materialize. It is inconceivable that this condition can long continue.

"Reserve stocks in the hands of consumers are daily growing smaller. And speaking of reserve stocks, it is rather mystifying how the so-called nonessential industries, which were presumably receiving no coal whatever during the critical period, were discovered with large accumulations of fuel when the armistice was signed. But why uncover the family skeleton? Reserve stocks cannot last forever. Already many of the well-informed in the bituminous branch of the coal industry profess to see a rift in the clouds, and a feeling of optimism is fast dispelling the gloom.

"It cannot be denied that the closing down of the soft coal mines, with the consequent decrease in output, has served immeasurably to pull together the strings on what promised to be a loose market. Prices are holding well to the former government maximums, and there is not the slightest indication whatever of a definite price-cutting policy. Most of the coal moving is in fulfillment of contracts made many months ago, few purchases of spot coal being reported.

"The hard coal industry is still groping in darkness. In spite of the fact that many of the anthracite collieries have shut down, while others are working only part time, considerably more coal than the market can absorb is reaching tidewater. Domestic sizes are plentiful, thanks to an open winter, while the small steam sizes are glutting the market."

Pleasant Hill, Mo.—P. A. Manson, of the Pinehurst Gardens, says the business of this concern requires twice as much glass as it now operates.

Beloit, Kan.—C. Drury is located at the Riverview Greenhouses, near here, following the wrecking of his greenhouses at Leoti, Kan., by an explosion.

Fisher Steam Trap, No. 33

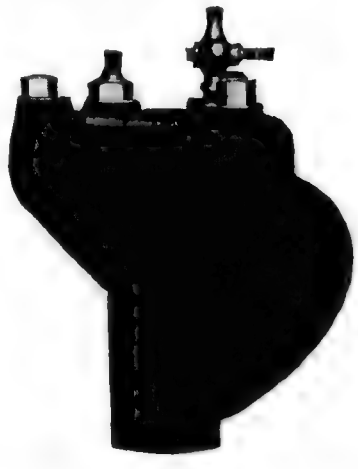
Stretch Fuel with Fishers

IN high pressure steam systems, condensation is one of the most formidable obstacles to economical operation. It ceases to be a problem if the Fisher Steam Trap, No. 33, is used. The Fisher automatically, quickly and positively eliminates all condensate, without wastage of steam. The capacity is so great that if desirable one trap may satisfactorily serve where two would ordinarily be required.

Fisher Reducing Valve No. 10

Positive control of temperature is assured by Fisher Reducing Valves. On either high or low pressure systems they convert any initial pressure to any desired lower pressure and maintain it evenly. There can be no dangerous fluctuation of temperature with a Fisher Reducing Valve guarding the pressure.

For vacuum heating systems, Fisher Vacuum Pump Governor, No. 8, maintains a steady vacuum, the range of which depends upon the setting of the weight on lever. We are able to build this governor with angle as well as globe bodies. You will readily appreciate what convenience and economy of space this unique feature means.



Fisher Vacuum Pump Governor, No. 8

You need never have air accumulations or pockets in your hot water mains. The Fisher Automatic Air Trap, No. 30, instantly and automatically releases air, while sealing tight against the water. It has great capacity, and if placed at the highest point freely relieves the entire system.

Fisher Greenhouse Economizers make a vital appeal to the greenhouse operator —they are money savers. That is also true of many other Fisher devices besides those shown.

The Market.

Flowers have been scarce the last week. The few roses coming in, however, are in good condition. Valley is in good condition, but not sufficient to supply the demand. Good primrose and jonquil plants are on the market. Sweet peas are making their appearance, as well as freesias, which are a great help to the local florists. The demand for both cut flowers and blooming plants is far beyond the supply.

Various Notes.

Adam Heitz is cutting good roses, but is unable to supply the demand.

The Jacob Schulz Co. has been busy the last two weeks with general cut flower trade and funeral work.

All florists report funeral work heavy the last two weeks. There has been a demand for cut flowers, plants and corsage work. All report business at an increase over last year. L. K.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Hyacinths, daffodils, jonquils and other spring flowers are coming into the market in larger quantities than they have before this season. They are not plentiful yet, however, and though prices are lower than they were a few weeks ago, they are still above normal and, it is thought, will remain so. Due to conditions early in the season, there is not an overabundance of stock in the greenhouses.

Various Notes.

The S. A. Rogers Co., 453 Broad street, has discontinued its cut flower department and is now devoting its entire energy to the seed and nursery trade.

Charles Witheridge, 532 Broad street, reports that business is quieter than it was, owing to the falling off in funeral work.

The flower store and greenhouses on Central avenue, owned by Henry Hornecker, and until recently occupied by Ernest Radany, are being torn down.

The Market.

After a winter of scarcity, it is with a feeling of relief that spring, with its more bounteous supply, has been ushered in. It is almost an adage that "business is best when flowers are least." At any rate, it has kept the tradesmen guessing all winter how to make the supply meet the demand. To keep before the people "Say It with Flowers" and expect them to do it, the florist has to have the wherewithal, and that particular language has been rather monosyllabic for some time.

With spring comes a better outlook. Bulbous stock is more ample. Hyacinths and jonquils are meeting requirements. Paper Whites, tulips, etc., are equal to the demand. Roses, although in a little better supply, fall short of requirements. Prices are stiff, ranging from $6 to $35. Carnations have been good sellers all winter at prices never before attained.

Spring baskets have been in attractive display. These contain bulbous stock, calendulas, peas, pussy willows, mignonette, pansies, violets, baby primrose blossoms, myosotis, etc. Sweet peas are the most popular of all and have been in inadequate supply. If the bright weather continues, this condition will greatly improve.

Funeral work has been in the foreground and has kept the lilies all utilized. Callas sell well at $2 per dozen. Easter lilies are not conspicuous.

Potted plants are good property, selling almost as soon as they show color. Cinerarias and bulbous stock are leaders now, but primroses, cyclamens and begonias are close on their heels.

Plumosus is none too plentiful and Sprengeri is not to be had. Fern leaves are only fair in quality and sell at $4.50 per thousand.

HOT BEDS AND COLD FRAMES

These two uses, Hot Beds and Cold Frames, try the very soul of any wood. Hence Oak, Ash and other varieties do not give any sort of satisfaction—they are not born for that kind of experience. Cypress is the one wood that defies rot influences and sticks on the job, even when it is in contact with the wet earth.

It isn't sensible to quarrel with the boxing of the Hot Bed if you made it of the wrong wood and it rots too soon.

The "hoss-sense" thing to do is to prevent such a natural disaster by using a wood that was designed by the Almighty to LAST—in fact, the wood that lasts so almighty long that it has come to be universally known as the "Wood Eternal."

You may already have Hot Beds and Cold Frames made of Cypress—the leading builders make them. All you need is to exercise business caution in buying. Be certain they are of Cypress.

ALSO, GET A BOOK

There are 43 volumes in the CYPRESS Pocket Library, and each is authoritative. Vol. 4 is the Barn Book; Vol. 20 is the Farm Needs Book; Vol. 28 is the Trellis and Arbor Book, and Vol. 18 is a Bungalow Book—all profusely and handsomely illustrated. And they are very, very Free. If you are "handy with tools," then get the Vol. 36, the Carpentry Book. It shows how to make easy a dozen hard jobs of house and barn building. Write for one, or a dozen.

The Market.

Trade conditions here are generally quiet, funeral work being the only outlet for the flowers that are now coming to market. Daffodils and narcissi are coming along in increasing supply and meeting a fairly good demand at $2 and $3. Carnations are plentiful and generally good, but prices have dropped considerably from those obtained six weeks or so ago. Roses move rapidly, as they are not overplentiful, although equal to the demand. They are quoted at from $3 to $12. Violets are beginning to come back. Since the flooding of this market by street fakers at ridiculously low prices, violets have not been in popular demand.

The Market.

Business conditions continue fair, considering the mid-season, speaking from the social standpoint. Funeral work continues to be the mainstay of the florists' demands. As the direct result of several days of clear skies and crisp atmospheric conditions, there is a decided improvement in all marketable products throughout the western Pennsylvania sections. Roses, both in numbers and quality, are much improved, and sweet peas are coming in heavily. Greens of all kinds show a decided improvement over the previous week.

Various Notes.

After an absence of nearly two years, F. M. Smith has returned to Pittsburgh and joined the sales staff of Randolph & McClements. Since leaving G. P. Weaklen & Co., Mr. Smith has been doing essential shop work in Buffalo, N. Y., and Philadelphia, Pa., and more recently in suburban Pittsburgh. Meanwhile his health has noticeably improved, the strenuous shop life seemingly having effected a cure of the throat trouble which formerly resulted in periodical attacks of tonsillitis. Notwithstanding, he announces himself as glad to be again in the "posy game."

Carl Voelker, formerly with the Alpha Flower Shop, in East Liberty, has returned from a several weeks' trip, which included Chicago, Cleveland, Youngstown, Akron and Steubenville, O. Mr. Voelker expects to locate in either Akron or Steubenville.

Julius Dilloff, who has long represented the Schloss Bros., Inc., was in town last week in the interest of Wertheimer Bros., of New York.

John Matsukes, of the Liberty Florists' staff, has returned from a two weeks' business trip, on which he visited New York and Washington. Charles Matsukes, who was the original manager for the same firm, has returned, after spending ten months in Philadelphia, Pa., where he has been engaged in one of the essential industries. Instead of resuming the flower business, his intention is to go into the wholesale confectionery trade, together with a brother-in-law, G. Bealus. E. E. S.

Feed Your Plants and Save Labor

Mr. Bahr Did. Read What He Says:

Highland Park, Illinois, July 21, 1918.

MR. F. A. ZENKE, Chicago, Ill.:

Dear Mr. Zenke: Nothing pleases me more than to acknowledge that you were right when you praised up "New Plant Life" to me, and there couldn't be a better proof of it than my asking you to forward five more gallons just as soon as you can.

The results obtained were most satisfactory to me: stunted, small bedding stock after about ten days began to show new life and kept on improving. With the existing lack of help, instead of giving thousands of 3½-inch Geraniums a final shift, three light doses of "New Life" were applied and I am more than pleased with the outcome.

Sincerely yours, FRITZ BAHR.

THE STORY OF CHRISTMAS GOLD.

The most unique novelty pompon ever offered to the trade. Originated by Herbert Bate, of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., in 1915. A seedling of Baby. Has all the tough, lasting qualities peculiar to its parent, with a free growing habit similar to Lucille Knoble, Golden Climax, etc. The color is much darker than in the old Baby, almost a Golden Wedding yellow. Size, about one inch in diameter, of solid button type. Can be cut tight for Thanksgiving, is at its best from December 10 to 30, and holds on for weeks. We cut the last batch this season January 12, 1919.

Certified by and scored 90 points before the Chrysanthemum Society of America committee of Chicago, December 14, 1917.

From 2-in. pots, 20c each;
$17.50 per 100, $150.00 per 1000.
Buy from the originators.

FERNS

FERNS.

Just as I told you several months ago, the scramble for ferns has begun and the time when the heavy demand for stock really comes, you will see one of the greatest shortages of ferns that you have ever known. I have been in close touch with the fern market for twenty years and fairly well know the different sources of supply, and also the stocks on hand.

I can offer Boston ferns for immediate delivery, but other varieties not until May or June; of course the rule, orders filled in rotation as booked, will prevail. Please notice increase in price, and I would not be surprised to see Bostons sell at $10.00 per 100 and Whitmanii at $12.50 per 100 from 2½-in. pots before the end of the season, and even then difficult to make delivery.

But orders placed early are more certain to get prompt delivery than if you wait too long.

	Per 100	Per 1000
2½-in. Boston Ferns	$ 9.00	$ 80.00
2½-in. Whitmanii	11.00	100.00
2½-in. Roosevelt	9.00	80.00
2½-in. Verona	11.00	100.00
2½-in. Norwood	15.00	.....
2½-in. Scottii	11.00	100.00
2½-in. Teddy Jr.	11.00	100.00

Can supply Bostons only for immediate delivery. Cash with order except for future orders, which remit 25% with order, balance C. O. D., or cash before sending.
A. M. Augspurger, Peoria, Ill.

WHY YOU SHOULD SECURE STOCK OF PRINCE OF WALES.

Because its wonderful color will bring your customers back time and again for more of the same flowers. Because it is an early, easy forcer, and comes in weeks ahead of America. Because for garden use the stem is tall and straight, even in the hottest weather. Because it is a grand multiplier and grows readily from bulblets. Because its gorgeous glistening flowers are, nineteen times out of twenty, picked by visitors as the most beautiful colors in my gardens, and that among two hundred varieties of gladioli. It has been called clear salmon, orange shaded pink, golden salmon, apricot salmon, and pinkish salmon, but no matter what the color description is, it IS A WONDERFUL COLOR, and is going to prove one of the biggest moneymakers on the gladiolus market within a short time. Certificate of Merit Haarlem, Holland, 1913. Large bulbs sold. Can spare a very few more half-inch planting stock, at $3.50 per 100; bulblets, $1.00 per 100, $9.00 per 1000. A large bulb free with every order of 500 or more bulblets. All postpaid. Good & Reese Co., Springfield, Ohio, bought 3000 bulblets, also dozens of other big firms that know what's what. 'Nuff said.

GLADIOLUS MRS. WATT.

The measure of success of any variety of gladiolus is its earning power to the grower and to the florist, based on the satisfaction it gives to the public.

Gladiolus Mrs. Watt has made good on this practical end of the proposition. One florist writes: "I could have sold double the quantity of Mrs. Watt, had I owned the stock."

Testimonials from growers affirm that owing to its distinctive color, its strong upright growth and the excellent keeping qualities of the bloom of this variety, it is a paying proposition to both grower and florist.

One color; brilliant deep rose shade. Only the following size bulbs unsold:

POINSETTIAS

POINSETTIAS.

The demand for these will be enormous this season as the plant growers are beginning to realize what the embargo (which is soon to go into effect), will mean to them; and Poinsettias, Cyclamen, Primula, Ferns, etc., will have to be grown in much larger quantities than ever before to meet the increased demand, as many items that could be had formerly will be out of the market and other stock must take its place. Wise buyers will place orders early. Poinsettia stock plants are not in plentiful supply; in fact, I would like to be able to secure several thousand (no outdoor grown stock), good stock plants, and if you have any or know where they can be obtained, would be glad to take the matter up with you; therefore stock plants being starce, spells a shortage of young stock. I would not be surprised to see 2½-in. Poinsettias sell at $12.50 to $15.00 per 100 before the end of the season. You may think by reading my several advs. that I am an alarmist, but just read back my advs. for several months, see what I told you about ferns and geraniums and that will tell the tale. I will modestly admit that I believe there are few men in the trade who are better qualified to forecast future stocks, as I have been closely associated continuously with the various sources and it has been my particular work to be a careful observer and thus think I am in a position to intelligently quote the situation.

Note: See what Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are selling for; see what geraniums are selling for and why should not Poinsettias sell at $15.00 per 100 from 2½-in. pots?

However, at present I am booking orders for about August delivery at, per 100, $10.00; 1000, $90.00; 10,000, $850.00. These prices subject to change without notice. A small deposit with order, balance C. O. D., or cash before delivery.

A. M. Augspurger, Peoria, Ill.

—step lively there!

A storm is coming and here is the WIND

That means drop the hose and everything, man the vent apparatus and get the vent sash lowered before the wind hits. But will you always do it in time? Suppose the wind travels faster, or the storm rises more rapidly or you are short-handed sometime — what will happen then?

Well, if your vents are AGMCO and your vent machines were installed according to AGMCO time-saving methods, you never need to know. But if you're still using machines installed with the idea of giving you the greatest amount of arm and leg exercise possible, you'd better dodge "what will happen then" before it happens.

If you want to dodge, we'll tell you how.

DO YOU?

AUSTIN-COLEMAN CO.—Home of Elm Hill Gladioli

WAYLAND, OHIO

Place your order NOW for THE BIG 4

GRETCHEN ZANG, HERADA, BERTREX and EVELYN KIRTLAND. Their superiority has been proven time after time in the show room. Florists are delighted with them.

Read these IMPORTANT ENDORSEMENTS

A. F. J. Baur, of Baur & Steinkamp, Wholesale Florists and noted Carnation Breeders, well known to REVIEW readers, Indianapolis, writes:

"Please quote us on BERTREX and EVELYN KIRTLAND in various quantities. EVELYN KIRTLAND turned out to be what the writer thought. It is the FINEST PINK in EXISTENCE. BERTREX is an unusually good white. Both should become leaders."

James F. Rychlik, Florist and Grower, Painesville, Ohio, writes:

"Please let me know if you can let me have 2500 GRETCHEN ZANG. I had spikes of GRETCHEN ZANG over five feet high and with eighteen to twenty-six blossoms."

Brief Descriptions and Prices:

GRETCHEN ZANG. Beautiful, soft, melting shade of pink, blending into deep salmon. Large bulbs, $5.00 per 100; ½-1 in. diam., $2.50 per 100.

HERADA. Blooms of immense size—a new color, clear, glistening mauve, as brilliant as a poppy. Large bulbs, $5.00 per 100; ½-1 in. diam., $2.50 per 100.

BERTREX. Stands right at the top of all existing white varieties; flowers of great substance and of the size and form of America. Large bulbs, $6.00 per 100.

EVELYN KIRTLAND. Difficult to describe in words the beauty of this variety. Beautiful shade of rosy pink, darker at the edges, fading to shell pink at the center. Spikes GIANT in height. $8.00 per 100.

Prompt delivery. F. O. B. here. 25 bulbs at 100 rate.

All leading standard varieties. List for asking.

RUTH BAUR

A seedling of 1914. We have grown this beautiful variety in increased quantity each year, and it has always sold in preference to all other pink sorts. Its beautiful light pure pink color lends itself to so many uses that it has become a great favorite with the storemen. It is in the Gloriosa-Winsor color class, but is more beautiful than either of these. COME AND SEE IT. Orders already placed indicate a large sale for next season's delivery.

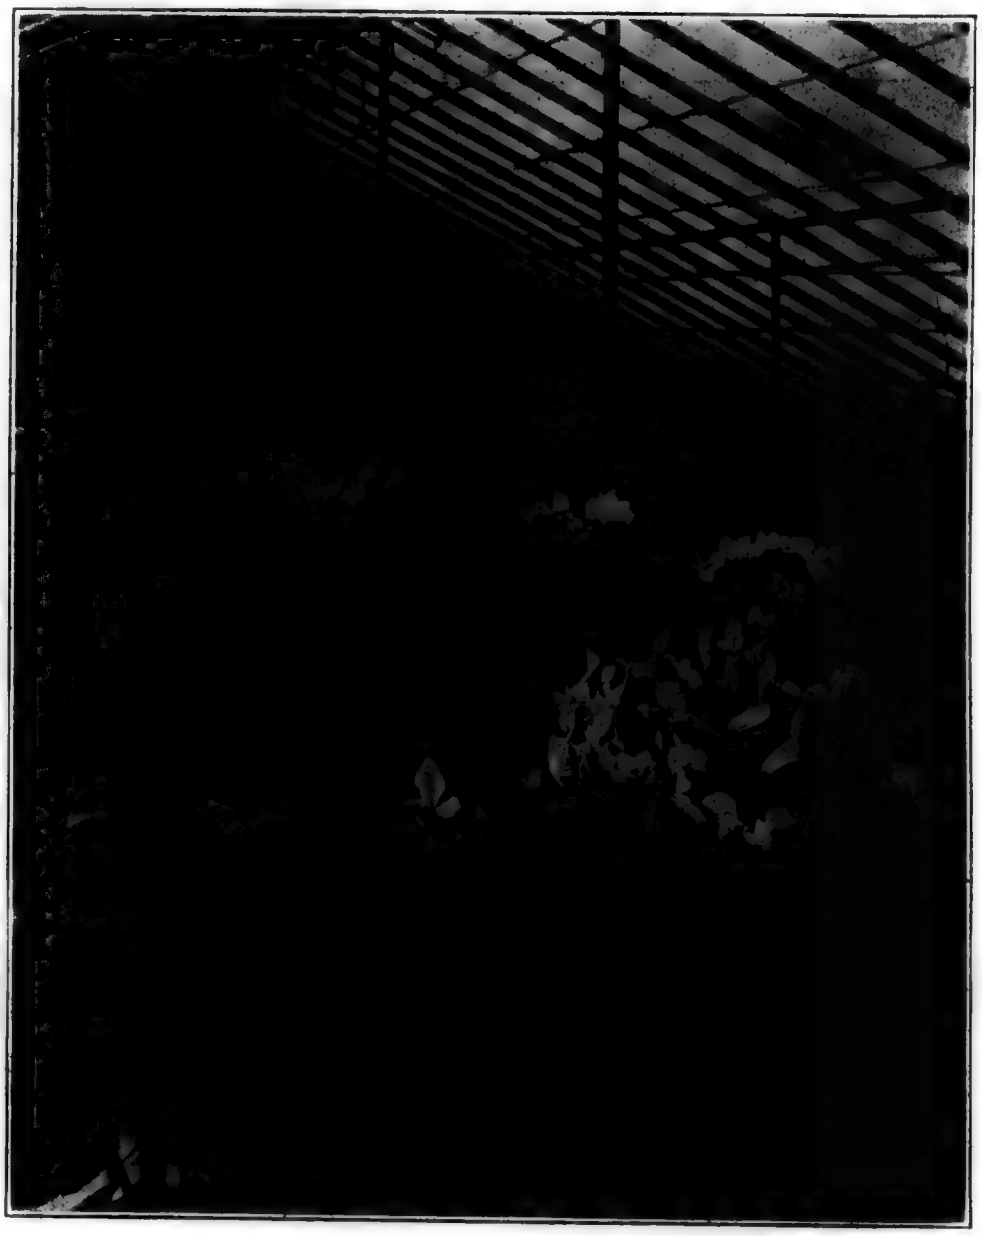
THE COMING SEASON'S CYCLAMEN CROP

Interest in the cyclamen has been greatly stimulated of late by certain trade conditions. Cyclamen growers were at first perturbed, perhaps discouraged, by the lack of imported seeds. Later, however, the scarcity of azaleas, with the consequent increase in the demand for cyclamens, spurred cyclamen growers to renewed activity.



IT REQUIRES no prophetic inspiration, and not even a great degree of shrewdness or foresight, to perceive that there will be a satisfactory market for cyclamen plants during the coming season. The cyclamen long ago won a high place in public favor, won it by sheer and unquestioned merit, and is still advancing in popularity. Of course, the increased demand for it in the last year or two has been partly due to the fact that one of its principal rivals, the azalea, has been almost removed from the scene. The azalea's exclusion from the country, though at first caused by the great war, may be continued indefinitely by the government's plant quarantine, which is intended to go into effect June 1, 1919. What quantity of Belgian azaleas will be imported before that date, and what proportion of the quantity received will be of service in the coming season—that really is a question that only a prophet or sage would be able to answer definitely.

Real Money.

The status of the cyclamen as a holiday plant was clearly indicated last Christmas, when it ran a close race with the poinsettia as a claimant for public esteem, in spite of the fact that the poinsettia has long been considered the most typical of Christmas plants and has become a recognized emblem of the festival, almost sacred to the sacred occasion. When the prices of all greenhouse stock rose last autumn, the cyclamens more than held their own in the contest with other items and met with a demand which greatly exceeded the supply. Wollrath & Sons, of Waltham, Mass., a part of whose last season's cyclamen crop is seen in the illustration on this page, sold many of their best plants—which undoubtedly were also among the best in Massachusetts—at $7 to $10 each, wholesale. Yes, that may be startling to some, but do not let us begrudge the growers their hard-earned reward. Wollrath & Sons also specialize in begonias and poinsettias for the Christmas trade, with the same success as in the case of cyclamens.

Neither Expected Nor Wished.

Since the extreme scarcity of plants and flowers last Christmas was the result of utterly abnormal conditions, it is not expected or wished that the same dearth of stock will exist next winter or for many succeeding winters. Still, anyone who fears there will not be a good market for the next crop of cyclamens is certainly a confirmed conservative. In view of the record established by cyclamens in recent years, and especially last Christmas, one of the best-informed members of the trade declares that "cyclamens have proved themselves to be the most popular and at the same time the most satisfactory of holiday plants."

Cyclamens Grown for Christmas by Wollrath & Sons, Waltham, Mass.

As it requires about fifteen months to grow marketable cyclamens from seed, plants intended for sale next Thanksgiving and Christmas—not to speak now of Easter stock—should already have a good start. Writing to The Review in the last week of February, Albert J. Wollrath, of the firm already mentioned, stated that the young cyclamens in the Wollrath houses were then in various stages of development, from flats to 4-inch pots.

The seed may be sown as early as the end of July or the first part of August, and in successive batches till January. By this means the blooming period can be prolonged from Thanksgiving until the following Easter, with the heaviest crop at Christmas or whenever it is most desired.

On account of the fact that the seed produces a bulblet or corm before leaf-growth is visible, the process of germination in its entirety occupies a considerable length of time. In moderate moisture, germination may be completed in three or four weeks, but may require as long as two months.

Sowing the Seed.

Let us start at the sowing of the seed and hurriedly trace the progress of the crop until it is ready for market.

Cyclamens come true to color from seeds. Named varieties from first-class seedsmen may be depended on generally to reproduce themselves with only slight variation. Red, pink and salmon shades are specially in demand at the holidays. For the seeds, use a light compost of leaf-mold and sand, placed in shallow, well-drained flats. Drop the seeds evenly in rows. Scatter a little sand over the seeds and press them in gently with a piece of board. Place the seed flats in a warm, moist house and keep them protected from sunshine. After the small leaves appear, put the flats on shelves near the glass, in a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees. Stir the soil occasionally and give a fine spraying on bright days.

From Flats to Pots.

When the little plants are well established and before they become crowded in the flats, transfer them to 2½-inch or 3-inch pots. For this first potting, a compost consisting of equal parts of fibrous loam and flaky leaf-mold, with the addition of some sand, would be suitable. As to the depth in planting, put the bulblet or tiny corm even with the surface or just showing above the soil. Place the pots in a temperature of 55 degrees at night, on a bench that is supplied with a little bottom heat. About midsummer another shift will be needed. The next repotting is the final one and should occur, in the case of the main crop, sometime in September. It is about this time that the plants make their most rapid growth, as the American summers are too warm to suit cyclamens perfectly.

In the Flowering Pots.

The flowering pots usually are 5-inch or 6-inch, according to the vigor of the plants. For the second and the final potting, the compost may be formed of a fresh, tufty loam, with a fourth or fifth of well decayed horse manure and with the addition of some sand if the soil is heavy. In the late fall and early winter some shade will still be desirable for a few hours during the hottest part of the day and one or two light sprayings daily will be beneficial. The plants should be on a light, sunny bench or shelf, in a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees. When the pots are well filled with roots, weak doses of liquid manure or top-dressings with a good fertilizer will be in order. In the first part of December the shade should be entirely removed and some ventilation should be given when the temperature rises above 65 degrees. A temperature of 50 degrees at night is about right for the plants in flower.

Summer Culture in Greenhouse.

In the foregoing suggestions little has been said about the treatment of the plants in midsummer, because that stage of the culture is so important and critical as to require a paragraph or two entirely for itself. Cyclamens may be carried through the summer with about equal success either in a greenhouse or in frames; the choice should be determined in accordance with the grower's experience, the nature of the available house, and other circumstances. If the grower has had no experience with cyclamens in frames and if he has a well ventilated, airy house, with the needed facilities for shading, he may obtain better results from greenhouse culture. If the shade can be of a movable nature, all the better, as shade during the scorching hours is a necessity, while in morning and evening and on dull days it is an injury. Do not put on a heavy shading of lime, or kerosene and white lead, as it would draw up the foliage too much. Water carefully. The appearance of a green scum on the surface is an indication that the plants are getting an excess of water. Scratch over such surfaces frequently. Do not forget to give the plants one or two sprayings daily, or thrips are liable to get a foothold and are hard to dislodge. For the control of aphis, faithful weekly fumigations are necessary. These fumigations, with plenty of light and pure air, will also go far toward subduing the dreaded mite.

Summer Treatment in Frames.

If the greenhouse becomes too hot during the day, it will be well to try the plan of growing at least part of the stock in coldframes. Partly plunge the pots in clean coal ashes. Lay lath shades without sashes over them during the warmest hours of the day. Remove these at 4:30 p. m. and do not place them over the plants earlier than 9:30 or 10 a. m. Spray the plants several times daily. Place sashes over the plants only when heavy rains threaten; light rainfalls are beneficial, as are fogs. If you prefer to use sashes which are shaded during the day, tilt these up well at both top and bottom, to allow a current of air to circulate among the plants. Cyclamens grown in coldframes are likely to have the advantage of being especially stocky. The plants may remain in the frames as late as Christmas when well protected, but if wanted for Thanksgiving and Christmas sales they should be housed at the end of September.

ILLINOIS FLORISTS MEET

THIRTEENTH ANNUAL SESSION.

Held at State Agricultural College.

The thirteenth annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association was held in Urbana, March 11 and 12. The meeting was opened Tuesday afternoon with W. J. Hembreiker, of Springfield, in charge, and Secretary Ammann read a letter from President Keimel, who was unable to be present because of illness. This was followed by the reading of the minutes of the last meeting. A motion was passed that a telegram be sent to the president with the best wishes of the society for a speedy recovery.

The report of the secretary was read by Mr. Ammann. The report of the treasurer was read by F. L. Washburn and, on motion, was referred to the auditing committee. A. J. Zech and C. W. Johnson were appointed as members of this committee by the president.

Work in Progress.

Dr. Lehenbauer gave an interesting report on the experimental work being carried on by the Division of Floriculture at the State Agricultural College and outlined plans for future experiments.

George Asmus gave a report on the work of the S. A. F. publicity committees, in which he told of the work of the last year and of the present campaign, in which it is hoped to raise $100,000 for publicity purposes. Secretary Ammann read a letter from Major O'Keefe in regard to the advertising campaign. He also read a letter from Secretary Redfield of the Department of Commerce, with regard to reconstruction matters.

Officers Reëlected.

The officers elected were the same as those of last year, as follows:

President—W. J. Keimel, Elmhurst.

Secretary Ammann's Report.

Secretary J. F. Ammann made the following report of the events of the last year:

"The year 1918 surely has gone down in history as the most eventful of our generation. Many homes have been shattered; many a business man has gone out of existence. The florists of this state have suffered and sacrificed along with others. When we stop to think that one-tenth of the men sent out for the greatest war came from Illinois we have much to be proud of. No doubt when the records of this war are completed it will also be shown that Illinois was among the foremost states in all the war activities. The patriotic expressions and actions of our state's chief executive are to be commended indeed.

"Considering all the florists have had to contend with in the way of fuel and labor shortage, we can congratulate ourselves on the splendid condition in which we find our business. As Illinois stood before the war, and as she so nobly responded during the war, so let us now strive, in the reconstruction, to keep her in the front rank in floriculture as well as in her ever spreading ideal for humanity and liberty.

"We have no individual record of those of our members, or of members of their families, who entered the service. So let us be content to have them on the honor roll and service flag of our great state.

"Reports in general of trade conditions throughout the state were never better and prospects are good for a bright future in our business.

"There is a movement on foot in the S. A. F. to organize a state florists' association in every state in the Union, with a view of having the president of each state association made an affiliated member of the national society's board of directors, subject of course to the requirements as to paid up membership in both the national and state bodies. This should be of interest to the florists of every state in the Union, as it will help to tie up each individual with the work of the national organization. This will be of great value, especially in the great publicity campaign.

"Receipts for annual dues were $40. No life memberships were taken out last year."

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

CHATELAINE BEGONIAS.

While less showy, perhaps, than Cincinnati or Lorraine, the Chatelaine begonia has a better constitution and as a house plant has few superiors. It will flower the whole year around and, besides its value as a pot plant, makes an ideal bedder and will succeed equally well in sunshine or shade. There is still time to take a good batch of cuttings, which are easily rooted, and have nice little plants in 3-inch pots before bedding-out time arrives.

FRENCH HYDRANGEAS.

Do not overlook the necessity of putting in an ample supply of cuttings of French hydrangeas. Perhaps you have already done so. If not, this is a reminder that it is not yet too late to insert a good batch. These root easily and can be grown either in pots or planted out during the summer. Pure white, deep pink and intense blue are the colors that sell best.

LAND FOR ASTERS.

A common mistake with many growers is in leaving practically all preparation of the soil until the strenuous spring season. Much of this work is better if done in the fall. In the case of asters it is especially helpful to plow in a good coating of well decayed manure just before the ground freezes up and leave the land rough over winter. The frost will help to pulverize and sweeten the soil and it will be in a nice, crumbly condition when the frost has gone and it can be harrowed.

Most of our land has received too little lime. This is not a plant food, but sweetens the soil and makes various elements in the soil more available for the roots of plants. It should not be applied at the same time as manure, as it releases too much of the nitrogen into the atmosphere, but can be applied in spring or fall to good advantage. Heavy land and moist bottom lands need more lime than lighter soils. We would have fewer diseased plants if we kept our soil sweetened by the action of lime. On some land two and one-half or three tons per acre of ground limestone is not too much to apply, while on others one ton will be found ample. Use lime on your aster plot and you will have fewer diseased plants than in former years. Lime and better drainage to warm the soil are necessities for successful culture of farm and garden crops of every kind, and the commercial florist, whose work is of a more intensive nature than the agriculturist, must use both lime and drainage to keep abreast of the times.

USEFUL ANNUALS TO START NOW.

Have you tried any of that beautiful annual, Nemesia strumosa Suttonii, for bedding or cut flower purposes? It comes in some glorious colors and succeeds well outdoors. The seed is light and should be started indoors. Merely dust a little fine sand over it. Prick off the seedlings into flats and plant outdoors in May. This nemesia makes a splendid late winter or early spring blooming plant in pots or pans if started in the fall.

Salvia farinacea and S. uliginosa are two lovely blue varieties, fine for bedding, excellent for cutting and much hardier than S. splendens; in fact, S. uliginosa winters out well. Start the seeds of these now. To get an early batch of the Mexican poppy, Hunnemannia fumariæfolia, outdoors start the seeds in small pots now and plant out early in May. The annual larkspurs can be successfully advanced at least a month if sown in flats now. They are splendid for cutting at any season. These annuals are not much grown commercially, are all fine for cutting and, being somewhat out of the common, should appeal to some growers.

PANSIES IN COLDFRAMES.

Remove the winter mulch now from pansies which have been carried over winter in coldframes. Had we known how mild the winter would be, there would really have been little need of much covering. The plants are fresh and green and not a few are already showing flowers. After clearing off the mulch, if the soil seems at all dry, give a good soaking of water.

You can, if desired, lift and plant some of these pansies in an empty greenhouse to advance them, and, by the way, pansies in boxes and baskets should sell well for the coming Easter, coming, as it does, unusually late.

By keeping the frames closed at night and protected on severe nights, which we may still have, it will not be long before these frame-grown pansies are clustered with flowers.

Any other spring flowering plants, such as forget-me-nots, double daisies, arabis, yellow alyssum, aubrietias, rockets, etc., can be uncovered at the same time as the pansies, but do not be too hasty about removing the winter mulch from these and other plants outdoors. The great blizzard of 1888 came March 12. We had little winter in 1916 until the middle of March, and many of us will not soon forget the great snow storm which arrived on the eve of Easter in 1915. Go slow on removing outdoor mulches.

SPRAYING SHRUBS.

Spraying has come into such general practice that no practical man now for one moment thinks that he can get along without it. The coming of the San Jose scale made this a necessity in orchards and, as this pest attacks many roses and deciduous shrubs like lilacs, cydonias, cratægus, cornus, etc., it is necessary to spray shrubbery while dormant for San Jose, scurfy, oyster shell and other scales, and either lime-sulphur or one of the soluble oils will, if properly used so as to cover every portion of the bark, kill not only these scales but the eggs of aphides, cankerworms and other injurious pests. Spraying is necessary insurance. Do not omit it, and now is the time to do it.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

A TALK ON INSURANCE.

When a base rate is made too low by a mutual company, the natural result is an increased rate in the following assessments and much dissatisfaction on the part of the insured. A base rate is sometimes made too low because of want of statistics to help in arriving at correct conclusions as to what the rate ought to be; but more often the rate is made purposely low to secure business and the insured finds himself entangled with agreements that prove highly onerous.

Insurance, like a suit of clothes, is a commodity which is sold in the market and when the insured buys insurance too cheaply, he is apt to find that he has secured a gold brick; and if he looks at the matter in its true light, has only himself to blame for not closely inquiring into the contract he was making, and the ability of the company or the association to make good.

Advice is cheap, but it is well to bear in mind the translation of the old Holland aphorism, "Greediness overcomes wisdom."

A JUNIOR CLASS.

Ever since I broke into the flower business I have been deeply interested in the F. T. D. and I guess I read every word that appears in The Review each week.

For some time I have been wondering why there could not be arranged a class of memberships to include such small fry as myself and hundreds of others who, from the very nature and size of our business, could not possibly become members of the present association. To be more explicit: I grow no cut flowers (except mums) and carry none in stock, yet I secure scores of sprays, etc., from the city florists for local people and occasionally am requested to deliver flowers to some funeral, hospital or other place in distant cities. My idea would be to create a sort of associate membership available to those who can pass certain necessary financial requirements (if the F. T. D. is to guarantee the payment of its members' bills, which I believe is the case) and allow them the use of the telegraph delivery service, to the mutual advantage of both regular and associate members.

Possibly this scheme is not feasible nor practicable, but it appears so to me and I believe that, as stated above, all parties would be greatly benefited thereby.

CHAYOTE OR CHUCHU?

The writer has a neighbor who lived in Brazil eight years. He says there is an error in the name of the plant being advertised as "chayote." The chayote, pronounced ka-o-tee, is a Brazilian shrub or tree growing to the height of twenty feet and bearing fruit something like cucumbers in appearance.

Seeing the chayote fruit I had purchased, my neighbor quickly recognized it as a vine known in Brazil as chuchu. He says it is the most rapid grower of all known plants, having been known to grow eight feet in twenty-four hours. He also says it has the distinction of being the only known plant, the fruit and seed of which are one and the same. This so-called chayote bears fruit resembling a rough, flattened, inverted pear, with the growth bud coming out of both sides of a sheath, protected by a crease or wrinkle on the large end of the fruit. To say the least, it is a novelty in the plant kingdom.

S. C. Templin.

[According to botanical authorities, the Sechium edule has several names, including both chayote and chuchu. Others are chayotli, chouchoute, chocho, choko, chaiota, mirliton, christophine and pipinella.—Ed.]

HERE'S A HOT SUBJECT

RETAILERS AND CARNATIONS.

Why They Don't Agree.

Why is it so many retail florists do not push carnations for general use? In the first place, they have found carnations unprofitable, and any business man who expects to make a success of business discards unprofitable items.

We have here tonight an exhibition of carnations that any retail store man might be proud to have as a stock for his store; flowers that have stem, size, fragrance, color and extreme beauty—all that go to make a desirable flower; but do we, as retailers, get them as we see them here tonight? No. Instead, it is too often the case, as one of our fellow storemen remarked the other day: "I am lucky to get seven dozen salable flowers out of 100."

If we figure on 100 per cent gross profit on a purchase of 100 flowers, and only seven dozen are fit to sell, with a possible loss of unsold flowers, it can easily be seen that the retailer will come out at the short end of the horn.

In a purchase recently, from a bunch of carnations, I found that it contained thirteen first-class flowers, five seconds, three splits, three weak stems and one flowerless stem; cost of bunch, $1.50.

How It Figured Out.

Now, for the sake of argument, suppose these flowers were offered on the basis of 100 per cent gross profit.

12 out of 13 first-class	@	$1.50
12 remaining, not first-class	@	1.00
Total		$2.50

Looks pretty good, doesn't it—$1 profit on an investment of $1.50! But that is not all. These flowers are to be delivered. What does that mean? Added cost to the carnations, as all florists know. Carnations are never sent in with foliage, which means some green must be given, added cost to the carnations. No florist will deliver flowers unless they are put into a neat box—again added cost to the carnations, not mentioning overhead charged, viz., rent, light, labor, etc., which are all a part of an expense that should be borne proportionately. Now let us see where we come out on our twenty-five carnations.

Cost of carnations	$1.50
Cost of 2 boxes, paper, etc.	.10
Cost of green	.10
Cost of delivery	.20
Total cost	$1.90
Carnations sold for	$2.50
Carnations cost	1.90
Net profit	$ .60

Careful Grading Needed.

In other words, approximately thirty per cent on the investment. Should there be a waste of one-half the inferior grades, which is often the case, you can readily see where the retailer would get off. Thirty per cent may mean a lot to those doing a large volume of business, where the risk is not great, but no retailer dealing in perishable goods and carrying a large stock can do business on that basis and survive.

You will note that I do not class splits as seconds, they are in a class by themselves; seconds are fairly good flowers, but smaller. The growers should be more careful in the grading of their flowers. One or more inferior flowers in a bunch depreciates, in the eyes of the buyer, the entire bunch. Growers and wholesalers may think we are too critical, too particular, but they must remember that we are looking through the eyes of our customers, the flower-buying public. It is because we are particular that the last three years have seen our own business increase more than 300 per cent in volume. A good flower will always command a good price, but a poor one we don't want at any price.

Carnations have proven unprofitable for us to handle because of their poor lasting qualities. Here let me say that something is wrong. More complaints have been made on the poor lasting qualities of the carnations than any other flowers that I know of. During the holiday season we would not care to take a chance on them and did not buy any. How can you growers and wholesalers expect us retailers to push carnations when a feeling like that exists? It is true that carnations have been in greater demand and have brought better prices this season, but that is only due to unusual conditions. We must go back a year or more, and what do we have? It is the effect of the past that caused many of the retailers to sidetrack carnations—carnations grown for quantity, not quality, held back for days by the growers when a holiday season comes along, then dumped on the market in an unsalable condition, with fancy prices asked by the wholesaler. The retailer bought only what he absolutely had to have, the balance going to the street men to be sold, as I have seen it, at a price that would not pay for the cutting, let alone the growing of the flowers. In other words, the carnation has been cheapened, made a plebeian flower, and is offered by first-class florists only when customers want something cheap. Some growers hold back carnations and ship them but twice a week, reaching the retailers when two or three days old, thinking thereby to save express charges. It is poor economy, for you lose out in the long run. Better ship every day and have your carnations in a salable condition.

Watching Them Die.

When I was asked to read a paper on the retailer's viewpoint, the thought occurred to me to try to see what can be done toward selling carnations. To one of our customers, a lady, I suggested carnations. How often, Mr. Retailer, have you heard the same remark: "Oh! I hate carnations." I asked why. "Well," she said, "when I was in the hospital a friend sent me some carnations and I was delighted, but toward evening they seemed to close up. The next morning when I saw the flowers they were dead and had to be thrown out. Imagine me lying there sick, watching those flowers simply curl up and die! It gave me the creeps and I have hated carnations ever since." Get the point, Mr. Grower? These conditions must be remedied before the retailer can become enthused over carnations.

Carnations are in competition with other flowers. You can readily see that a matter of price is no bar to the sale of flowers providing the flowers are select and of a quality. Justifying the price, the grower must remember that the retailer is his customer. If not dealing directly, it is through the wholesaler, and it is just as important that he satisfy the retailer as it is for the store man to satisfy his customers. Can we retailers expect our customers to continue the purchase of carnations under these conditions, or can the grower expect the retailer to push carnations when it is more profitable and more satisfactory to handle other flowers?

MEN, IDEALS AND SUCCESS

FIRST, DEFINE SUCCESS.

Then Apply the Definition.

What I wish to say is of the man who grows carnations, handles them and uses them. Where it has been my privilege to see this flower at its best, success has been attained by methods that are common knowledge to most of you.

This word success has varied meanings. What does it mean to you? Analyze it from your individual viewpoint. Is it the volume of worldly possessions alone that you or your neighbor have been able to accumulate? Suppose we grant that this is the ordinary conception of its meaning. Therefore any man who has been able to maintain an economic balance throughout his life is a success to a greater or less degree. A 50-50 man represents the lowest degree of success on this basis for our rating; he has been able to quit square. Statistics reveal some startling records relative to human effort and its relation to this balance.

The Human Prospect.

To the insurance companies, with their perfected organizations and their intimate knowledge of the personal affairs of millions of us, we can refer for these facts. Beginning with 100 average men, age 25, we find, thirty-five years later, thirty-six are dead, fifty-three are dependent on relatives or charity, six are self-supporting and five are well off. When all have passed over the Great Divide, sixty-seven had been dependent upon someone else to defray funeral expenses and only five had estates exceeding $5,000.

This is not a particularly cheerful outlook for the young man who is just geting well started at twenty-five.

What is the cause of this condition? Is it lack of education? Is it because we are not willing to make the personal sacrifice to be in this select class of five per cent? Are we overambitious and take risks that can break or cripple us if we have erred in judgment? Are we too easily influenced by sales agencies, regardless of the method used to reach our pocketbooks?

In answer to your question, "What has this to do with carnations?" I shall reply that the rudiments of success are not materially different in the production of this article of trade from that of any other. It is the foreseeing and forestalling of the factors that hinder the highest development. It is the man who can check his troubles when they are in their infancy. Almost any of us can effect some sort of a cure, even though the cure be as bad as the disease, but it is the maintaining of conditions that do not require a cure, that gives us the best and most consistent returns.

The Cause of Success.

While in the growing of carnations there are seasons and elements over which we do not have control, and at times I have tried to excuse myself for not getting better results for these reasons, yet, when I see all kinds of houses and soils and seasons producing splendid results, I feel that finally it is the man. I recently looked over probably 12,000 plants of White Perfection that seemed to leave little to ask for. Some of us thought this variety had passed on to the list of discards. "The cause of success is in the fellow who succeeds."

The production and trial of new varieties is interesting, is essential and supplies us with something to look forward to; it adds charm to the work. However, as I look back to the days of Grace Wilder and Portia, and even to La Purite and Edwardsii, I believe it to be best to try out the new candidates for favor in a limited way until their value is pretty well established. I shall not recall some of the notable instances where much heralded varieties have become strewn on the rocks of shy bloomers, weak stem, poor color, broken calyx and bad keepers.

There is another kind of success; it may be associated with material success, but not necessarily to any marked degree. It is the achieving of an ideal, the realizing of the mental conception that we regard as a standard of excellence.

Our Hope.

Cannot it also be the answering to a hope? Allow me to cite Mrs. C. W. Ward, Matchless and the masterpieces from the hands of Fisher and Dorner. Can we not look to these for the answer to a hope as it applies to our subject for this evening? Do we not all owe a debt of gratitude to the patience and skill in selection that have produced these and other varieties which have stood the test? It is the services of these lovers of the beautiful that we value too little. It is their assembling of the qualities and beauties usually seen in different individuals of their kind, eliminating almost everything defective, that has set these men apart from the rest of us. These are our supermen. Their efforts have not been confined to limited hours. The joy of realizing the ideal holds them to years of painstaking care and attention.

Probably he who has his heart in his work, and whose ambitions are not too largely guided by a mercenary return, feels most keenly the last analysis of this word success, "The attainment of one's aims and the realization of one's personal possibilities."

Everyone has his ideals on some subject and "it is the faculties of the human mind that are the tools to produce them." Have the knocks of business life made some of us too practical? Sometimes I feel that, within it all, so many of us have become the football for the others.

Leaders of Men.

From the beginning there have been leaders of men, and let us hope until the end there may be those whose sight and vision are not clouded and whose will is unyielding in the defense of the just reward of diligent service. The superman is not selected or chosen; he asserts himself in every field of effort. This is part of the florists' business; it is part of every business and ours in particular. The product of our work is dedicated to the expression and preservation of life's richest sentiments centered around a stabilized home.

Anything we can do for each other will be beneficial. Our interests are mutual; there can be no store or wholesaler without the grower and few growers without these distributing agencies. Coöperation spells success.

Lessons of the War.

What lesson can we gain from our trials of the recent past? We were then confronted by rulings, the wisdom of which I do not question, and conditions that discouraged us all, closing up some of the weaker ones entirely. Let us look forward and believe difficulties are not made to break us; every trying situation we can overcome strengthens us for a harder one. It is the weeding out process that never ends. We have learned that the man who can stay in the game has been and will be rewarded for his determination.

There has been much comment in our trade papers and elsewhere as to the effect of high prices. Probably each viewpoint represented the selfish interest of the individual to some degree. Was it not a natural condition, governed by cause and effect? The old law of supply and demand has in the past eventually been the price regulator and is it not safe for the present and future? Can not our own publicity in criticism of high prices drive more customers from the counter than all other causes? Why not a united front, facing together the true situation?

Our Future.

The future is a problem for which no one has the answer. Let us be conservatively optimistic in believing there has been no time when the need and opportunity has been greater for us to go steadily forward. In the absence and shortage of some items, make the best use of what there is to work with, filling our empty benches with whatever there is at hand, in the faith that, if well done, the public will value it.

The conflicting ideals of a radical, restless, unsettled people, need at this hour all the soothing, sweetening, inspiring influences that have been given to us to mellow them. Let us do it with flowers. Success will follow him who is unafraid.

BLACK SPOT OF THE ROSE.

Its Economic Aspect.

The rose was probably the first flower cultivated for ornament or for perfume. Being native to the north temperate zone, it occurs within these limits entirely around the world and is grown in all temperate climates. Millions of roses for the market are produced in large glasshouses in order that blossoms may be had throughout the year. In the value of the crop the rose easily leads all other flowers grown under glass, while its importance as a garden plant is too well known to need comment.

That the rose is subject to numerous diseases is a matter of common observation. Doubtlessly all growers and fanciers are familiar with the two most serious diseases, black spot and mildew. These may be said to be ubiquitous. Other diseases have probably had a later development and are becoming of more and more importance under present intensive methods of propagation. In catering to the demands of the trade and of the fanciers, many new types have been developed by breeding and it is probable that the natural resistance of wild forms brought about through the process of the survival of the fittest has been sacrificed.

The scarcity of definite information is one of the noticeable phases of the subject of diseases of roses. This situation finds explanation in the fact that diseases of ornamental plants in general usually have been studied by pathologists either as an incident to other investigations or by mycologists interested in taxonomy. Many recommendations for the control of diseases have been made without due consideration being given to the conditions and needs either of the commercial grower or of the fancier. Sprays which will discolor foliage and buildings may be more objectionable than the disease itself, with the result that growers have been loath to use many of them even though their efficiency in suppressing specific diseases has been established. Further investigation of rose diseases is highly desirable.

Black Spot Is Ubiquitous.

Probably the most common and destructive disease of the rose is black spot. It occurs wherever roses are grown, nearly all the cultivated varieties both outdoors and under glass being affected, although not all varieties are equally susceptible. Roses of the hybrid perpetual and Pernetiana groups are considered most susceptible. Laubert and Schwartz hold that bushy sorts are more susceptible than climbers and also that those with thin leaves are more liable to attack. The writer has observed that practically all bush roses, hybrid perpetuals, hybrid teas, teas and Pernetianas, are more or less susceptible, while those of the types multiflora and Wichuraiana are comparatively free from attack. Hybrids of Rosa rugosa and moss roses are rarely affected, although Scribner states that "moss roses and those with thick, rough leaves seem to suffer more than other kinds." This worker may have confused an abnormal condition of the leaves of moss roses known as "bronzing" with black spot.

Several names have been used to designate the disease under consideration, among which are black spot, leaf blotch, star-shaped leaf spot, and rose actinonema. It is perhaps best known as black spot, this name being generally accepted and adhered to both by scientific workers and growers.

History and Distribution.

The black spot of roses is not a new disease, being first noted in Italy in 1824. It was probably present many years before this date and has long been known to the rose growers of Europe. In 1825 the hybrid perpetual began to take first place in the rose world and, as this class is probably the most susceptible to black spot, it is not surprising that references to the disease began to appear more and more in articles on the cultivation of roses.

Saccardo notes the occurrence of black spot in France, England, Italy, Belgium, Germany, Austria, Portugal and North America. No special attention has been given the disease by American investigators until in more recent years, when, due to the more intense cultivation of the rose or the production of more susceptible varieties, it has come to be considered the worst enemy of this plant. Possibly the first report of the disease in America was by Scribner in 1888. Both Maynard and Humphrey record observations on the disease the following year. Subsequently the disease has been reported as occurring in practically every part of the United States and it is safe to state that black spot exists wherever roses are grown.

Economic Importance.

Black spot is probably the most important of all the many diseases of the rose. It is both an enphytotic and an epiphytotic disease of outdoor plants, being more or less abundant every year and in seasons especially favorable for its development, attacking and defoliating a large percentage of all garden roses. Under glass the disease is practically always present, ready to become epiphytotic as soon as proper conditions of temperature and moisturé develop. The extreme susceptibility of hybrid perpetual roses to black spot is one of the factors contributing to their decrease in popularity. The great susceptibility of the Pernetiana group to this disease threatens to be the limiting factor in its popularity unless some practical methods of control are developed.

Although the lesions sometimes occur well down on the petioles and even in the case of some varieties on all the aerial parts of the plant, the disease is confined practically entirely to the leaves. The more or less circular spots may reach a diameter of a centimeter or more, are black in color and are characterized by radiate-fibrillose margins. They usually appear late in the spring or early in the summer and occur only on the upper surface of the leaf. The spots are small at first but increase in size as the disease progresses. Often a number of them coalesce and in severe attacks the entire leaf may be covered with large dark patches. In the latter part of the season the spots frequently grow light in color and dry in the center, showing this part of the leaf to be entirely dead.

An extract from a lecture by Louis M. Massey, Professor of Plant Pathology at Cornell University, delivered before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

Produces Premature Defoliation.

Very commonly the leaf tissue adjacent to the black spots becomes chlorotic before the leaves fall from the plant, and not uncommonly all of the uninvaded tissue becomes yellow before defoliation occurs. The leaflets may turn yellow in spots, while sometimes the yellow area is limited to a band outside the black spot. Commonly, and especially during the autumn, the yellow color appears at the apex of the leaflets, whence it spreads downward and is succeeded by brown. A leaf with a green base and brown tip with a yellow band between is very characteristic of this disease.

Premature defoliation is one of the most pronounced characteristics of this disease. Affected leaves may fall before they turn yellow, the slightest jar or breeze often causing them to drop in great numbers. Diseased plants usually have a partially defoliated appearance.

The size and shape of the black spots, the rapidity and the extent of defoliation of plants, seem to vary with the variety. No reports of observations on these points are to be found in literature.

Black spot of the rose is caused by a fungous parasite, Diplocarpon rosae Wolf, long known under the name of Actinonema rosae (Lib.) Fries.

Life History of the Parasite.

Diplocarpon rosae has two phases in its life cycle—an actively parasitic phase developed during the summer and a saprophytic phase in which the fungus lives during the winter on dead and decaying tissue.

An examination of the lesions on the leaves during the summer will show the presence of small black pustules which are the fruit-bodies of the fungus. In these fruit-bodies the conidia or summer spores are born. These spores are matured rapidly during the growing season and are blown about by the wind, thus distributing the fungus and bringing about successive infections with new crops of conidia. This phase of the fungus is the one most commonly met with and has been known under the name of Actinonema rosae (Lib.) Fries for many years.

During the winter the sexual or ascigerous phase develops. When leaves affected with black spot fall to the ground during the summer and autumn, the fungus does not die, but lives over winter as a normal saprophyte. If examined microscopically during the spring it will be found that another spore-form has developed. In this stage spherical fruit-bodies (perithecia) bearing numerous sacs or asci, each of which contains eight ascospores, are produced in the old leaves lying about on the ground. These fruit-bodies serve to carry the fungus over the winter, the spores being mature at the time of opening of rose leaves in the spring.

Inoculation.

The old leaves on the ground are to be considered the chief source of primary inoculum in the spring. However, the fungus is carried over winter on plants under glass from which conidia could be carried readily by the wind to the newly developing leaves on outdoor plants. Growers frequently buy pot-grown plants in the spring to plant in their gardens and are likely to thus carry the fungus to the plants which were outdoors during the winter. Scribner, who was acquainted only with the asexual stage, suggests that the spores (asexual) lodge on the buds in the autumn and remain there dormant until the leaves have expanded the following autumn. In warmer climates the conidia may live over winter and serve as inoculum the following spring. No special investigations on this point have been reported in literature. Wolf could find in wintered material no acervuli which were bearing conidia. It seems very improbable that the conidia winter in any sections of Massachusetts or places having similar temperatures. The evidence derived from observations on the parasite warrant the conclusion that,

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

JOHN G. ESLER.

EVERY grower in the United States who has had his establishment more or less damaged by hail and has been recompensed for the loss by the Florists' Hail Association has reason to be thankful to John G. Esler, of Saddle River, N. J. When the Florists' Hail Association was conceived at the S. A. F. convention in Philadelphia in 1886, Mr. Esler was elected its secretary and ever since has held the job. He was instrumental in securing a change in the laws of New Jersey which made the association possible, has worked year in and year out to build it up and never yet has received more than nominal compensation. Mr. Esler is 72 years of age, but doesn't know it. He was first interested in the florists' business more than forty years ago and is one of the charter members of the New York Florists' Club. Mr. Esler has attended every annual convention of the S. A. F. except the first. One source of satisfaction to Mr. Esler is the fact that he has materially assisted in developing one of the most successful coöperative insurance organizations in the world.

as has been found to be true of many fungi, this fungus is carried through the winter on fallen leaves in which the ascosporic stage develops the following spring.

Although when mature the asci discharge the spores through an apical pore formed by the rupture of the wall, the spores are apparently not discharged with violence. Wolf states that they merely pile up in a whitish heap in the opened perithecium. How they reach the unfolding leaves of the plant has never been definitely determined, but it is probable that insects, splashing rain and possibly the wind play an important part. Man, in cultivating, may also serve as an agent of inoculation.

The maturity of the ascospores and the occurrence of rainy periods when the spores are mature are factors governing spore discharge.

The ascospores which are probably distributed during a rainy period require moisture to germinate and penetrate the host. They germinate within twenty-four hours. Wolf found the period of incubation to be about ten days, small black areas being evident May 7 from inoculations made April 27.

Infection occurs by the entrance of the germ-tube directly through the cuticle of the leaf. The resulting mycelium remains for some time immediately beneath the cuticle, later penetrating the tissues below, first filling the epidermal cells and only in advanced stages of the disease penetrating the mesophyll. The black appearance of the spots is not due to the fungus, which is almost colorless, but to the disintegration of the cells below the spot.

Environmental Relations.

Temperature and especially moisture are factors which may influence the severity of the disease by their effect on the parasite and the host. It is a matter of common observation that greenhouse roses are more subject to this disease in the spring and autumn, when extremes of temperature are most likely to occur. Frequent rains and general cloudiness are important factors at these times. Many growers of indoor roses claim that if the plants can be carried through late summer and autumn prior to the time when firing begins without suffering an epiphytotic of black spot there is little danger of plants being badly diseased during the winter. No doubt exceptions occur, but the most badly diseased houses noted by the speaker in visits to growers were those where firing was begun late. The natural heat of summer and artificial heat of winter quickly dries off the foliage and must thus be instrumental in lessening infection. It is very improbable that the ascigerous stage develops in the fallen leaves under glass.

Outdoors, where primary infection is initiated by ascospores formed during the winter in old leaves left lying on the ground, it is obvious that the spring rains are important factors, as moisture is necessary for the discharge of these ascospores from the perithecia. Moisture supplied either by rainfall or by dew is probably necessary for the germination of both the ascospores and conidia, so that a greater amount of disease may be expected during rainy seasons. It is a matter of common observation that whereas more or less black spot is present every year, epiphytotics on outdoor plants only occur during seasons of heavy rainfall. The precipitation of dew on the foliage during the autumn when cold nights and warm days prevail may account for the increased amount of disease at this time. Lesions on the leaves are more numerous and perhaps larger in rainy, cloudy seasons than in dry seasons. When conditions favorable to black spot are known a big step will have been taken toward the control of this disease, especially under glass.

Control.

Since the fungus lives over winter in fallen leaves, where the ascospores are produced which serve as the source of primary infection in the spring for outdoor roses, it follows that these should be carefully collected and burned late in the autumn. It is also advisable to keep the benches free from old leaves affected with the disease, for they bear the summer spores and thus serve as sources of infection. Where a rose garden consists of only a few plants much may be accomplished by picking and burning every leaf as soon as it shows signs of disease.

Protection by spraying is the usual recommendation for the control of the disease of roses caused by Diplocarpon rosae Wolf. Of the numerous fungicides recommended in literature probably Bordeaux mixture and ammoniacal copper carbonate are the two most often mentioned. Statements to the effect that the latter fungicide is as efficacious as the former are common in literature. Results of experiments conducted in 1917 indicate that ammoniacal copper carbonate is not as efficient as Bordeaux mixture for the control of the disease. A mixture of ninety parts finely ground sulphur and ten parts powdered arsenate of lead dusted upon the plants proved to be as efficient as Bordeaux mixture and its use rendered the plants far less unsightly than the latter fungicide. Lime-sulphur solution, one part of the commercial concentrated solution to fifty parts water, was found to be more efficient than ammoniacal copper carbonate and probably as much so as Bordeaux mixture and the sulphur-lead dust. However, lime-sulphur discolors the foliage almost as much as Bordeaux mixture.

ADVERTISING WITH ORDERS.

Dobbs & Son, of 140-150 South Division street, Auburn, N. Y., have made use of an idea which is worth the consideration of every retail florist. With every letter and bill sent out by this concern is sent a neat card, upon which is printed the verse which follows, as well as the firm name, its address and telephone number:

"A few flowers, a sick friend to cheer,
Do more good than all the drugs you can buy in a year;
'Tis better to bring a single flower
To a living friend at any hour,
Than to heap up roses, white and red,
Upon his coffin when he's dead."

Florists could vary the idea by using appropriate quotations of prose or poetry, instead of original verse. The card serves as a reminder to the customer when he wishes to order again and is an inexpensive method of advertising.

Natick, Mass.—Robert Montgomery has been unwell for some time, but feels that with the advent of spring he will be as vigorous as ever. Roses are his specialty and have cropped well when they were worth most. A fine crop is in sight for Easter.

Watertown, Mass.—A. Davenport makes a specialty of ferns and reports a good demand, especially for the crested forms of nephrolepis, as it is found they make better house plants than the plain-leaved kinds. A miscellaneous stock for Easter looks promising.

Natick, Mass.—James Wheeler, though forced to close two of the largest houses, has been well compensated by the heavy crops of carnations, Benora, Pink Delight and Matchless, the last named, in his opinion, unequaled for productiveness, both in grass and bloom, and one of the easiest to propagate. A pink sport promises much. Aviator is a favorite. Mr. Wheeler believes it well worth trying by all growers, as it does finely here. Close by it is a failure, evidence that it is not confined to a certain location. Junior Wheeler made what he believes a record when he picked and bunched 1,150 blooms in one and three-quarter hours. Anybody equaled or beat this feat? The empty houses will be planted to Comet tomatoes for a spring crop.

Waverley, Mass.—Manager Hermann Bartsch, of W. W. Edgar Co., is having his usual success in producing stock for Easter, regardless of the date. Mr. Farmer, father of Mrs. W. W. Edgar, is being congratulated upon having passed the seventy-sixth milestone, as spry as ever, full of "pep," a valuable help to the business and proud of being associated with the only John Evans and Lloyd-George by kinship through the land of their birth.

Roslindale, Mass.—Antoine Leuthy, speaking from experience as an old-time importer, says that we cannot compete with Belgian growers of palms and azaleas, and gives as the reason that a closed car is either too hot or too cold and that the journey across the continent is fatal to this class of stock. On the other hand, the Belgians pack for the voyage and rarely, if ever, fail, under ordinary conditions, to get the plants through in good shape. The same applies to bay trees and boxwood. Moreover, palms grown under lath houses are open to attacks from grasshoppers. These are a bane to our confreres in Louisiana. Mr. Leuthy relates one of his experiences as a youthful palm grower in Algiers, when ditches were dug and kerosene sprayed and lighted to burn up the pests.

CARNATIONS

BRITISH CONFERENCE.

At a recent conference of the British Carnation Society, C. Engelmann, who is well known in the United States, said he looks forward to the time when British-raised varieties will for all purposes equal and even surpass the American varieties. From the market point of view the latter now predominate. He said he is preparing a trial of the varieties he can obtain. He has some 150 varieties or more at his nurseries, and these, with others he hopes to obtain, he proposes to plant in a special house, giving them all the same treatment. Regarding statistics of carnation growing in England at the present time, Mr. Engelmann mentioned that the secretary of the American Carnation Society has asked what effect the war has had. In reply he ventured to say that the stocks of carnations in England had been reduced seventy-five per cent and that the quality was about fifty per cent below pre-war standard. In France, matters were much worse, while in Belgium, he assumed, nothing remained in the carnation-growing establishments.

George Allwood said it is largely a question of climate that enables the Americans to produce successful varieties. When in the States he knew a raiser who from two seed pods raised four varieties, and he kept them to himself. The flowers from all four were sent continuously to New York for five years. This man got more results in one year than his own firm could in five years. The American climate allows earlier crossing and better ripening of seed. The English raiser is not to blame. He would mention, however, that in America it is customary for a raiser to allow friendly growers to try out novelties. The U. S. A. raisers trust such growers absolutely, and it often happens that, after a trial, the grower will book up 10,000 cuttings from the raiser, and perhaps the cuttings will be actually on the grower's place.

J. Page, who had some seven years' experience in America, stated that American growers were going back to Mrs. Lawson and Winsor. The U. S. A. growers aim at getting their crop by Christmas and do not hesitate to ruin their plants to get the crop. British growers are too much concerned about making a plant instead of aiming at a quick and paying crop.

DISCOLORED PRIMULA FOLIAGE.

Will you please tell me if a blight has affected the leaves of the enclosed primroses? What can be used to prevent this condition? I am afraid Bordeaux mixture will ruin the flowers.

J. R. F.—Ga.

Primulas are not usually attacked by fungous diseases, being, as a rule, free from both insect pests and these diseases. I am inclined to think that the browning of the edges of the leaves may be due to overwatering, keeping the plants in too close and humid a house, or to injudicious feeding. C. W.

WILD FLOWERS OF LONG ISLAND.

In Colonel Roosevelt's autobiography there is an interesting account of the flowers of Long Island. We are sure the florist following of this wonderful man would be pleased to read of this side of his great fund of knowledge.

Gullett & Sons.

"Long Island is not as rich in flowers as the valley of the Hudson. Yet there are many. Early in April there is one hillside near us which glows like a tender flame with the white of the bloodroot. About the same time we find the shy mayflower, the trailing arbutus; and although we rarely pick wild flowers, one member of the household always plucks a little bunch of mayflowers to send to a friend working in Panama, whose soul hungers for the northern spring.

"Then there are shadblow and delicate anemones, about the time of the cherry blossoms; the brief glory of the apple orchards follows; and then the thronging dogwoods fill the forests with their radiance; and so flowers follow flowers until the springtime splendor closes with the laurel and the evanescent, honey-sweet locust blooms. The late summer flowers follow, the flaunting lilies, and cardinal flowers, and marshmallows, and pale beach rosemary; and the goldenrod and the asters when the afternoons shorten and we begin to think of fires in the wide fireplaces."

LADIES' S. A. F.

The following ladies have been appointed by the president to serve for a term of two years on the board of directors: Mrs. J. F. Ammann, Illinois; Mrs. J. J. Hess, Nebraska; Mrs. Chas. H. Totty, New Jersey. Also the following ladies from Michigan to serve on the introduction committee at the coming convention: Mrs. Fred Breitmeyer, chairman; Mrs. Philip Breitmeyer, Mrs. E. A. Schribner and Mrs. Robert Jean.

Mrs. H. G. Berning, Sec'y.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

The Whiting Greenhouses, of Hartford, Conn., notice a marked improvement in orders for window boxes for indoor decoration and a bright outlook for spring business, says Carl Petersen.

* * * *

William Sim, of Cliftondale, Mass., is so pleased with Carnation Pink Delight that he will plant an additional house for next season. The single violet and the polyanthus are also among the money-makers this season.

* * * *

If any one thing stands out preëminent at the Thomas Roland establishment at Nahant, Mass., it is the grand lot of French hydrangeas, in perfect shape for Easter, not a single stake necessary. Next are the ramblers, chiefly Tausendschoen, and the final of the trió is Erica cupressina. While these three leaders form the main supply, there is a fine batch of Erica melanthera and persoluta and cytisus that is sold as quickly as blooms open; in fact, this applies to everything in the shape of a blooming plant at this time. Attention was called to a miniature Japanese cytisus, described by Mr. Roland as a "fussy little plant," but of which he is justly proud. It is a perfect yellow ball-shape, very cute. Of acacias there are some notable specimens, possibly without their equal in any commercial or private collection anywhere; the special care of their owner, who admits a greenhouse has a peculiar charm for him and this undoubtedly is the secret of his success as a grower. The loss of azaleas will be felt, although there are many various items to help fill the void. Begonias, cyclamens and oranges are in time for Christmas.

J. M. Ward & Co., of Peabody, Mass., express the opinion that had it not been for the "flu," business would have been far below normal, owing to the absence of social functions. This is proof of the necessity of constant publicity. Funeral work keeps them busy.

* * * *

Warburton's, of Fall River, Mass., received a shipment of azaleas from California in rather poor shape, owing to the long period of transit. It is believed, however, that after this first experience the method of packing will be improved upon to meet such a condition. The plants were fine and sold readily. "In fact," observes Chatterton Warburton, "we find if we have but one azalea on view and put a fancy price on it, we are able to sell other plants in competition." Among the few varieties of plants for Easter, is seen a fine lot of Deutzia gracilis, always a good seller and easy to grow. Schizanthus and nemesia are among the annuals, now in 4-inch, will soon be in 5-inch and 6-inch pots for Easter. Schizanthus is excellent as a cut flower, while the nemesia is the best pot plant. These are being grown as a catch crop, so to speak, following the rescinding of the fuel order. It will be a good Easter line. Carnations and roses are in fine condition, with heavy cuts in sight. A sport from Columbia is held in high regard, showing no tendency to form bullheads, as does the parent. The color is pleasing. James Warburton is down with the "flu," but it is hoped Lent will find him in shape for the Easter push. Chatterton Warburton says it is a rush, though, all the time so far this season.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THE cineraria seems to be rising in popularity; at least the quantity of plants offered for sale has increased materially in the last year or two.

TALK about sticking close to one's work, a Mr. Leak is spokesman for the market gardeners affiliated with the British Horticultural Trades' Association.

NOT so many years ago but that most of us can remember it, rose plants taken out of the benches were used to make a nice bonfire. Now growers are asking 15 cents per plant for the popular varieties.

THE Editor's table last week was graced by a vase of Rainbow freesias sent by Alois Frey, Crown Point, Ind. The bright, clear, distinct colors and the large flowers indicate that Mr. Frey still is making progress in the development of his specialty.

MORE than one florist is sweating over the completion of his income tax return this week because he has not kept the records necessary to fill out the schedule. The government is not content with guesswork returns and it behooves every florist who wishes to avoid trouble to be prepared to show an exact record of his financial affairs.

THE British Chamber of Horticulture, a governmental body, is at work on a plan to offer protection to the raisers of new varieties, similar to the protection afforded other lines by patents, trademarks and copyrights. A plan for such protection of ownership has been drawn up by Laxton Bros., seed growers, and is supported by other firms. The secretary of the Chamber of Horticulture has invited the trade to present its ideas on the subject.

IMPORTANT quantities of azaleas from Belgium are on the way, a few small shipments having arrived during the month of February. Two eastern forcers are reported to have ordered 35,000 plants each and many others are said to have ordered smaller quantities. It seems open to question if the stock imported now can be flowered in salable shape this season. Plants obtained in unsalable condition can be grown on and flowered for Christmas.

IF you feel that your flowers are worth what you ask, no need to apologize for them or the prices.

THERE is little satisfaction in low grade stock, either for the one who sells or the one who uses. Look up.

THE cut flower trade will miss irises next season, Spanish, tingitana, etc., to be shut out of this country by the quarantine.

IT has come to be almost axiomatic that shortages in the trade are not so great as they seem; unexpected quantities of stock are developed by the demand for them.

THERE are many short items, but geraniums seem to afford the only serious scarcity and it is an even chance there will be plenty of these toward the end of the season.

UNLESS a special delivery stamp is used, it frequently takes a week for a parcel post shipment of cuts from New York, Philadelphia or Boston to reach The Review.

No man who really works has much real cause for complaint in any branch of the florists' business. The dissatisfied ones usually could remedy the conditions of which they complain if they would do a real day's work.

FLOWERS played an important part in the departure of the President and his party from Europe and again at the landing at Boston. They are as proper for "good-bye" as for "welcome" in the "Say It with Flowers" language.

THE law requires that income tax returns be filed with the collector of internal revenue not later than March 15. No doubt an extension of time will be allowed, but the man who wants to be on the safe side will not fail to do something about it this week.

SOME of the best articles on the care of house plants, etc., which have appeared in the daily and weekly newspapers of home circulation were inspired by the promotion bureau of the S. A. F. The articles are sane and practical; they will widen the popular interest in flowers. Members of the trade can assist in this work. If they send to Secretary Young for manuscript to take to their local papers they can secure free publication of many articles which will serve to arouse local interest in flowers, plants and gardening matters in general.

COMMERCIAL CASUALTIES.

High prices make for a low business mortality. This fact has again been demonstrated by the report on commercial failures for the year 1918. The number of failures for the year was one of the smallest on record. The total number of failures in the United States for the year, according to Dun's, was 9,982, as compared with 13,855 for 1917, 16,933 for 1916 and 22,156 for 1915. To find a year with so few business fatalities one must go back to 1899, when the total was 9,337.

If rising prices are the safety of the business man, descending prices are regarded as his greatest danger. But, though the price index has descended several points since the war ended, the number of failures continues to be exceptionally small. But this freedom from failure may be accounted for by the fact that declining prices so far have touched only the manufacturers and producers and have not reached in any large extent to the army of small retailers who are doing business on small capital and furnish the bulk of the commercial casualties.

The failure list should begin to grow rapidly within the next six months and financial first aid will have to be administered to hundreds of short-sighted merchants.

QUICK ACTION.

The trade has become accustomed to getting prompt action when a Classified advertisement is inserted in The Review, but this season the response is even more prompt than usual, as well as in greater volume. This may be due to the special conditions this season, or it may be due to the continued progress of The Review, but it is all one to the man who has some stock he does not need for his local retail trade. Like this:

Please cancel my ad of pansy plants, as I have nearly sold out in one week. They sold so well that I have moved 48,000 plants on one insertion of the classified ad in your valuable paper. —John Faber, Kankakee, Ill., March 10, 1919.

Mr. Faber's advertisement occupied three lines. At the price advertised the sale of 48,000 plants would return $144 on the expenditure of 37½ cents.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

TWENTY PINK PAGES.

The Pink Part of The Review has been a feature of this paper for a little more than a year and it has done more than any other agency to impress the trade with the large volume of orders now being transferred, by mail and wire, from one retail florist to another. This department of the florists' business has grown faster since The Review established its Pink Part than at any other time in the history of the trade.

For mechanical reasons it is necessary to print the pink section in multiples of four pages and sixteen pages is the most economical number, actually cheaper to manufacture than twelve. The idea of the Pink Part was conceived long before there were advertisements enough to justify its inception, but, once started, its growth has been rapid. Because of the greater cost per page of printing any other number, the Pink Part has been held to sixteen pages as long as possible, but it has been overcrowded for several weeks and with this issue the section is enlarged to twenty pages per week—twenty pages, that is, until there is an increase in the advertising patronage to justify twenty-four.

The creation of the new space in the Pink Part offers an opportunity to many florists who have not yet enjoyed their share of this profitable business. There still are a number of cities not represented. If a good florist finds his city is not listed in the Index by Towns on page 50 he will see the means by which he may secure for himself practically all the retail orders the trade is transferring into that territory. If he finds his town already is represented, he will see who is getting these orders in steadily increasing number, for practically the whole trade consults the Pink Part of The Review on each order that is to go out for delivery in some other city.

OBITUARY

Frank A. Friedley.

The trade has lost another good man, for Frank A. Friedley died at his home in Cleveland Sunday evening, March 9, the unexpected result of an illness with quinsy and bronchitis of about ten days' duration, from which he was thought to be recovering. Pneumonia set in March 9 and the end came within a few hours.

Mr. Friedley was only 37 years of age. He was born at New Albany, Ind., and started in the trade with E. G. Hill, at Richmond, Ind., just twenty-two years ago, in March, 1897. He remained with Mr. Hill for five years. During the next few years he was successively employed by the Miami Floral Co., Dayton, O.; Frank Huntsman and William Murphy, Cincinnati; the Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., during the days when James Hartshorne was at the zenith of his fame, and by Bell Miller, Springfield, Ill. In 1907 he left Miss Miller to become superintendent of the greenhouse establishment of the J. M. Gasser Co., at Rocky River O., being perhaps the youngest man in the history of the trade to be engaged for so responsible a position, as he then was only 25 years of age. Mr. Friedley remained with the Gasser Co. until he went into business for himself, with a partner, purchasing the greenhouses and retail flower store of the James Eadie Co. This arrangement did not prove permanent and the partnership was dissolved, Mr. Friedley taking over the greenhouses in East Cleveland, which he had since conducted under the name of the Friedley Co., growing cut flowers and pot plants for the local wholesale trade. He was a first-class grower in everything that the term implies and was just now engaged in the dissemination of a new pompon chrysanthemum called Christmas Gold.

Mr. Friedley married Miss Anna Drehs, December 28, 1909. She survives. They had no children.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon, March 12, from the residence, 14717 Shaw avenue, East Cleveland, interment being at Lakeview cemetery. Practically everybody in the trade in Cleveland was present, with a number from outside points, and there were many flowers.

Mr. Friedley was one of the most widely known florists, not only in Cleveland, but in the entire United States. For a number of years Cleveland has been the scene of many large trade gatherings and Mr. Friedley always was one of the active managers of such affairs. No flower show or trade convention was held without his being an active participant. He was a life member of the S. A. F., a member of the American Carnation Society, the Chrysanthemum Society and many trade bodies. For several years he was secretary of the Cleveland Florists' Club and usually he was show manager when an exhibition was given by that organization. He was a bowler of unusual ability and a leader in all the recreation matters within the organizations to which he belonged. He was an Elk, a Moose, a Mason and president of the Chamber of Industry Bowling League at the time of his death.

WILL TRY TO STABILIZE PRICES.

Council of Defense to Act.

The Council of National Defense is authorized to announce the creation, by William C. Redfield, of the Industrial Board of the Department of Commerce. This board will be charged, under the approval already given by the President to the Secretary of Commerce, with the stabilization of prices for basic materials in such a fashion as to create a firm foundation on which the consumer can base his future purchases and the producer can form necessary production cost estimates. Its program will be supported by the Council of National Defense.

The full personnel of this board, to consist of six carefully chosen men, will be announced as soon as acceptances have been obtained. Already it is assured that the chairman will be George N. Peek, of Moline, Ill., formerly vice-chairman of the War Industries Board.

Through proper investigation and stabilization it is expected that the foundation can be laid for the resumption of American business and for the furnishing of employment to returning soldiers and sailors—this through government purchases, the publication of fair price lists, and coöperation of the producer.

To obtain this coöperation of the producer, it is planned that the board shall call the various leaders of industry into consultation. The first of these conferences will be with representatives of industries producing basic materials, such as iron, steel, lumber, textiles, cement, copper, brick and other construction materials.

It will be the endeavor of the board to interchange views with these representatives of industry in the fullest and freest manner possible. If these conferences result in a general agreement among the important basic industries upon proper prices and bases for prices at which sales will be made, and this agreement is approved by the board, it is believed that the announcement of this fact will induce the nation to feel justified in properly beginning a buying program.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

There has been some falling off in the city trade since Ash Wednesday, but the houses which do the principal shipping business say the out-of-town demand is keeping up as strongly as it did in the height of the social season. Between the shipping and local demand, business continues better than usual at this time of year. The supply of flowers continues to increase and there is an easier tendency in prices, but prices have not fallen in the same proportion that the supply of stock has increased, with the result that the principal wholesale houses are doing a larger volume of business, measured by flowers or in dollars and cents, than at any time since Christmas. The only complaint that is heard relates to the efforts retailers are said to be making, now that supplies are equal to the demand, to depress wholesale prices. The retailers, in justification, assert that they have not been able to get prices this winter which would give them their usual margin of profit, that growers and wholesalers have been the ones who profited by the good business and that the retailer has yet to make his money for this season.

For almost the first time since last summer it may be said that there is an adequate supply in all lines of cut flowers. The one possible exception is American Beauty, good stock of which is not always available except at pretty stiff rates. Of other roses there is an abundance, particularly of the fancy long grades. Russell is not in such large supply as it was last season and good flowers command a ready sale. Milady is more abundant than in previous years. Killarney is dropping out. Columbia is popular everywhere. While prices have been easy, the price of the best grade is easier, comparatively, than the price of the shorts.

There are enough carnations to go around, but the price is holding up excellently under the circumstances, though growers say it is not now as much above other years as expenses of running greenhouses have increased. Mrs. Ward continues the most sought variety, though Enchantress and White Enchantress are the most abundant. Excellent Matchless are offered, almost too good to use in funeral work, where most of the white carnations go.

The market is well supplied with cattleyas, but they are moving satisfactorily. Large quantities of iris are seen; tingitana is on the wane, but there are increased supplies of filifolia. Bulbous stock is more abundant than heretofore, considerable quantities of early tulips being seen, with moderate supplies of jonquils and daffodils, not counting the southern stock, which is not wanted by the better stores if indoor flowers are to be had at reasonable prices. Darwin tulips are in request and the supplies are not large. Purity freesia is on the wane, as are Paper Whites. Considerable quantities of giganteum lilies now are offered, some of the stock being such as to raise the question as to whether or not the grower can break even. Lilies of satisfactory quality are selling fairly well. Violets are not selling any too well, the sweet pea being the popular corsage flower and now in large supply and of excellent quality. There are increased receipts of snapdragon, but not much is long-stemmed. Valley is available for all orders. Calendulas are more abundant than they have been for the last few weeks.

The green goods situation is quiet. While there are small supplies of Florida asparagus, quantities are coming from California.

Club Meeting.

There were many interesting features at the meeting of the Florists' Club, held at the Randolph hotel March 6. Peter Pearson read a long and interesting paper which he had prepared on "Home-grown Bulbs." It was so well received that he was given a rising vote of thanks. J. E. Duffield, of the Chicago Chamber of Commerce, addressed the meeting in a most interesting way, his main object being to urge florists who are not members to join the association. Morris Smith, of the W. W. Barnard Co., read a letter from his brother, Frederick A. Smith, the war correspondent, who was the first American to cross the Rhine and reach Berlin, getting through by airplane.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. exhibited a large table of baskets and novelties for St. Patrick's day and Easter, for which it received honorable mention. H. R. Hughes turned the memories of many old-timers back to the Chicago world's ceived from Arthur Eichel, Charles Grabig, B. E. Gould, Richard J. Gould, Peter Hoefeld, D. F. Simonds, John Curres, Michael Redden, Roy White, F. W. Elverson and Miss Florence Keenan. Miss Keenan is the first lady florist to ask for membership in the club and it was decided to accept her application and that of any other lady in the trade who cares to become a member. In fact, it is the view of many that it would be to the advantage of the club, as there are ladies in the trade who are leaders in the profession.

New Stores.

It is reported that A. C. Rocca and Miss Lewis, who have been members of John Mangel's force, have leased a store in the Cable building, on Jackson boulevard, and will go into business there as soon as the quarters can be fitted up.

H. Shaeffer will open a new retail store at 5518 West Chicago avenue about March 22. The refrigerator and fixtures are now being installed by the A. L. Randall Co.

George Willens Comes Back.

George Willens, who first was doing war work and then was drafted into the army, has come back into the florists' trade. As before the war, he will do business as the Willens Construction Co. In addition to supplying greenhouse material and taking greenhouse erection contracts, he will deal in various accessories. Among other things he has a dealers' agency for a hot spot for Ford delivery cars which is proving a good seller among florists.

Various Notes.

It is the opinion of Ed Enders that the retail end of the flower business has profited least of all by the conditions of the last five or six months. He believes the retailer who has made a good living has done well, but that the growers have been able to add materially to their reserves.

The first Japanese lily bulbs of the 1918 crop to reach Chicago were reported last week by the American Bulb Co. While the bulk of the shipment was auratum and speciosum, it is intimated

W. Price, one of P. C. Schupp's right-hand men with the J. A. Budlong Co., attracted the attention of the bowling world last week by rolling three games of 223, 205 and 288 in the North Chicago League, a score which is rarely recorded even in such fast company. The others on the Central team are florists, Lorman, Lieberman, Huebner and Wolf.

Paul Klingsporn, state vice-president of the S. A. F., is making steady accessions to the membership. This week he secured H. Van Gelder as a life member.

Carl Weidiger has returned to his duties in the supply department of the A. L. Randall Co., following an illness of some duration.

George Tegelaar, of Drevon-Tegelaar & Co., has returned to Chicago after a trip to New York.

After having been threatened with a complete loss of his eyesight, J. E. Pollworth reappeared March 10 at the store of Kennicott Bros. Co., wearing large yellow goggles.

One of the most charming of the recent north side brides was Miss Leona Zender, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Zender, of 6757 Ridge avenue, whose marriage to Valentine Seng, Jr., is announced.

Saturday, March 8, was John C. Enders' fifty-third birthday anniversary. Except for the absence of thatch, one would never suspect.

R. Scheffler, who bought the Florentine place at Downers Grove, has razed the establishment. He has sold part of the material and moved the rest of it to his place at Wheaton. It will enable him to enlarge his range this season to the extent of another house 30x400 feet.

It seems that C. W. McKellar will find it too much of a wrench if he completely severs his connection with the trade and he is planning to grow outdoor summer cut flowers at his place northwest of the city. He has about ten acres of land suitable for hardy perennials and will make a start at it this summer. He will be occupied for a month or so in closing up his book accounts and will make his headquarters at the old address at 22 East Randolph street.

Adolph Poehlmann and Mrs. Poehlmann celebrated their twenty-seventh wedding anniversary at Morton Grove March 10.

William J. Sharpe, of Toronto, formerly in the seed trade in Chicago, wired the W. W. Barnard Co. March 10 that he will be in Chicago March 17 to assist the company during the heavy retail season.

Mrs. Peter Reinberg will leave Chicago March 16 for California, where she will spend two months.

Captain Daniel Emerson Barnard, uncle of W. W. Barnard, died March 7 at the age of 92 years. He was captain of Company K, 88th Infantry, Illinois volunteers, the second Board of Trade regiment, in the Civil war. He was the oldest living graduate of Amherst College, being a member of the class of 1846.

Leonard Vaughan celebrated his thirty-ninth birthday anniversary March 8.

The secretary of state has licensed the incorporation of the Excell Laboratories, with authorized capital stock $2,500. The incorporators are Richard J. Jacker, William C. Gray and R. N. Jackson.

Visitors.

Jelle Roos, gladiolus grower at Milton, Mass., is a visitor this week. It is the first time he ever has been west of Buffalo, but since he has gone into the wholesale bulb business he has found that the bulk of his orders come from the states of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio, so he thought it would be a good idea to gain a little personal acquaintance in the territory.

One of the recent visitors in the market was A. W. Smith, the widely known Pittsburgh retailer.

One of the members of the firm of Cole Bros., Peoria, Ill., has been here this week buying stock.

John N. Carey, of Detroit, was a visitor in the market the latter part of last week.

J. B. Tipton, of Tipton & Hurst, Little Rock, Ark., arrived in Chicago March 12, in quest of stock and accessories for the big business his firm is doing and the record Easter trade that is expected.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

The Market.

The general report is that there will be few azaleas or Easter lilies for Easter this year; in fact, flowering plants of all varieties will probably be scarce, as Easter comes so late. However, a splendid assortment of potted plants is to be had at the present time, so we will not worry about the future. Some of the local florists intend to use yellow and white potted callas to take the place of Easter lilies. A few potted Easter lilies may be obtained at the present time. Some fine baby primroses, hyacinths, begonias, tulips, daffodils and small spiræas may be had.

Cut flowers are increasing in supply. Carnations are plentiful. There are enough roses to fill all orders. Bulbous stock is in abundant supply, especially Paper Whites. Callas are plentiful. Sweet peas are daily increasing in supply and some snapdragons with long stems are being cut. A few kinds of blooming shrubs are being displayed in the florists' windows. Some splendid pansies were noted recently, also some large calendulas.

Several large balls were held recently which called for elaborate decorations. A number of corsages were sold for these balls, which called for quantities of roses, violets, sweet peas and orchids. A number of weddings called for palms and ferns for decorating, as well as elaborate bouquets. Several of the local millinery stores have had their spring openings this week. The stores were decorated with palms and ferns. Funeral work, which is still abundant, keeps all surplus flowers cleaned up.

Various Notes.

James Horan & Son have an immense stock of cinerarias in their greenhouses and store. Mr. Metser, the grower, says that out of a collection of several thousand plants there are no two plants which are exactly alike. This assortment has been seen by several men who are in a position to judge them and they declare that they have never seen a finer collection in New England. The windows of this concern are filled with cinerarias and they make a beautiful display.

The Park Garden and Flower Shop is cutting some large calendulas, also some splendid snapdragons and callas.

Julius Reck reports that funeral work keeps all cut flowers cleaned up.

Robert H. Hawkins had the decorations for the Stratfield ballroom for both the Charity ball and the Knights of Columbus ball.

John Reck & Son report that they are getting ready for Easter. They are still cutting cold storage giganteum lilies. Their calendulas are fine. They intend to use both yellow and white calla plants to replace Easter lilies in their Easter trade. They were exceptionally busy making corsages for the recent balls.

Victor Carwardine, who has been manager for Mr. Hawkins for a number of years and who was employed by James Horan & Son, has opened a store at 307 Stratford avenue. I. L. B.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The first week in March has brought a decline in the market coincident with the arrival of Lent. Just why Lent should cause prices to fall is not clear. There has been little entertaining, not enough to make much difference in business, yet the market fell. Probably the principal reason is the increased supply of flowers. Anyway, the market fell sharply in mid-week, then improved toward the end of the week on a lower price level. Carnations held fairly well on rather lighter receipts. Sweet peas declined most, the crop being heavy. Roses also dropped, chiefly on Killarneys; all three members of this Irish family were plentiful, cheap and hard to sell. The other varieties suffered less. Beauties did not suffer at all. The difference in quality is strongly brought out now. The best flowers, carefully handled, bring excellent prices. The poorer flowers and those that are bruised bring much less.

Emperor daffodils are coming into crop. They are popular and not plentiful. Tulips are quite rare. Most of these offered are doubles. Easter lilies vary much in quality. There are some good flowers, but many of the cold storage giganteums are not good. There are lots of callas. Violets are not in demand. Greens are quite scarce.

A Trip.

The plant growers are on the alert regarding the supply for Easter. A quartette of them went visiting by motor March 6. They were Robert A. Craig, Alfred M. Campbell, Joseph Ross and Cornelius van der Breggan. They called at the Floracroft Greenhouses in Moorestown; at Godfrey Aschmann's, and at the range of Aschmann Bros., in this city; at Henry I. Faust's, in Merion, and at the Laurel Hill Nurseries at the Falls of Schuylkill. The party greatly enjoyed the trip. They were particularly pleased with the Floracroft hydrangeas and with 1,000 pots of lilies from the Azores at Merion.

The Club Meeting.

Edmund A. Harvey called to order the largest meeting ever held by the Florists' Club of Philadelphia on the evening of March 4, on the roof garden of the Adelphia hotel. Twenty-five new names were presented for membership. M. J. Brinton, of Christiana, Pa., one of the leading lights of the profession, read a scholarly paper on "Carnation Ideals and Success." Mr. Brinton laid stress on the fact that far more depended on the man than on his surroundings. In other words, the man counts for more than the houses.

Charles J. Theis read a paper on "Why Carnations Are Not More Used by the Retailer." He displayed a vase containing a bunch of twenty-five carnations, of which thirteen were good flowers and twelve were not. He read the slips of one day's purchases, amounting to $200; only $15 of the amount was spent on carnations, which, he said, were not pushed because they often did not keep. The wholesalers, from their places in the audience, attacked this paper vigorously. Edward Reid, Alfred M. Campbell and J. M. Deutscher, who flashed his maiden sword in debate, much to the delight of the ladies, replied. The fact was elicited that $6 per hundred was the biggest price paid. They claimed that had $8 per hundred been paid, first-grade carnations would have been secured. The retailer replied with spirit and, in the opinion of many in the room, fully held his own. His idea was that carnations should be absolutely fresh and sharply graded, which could not be where growers shipped only twice a week and bunched the blooms as they picked them. The key to the wholesalers' attack lay in their belief that Mr. Theis represented that wing of the retailers who aim at low prices rather than those who believe in the policy of live and let live.

Theodore Wirth, of Minneapolis, the next speaker, had come on his way home from Washington in response to an invitation from J. Otto Thilow. He told of his visit to William F. Gude and of his regret at finding him ill.

Charles H. Grakelow gave an able exposition on the advantages of the F. T. D. He read an interesting letter from Secretary Pochelon and asked all those present to come and look at a stack of telegraphic orders he had received.

The exhibition was remarkably fine. Perhaps the most interesting feature was the collection of early-flowering varieties of Spencer sweet peas grown by George W. Kerr, of the W. Atlee Burpee Co. They were all own seedlings, covering a wide range of shades of color.

This account is supplementary to last week's report.

Robert Craig was much pleased with his visit to Strafford.

Alfred M. Campbell is rapidly emptying the Ellenwood Greenhouses, preparatory to replanting.

Raymond Brunswick, secretary and treasurer of the M. Rice Co., says that the reports from all over the country indicate great business activity among florists.

J. D. Eisele, vice-president of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., is hopeful that the plant embargo planned to go into effect June 1 will be repealed.

Edward Reid was the first to demonstrate the value of wire rose stakes when working for Charles S. Price, of Lansdowne. Mr. Reid straightened out some telegraph wire and cut it into suitable lengths for rose stakes, using them in place of the old bamboo canes then in vogue. Mr. Price was so pleased with these wire stakes that he ordered a lot from John A. Roebling Sons Co. They are now in general use.

William Berger's Sons arranged so magnetic a window display that they were obliged to shut off the lights lest the plate glass might not withstand the dense crowd in front. Now, what do you think was inside that window?

The March meeting of the Germantown Horticultural Society was held in the library of Vernon park March 10. Dr. Adolph Miller spoke on the "Mythology of Trees." Phil.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Up to date the arrival of Lent has not unfavorably affected the flower market. The weather has been clear and unusually mild for March and arrivals have increased, but the demand has been quite good and there has been little surplus of anything. American Beauty roses still are among the short supplies and continue to realize high prices, as do the best grades of Hadley and Russell. Columbia is coming in of better quality, with warmer weather, while Sunburst, Ophelia, Stanley and Miller all sell well. The Killarneys go more slowly, especially white. Carnations are in much larger supply, but prices hold up except in the case of whites, which are difficult to clear. Violets are low in price and the quality is declining with the continued warm weather. They have bloomed sparingly with everyone this season. Large supplies of excellent sweet peas are coming in. The finest make $2.50 to $3 per hundred, other grades going as low as 75 cents.

Callas were never so numerous as this season. More people are growing the Godfrey and are understanding its culture better. The flowers continue to sell well. Lilies are quite scarce. Good freesia still comes in, but the season for this is nearing an end. Daffodils are more abundant, but the supply of tulips is somewhat meager. Small lots of anemones and ranunculi are seen. Pansies are abundant and lower, and there are ample supplies of calendulas, forget-me-nots, marguerites, wallflowers and centaureas. Cattleyas still are in good supply, but prices hold up well. Lily of the valley is better in quality, but there are few calls for it. There is a continued shortage of adiantum and asparagus.

Flowering plants are much more plentiful and sell well. Among these are quantities of Tausendschoen roses, genistas, ericas, bulbous plants, various flowering shrubs, French hydrangeas and marguerites.

Exhibited at Horticultural Hall.

The schedule of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society provided no classes for a spring exhibition this year in Boston, much to the regret of exhibitors and the general public, who were eagerly anticipating such a show, but there were some interesting exhibits staged March 8 and 9. The most noteworthy display came from Douglas Ecclestone, superintendent to A. C. Robert Montgomery, of Natick, who has been confined to his home for a month with asthma and bronchitis, is able to be around again.

John Barry, who left here for Virginia about eighteen months ago, does not like the south and is back in Boston looking for a suitable establishment to purchase.

Paul V. Fortmiller, of the Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y., has been spending a few days in town and reports business as being extremely good, with most of the stock sold out.

A. C. Tingley, of Tewksbury, is sending in the finest yellow marguerites I have seen this season.

With the disappearance of all ice from ponds and rivers and the opening up of the ground, local nurserymen are already starting to dig and ship plants and expect a prosperous season.

Frank R. Pierson, of Tarrytown, N. Y., was the principal guest and speaker at a meeting of the Horticultural Club last week. He addressed himself solely to Quarantine 37 and expressed himself as optimistic over a holding up of the threatened embargo on all plant imports.

Everett E. Cummings, of Woburn, has three houses of sweet peas in full crop now, giving him over 100,000 flowers a week. He will follow these with tomatoes. Violets, in which he formerly specialized, have been dropped.

A lecture on fertilizers will be one of the features at the next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, which will come March 25, the halls being all rented on the regular date, March 18.

U. S. Destroyer Shaw, speaking in the highest terms of his efficiency. He had charge of the listening installation and quartermaster's department and was making rapid headway at the time of his untimely death.

Thomas Roland is sending in quantities of beautifully flowered Tausendschoen roses, genistas and French hydrangeas. His immense stock of Easter plants is in fine condition. At Revere, roses are being cut in largely increased quantities, Columbia and Ophelia being specially good.

Galvin, at his Park street store March 8, had one of his large windows filled with forsythias and pink roses. In another window he had a fine display of phalænopsis, Lælia anceps, cattleyas and other orchids.

Penn had a fine display of Tausendschoen roses, wistarias, malus, azaleas, French hydrangeas and other flowering plants and is having splendid sales on these. Attractively worded newspaper ads move large numbers.

Mark Roper, of Tewksbury, is growing fewer carnations than usual this season, but is sending in large quantities of splendid Mrs. Skach and Rose Queen sweet peas.

The Market.

Business at the wholesale markets all last week was excellent. The retailers say that they had large business just before Lent, with weddings, parties, receptions and dinners; in fact, the whole month of February business was splendid and it is not expected that Lent will cut much into the trade.

In looking over the various wholesale houses last week, excellent quality of stock was noticed in all grades and the demand was reported good daily. Roses are of fine quality, especially Russell and Ophelia. These are high in color and long in stem. There are also splendid consignments in Columbia, Ward and Killarney, with prices keeping up with quotations.

Carnations all this season have been cleaning up daily, which has never been known in this market in years. These, too, are excellent in all varieties and prices are keeping up to the regular market quotations. Enchantress in all varieties is much in demand. There is a great deal of fine bulbous stock among the daily consignments, in which we find a fine cut of Iris tingitana, jonquils, Dutch hyacinths, Romans, freesias, tulips and valley. These are all in County Growers Meet.

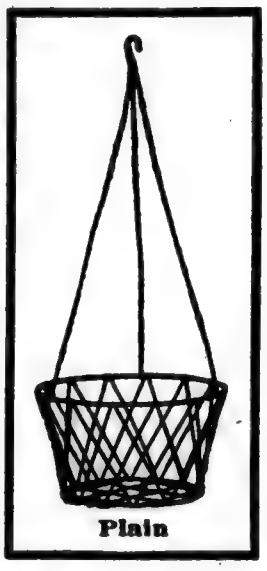
The St. Louis County Growers' Association held an interesting meeting March 5 at the Eleven Mile house. It was also one of the best-attended. After the routine business had been disposed of, the Milwaukee plan to raise funds for local publicity came up for discussion, in which all took part. At its conclusion it was decided by a full vote to endorse the plan.

Greenhouse insurance came up next and, after a lengthy discussion on this important question, it was decided to bring it to a final vote after further discussion at the next meeting.

F. A. Zenke, of Chicago, was present and gave the members an interesting talk on fungicides.

The rest of the evening was taken up with discussions on various other questions.



President Rowe then appointed a new committee on publicity, which consisted of himself, W. J. Pilcher and A. S. Cerny. This committee is to represent the association at all of the joint publicity meetings.

President Rowe reported that it was one of the most interesting meetings the association has ever held. The next meeting will take place April 2.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis Association of Gardeners held its monthly meeting at Forest park greenhouses, March 5. President L. P. Jensen presided. The feature of the meeting was a discussion on "Spring Planting" by Messrs. Vanderiem and Beer. The attendance was larger than usual. Secretary Schaff said that the attendance was increasing at each meeting, also the membership. Another interesting program is on for the next meeting, which is April 2.

The florists' masque ball, which was held March 4, at Westminster hall, was a great success. There were nearly 400 present and splendid costumes were noted. Arthur Beyer's jazz band was at its best. Edward Nibling, Miss M. Allen and Miss Hageman were the prize-winners and all voted that this dance was the best ever given by the florists.

Stark Bros., landscape architects and nurserymen of Louisiana, Mo., have opened an office here at 901 Chemical building and are using a great deal of space in the daily papers advertising their business.

H. G. Berning has purchased the residence of the late Mayor Walbridge, 4389 McPherson avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Berning will make their home there after the latter part of this month.

The Lady Florists' Club had a well attended meeting March 4, when the members were entertained with a tea at the Young Women's Christian Association rooms.

Eugene Grimm, Adolph Steidle and W. J. Beneke arrived home March 8, having been honorably discharged from the army. All three were at Camp MacArthur, Waco, Tex., for eight months and their many friends in the trade were glad to have them back again.

Five well known boys in the local trade circles are still in France, but they expect to be home for Easter. They are Harry Schlechter, Roland Hammer, Audre Bourdet, Ray Young and Johnnie Kern.

P. L. McKee, of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., of Chicago, spent a few days here last week, paying visits to the county growers. During his stay he contracted for the erection of two houses, 32x226, for Oscar May, at Sappington, Mo.; three houses, 27x150, for Phil Goebel, Jr., at Webster Groves, Mo., and two houses, 36x300, for the W. A. Rowe Floral Co., at Kirkwood, Mo. Several other county growers contemplate building a house or two this summer, on which Mr. McKee is figuring.

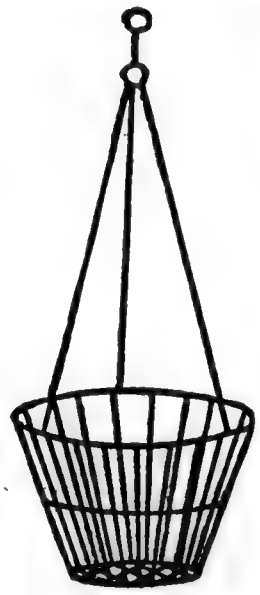
NEW YORK.

The Market.

With an increased supply in many lines, prices have declined to an appreciable extent. Nowadays the New York market does not become so much affected by the Lenten season and consequently there is little slackening in the general demand. In two or three lines there are heavy crops at present available, which have considerable influence on the market. Sweet peas, for instance, are in exceptionally heavy supply and values are forced down to a point practically below the normal; the best flowers command no more than $2 per hundred sprays and the lower grades move slowly at prices in proportion. Stocks and similar commodities are now in, signs that much glass area has been put into use since the fuel restriction was lifted. Tulips and narcissi, believed to have been short-planted, are now coming in quantity sufficient to cause a downward movement in prices on anything but exceptional stock, and in their clearance naturally affect the stability of more staple flowers.

Roses are in heavier supply, but move well. American Beauty is more plentiful and top grades are cheaper in consequence, but arrivals clean up well. Hybrid teas, too, are coming in quantity, but with lower prices prevailing their movement is active. The supply of short-stemmed stock is noticeably better, a condition which strengthens the situation as far as roses are concerned.

Cattleyas are in good supply and move at prices within a range of 15 cents to 50 cents each, small flowers occasionally changing hands at 10 cents. Gardenias are in short supply, at $4 to $9 per dozen. Wallflowers, pansies, snapdragons, myosotis, mignonette, primulas and lilac are plentiful and meet a fair demand at prices somewhat less than have prevailed of late. Quite a lot of acacia sprays are arriving, moving well at $1 to $2 per bunch. The supply of white lilies is shortening, but there is little change in prices, the best flowers bringing 25 cents each.



Club Meeting.

A regular meeting of the New York Florists' Club was held at the rooms in the Grand Opera House building March 10, with an attendance of about 175. After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, the dinner committee, through Chairman Schenck, announced that over 200 tickets had been taken up and that the success of the affair was fully assured.

J. H. Pepper presented a resolution of sympathy on the death of Wm. J. Stewart, which was duly passed and a copy ordered to be sent to the family of the deceased. A similar resolution of sympathy with the family of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Fenrich, mother of Joseph S. Fenrich, was read, having been ordered at the last meeting.

Totty, for the committee appointed to consider what is now commonly described as "the Milwaukee plan" for raising funds for publicity purposes, reported that the committee had had a meeting, and the plan had been discussed from all angles. It was believed that a similar plan, with modifications, could be put into practice in New York and would furnish an equitable means, far-reaching in its operation, of creating a fund to be regularly drawn upon for local publicity and also furnishing liberal support to the fund of the national campaign. The committee, Mr. Totty said, could only report progress, but the project was a live one and was to receive earnest consideration looking to early action.

F. R. Pierson told what the Buffalo florists had done in the way of coöperative advertising, obtaining results which had made the business of St. Valentine's day a close second only to that of Easter, while business for other festivals had been increased in proportion to their importance. If such results can be obtained in Buffalo, they can be obtained in New York. Pessimists had, years ago, prophesied that it would be impossible to make flower shows a success in New York, but experience has shown otherwise.

G. E. M. Stumpp was of the opinion that New York could stand a lot of publicity looking to increasing the sale of corsage bouquets. He said the lack of these at functions, for theater wear, and even on the street was a reflection on the florists' trade. He believed that publicity could make this particular business in a short time ten times what it is today.

F. R. Pierson told of the efforts of the tariff and legislative committee of the S. A. F. to have the matter of Quarantine Order No. 37 reopened for hearing. There seemed to be a possibility, Mr. Pierson said, that the matter might be given a hearing and some modification at least be made in the terms of the quarantine. What is to prevent insects coming in over the more than 3,000 miles of border between Canada and the United States, seeing that Canada was considering no similar embargo? And what is to prevent Canada shipping into the United States cut flowers of many of the items quarantined, particularly orchids? These points, he said, are of the common-sense kind and demand attention. He was hopeful, he declared, that some good would come of the vigorous opposition the society had set up, especially as it now is known to the Secretary of Agriculture that the nurserymen were ninety-five per cent against the quarantine instead of ninety per cent for it, as had been represented by the Federal Horticultural Board.

The speaker of the evening was Edwin E. Salt, expert industrial accountant, who gave an interesting address on "The Root of Income and Outgo." The address was rather one looking to encouraging the keeping of an accurate account of costs than of describing a system whereby it could be done. Beyond explaining the reason why a florist should know exactly what his products were costing him, nothing was brought out by the lecturer.

There were nominated for election to membership at the next meeting: Roceo Trebaldie, 426 Madison avenue, New York; A. M. Van der Schoot, 299 Broadway, New York; Frank Heid, Tarrytown, N. Y.; C. Niemann, 299 Broadway, New York. J. W. Niemeyer and J. P. Klausner, newly elected members, were present and were introduced to the gathering by President Kessler.

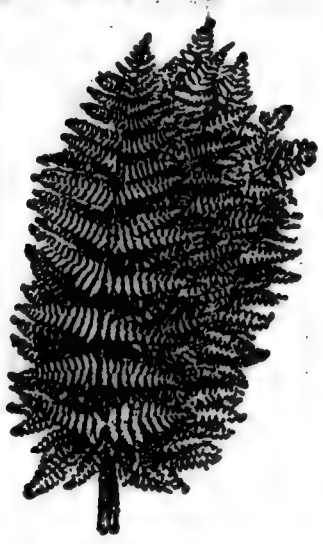
Announcement was made by the president that Victor and Edward Dorval, of Woodside, had taken out life membership in the club.

P. J. Daut, a florist of Decatur, Ill., was present. He is located at Camp Mills, awaiting discharge from the army after several months of service with the army in France. He proved to be entertaining and related many anecdotes of his experiences.

Various Notes.

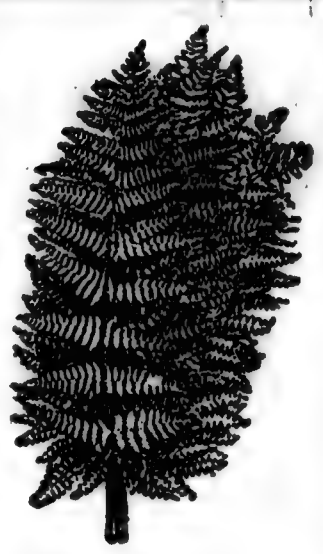
The dinner committee of the New York Florists' Club is jubilant over the fact that at this time, one week ahead of the event, over 200 table reservations have been made, insuring that the function will be a success financially.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Z. Purnell, Snow Hill, Md., were in town last week. Mr. Purnell is planning for a good cut of Iris germanica in season for Memorial day.



R. G. Wilson, the Brooklyn retail florist, and Fred Marquardt, the Maspeth, L. I., grower, have been spending some weeks in Florida. Mr. Marquardt's health, which for some time has been poor, has been much improved by the trip.

F. C. W. Brown, of the Gasser Co., Cleveland, was a visitor in town March 7 and made a round of calls in retail sections.



Robert E. Berry, Lawrenceville, Va., was in town this week.

Louis Dupuy, of Whitestone, N. Y., with Mrs. Dupuy, are spending a vacation at Indian River, Fla.

The Pennsylvania hotel florist has now two large windows on the Thirty-third street front of the hotel, which are carrying artistic displays of flowers and accessories. J. H. P.

"WHAT'S IN A NAME?"

Is A Palm A Tree?

Considered according to the basic meaning of the word tree, as being "a woody plant . . . . producing one main erect axis which continues to grow . . . more vigorously than the lateral axes," (Fernow) the palm may not be able to prove its title clear to the name, inasmuch as it has no branches, or lateral axes, but only leaves. But from the standpoint of another definition, that of "a woody plant that produces one main trunk and a more or less distinct and elevated head," (Bailey) the palm, with its crown of ornate leaves, may be conceded to be the queen of its class. Yet botanists and horticulturists generally speak of the palm as a "plant," albeit one of unique type and giant size. But botanists and horticulturists include trees under the general nomenclature of "vegetation," when speaking broadly of the dress of verdure with which nature clothes this globe of earth. A great etymologist has said that the line of demarkation between trees and shrubs is not well defined. And an authority on horticulture says that in certain sections "most palms are trees."

Where Doctors Differ.

In the tropics the "trees" partake more and more largely of the character of plants, as we approach the equator; while the farther north we go, the more we find the opposite habit in evidence. Some palms attain size and dimensions which give them the general outline and character of trees. Such a palm, for instance, is the Phœnix canariensis, a grand type, native to California and northern Florida. The luxuriant spread of its huge cluster of pinnate leaves produces a compact effect resembling the northern "shade tree." An example of the opposite type, of shrubby habit and digitate leaves, would be the Rhapis flabelliformis.

Acquaintance with the habits, classes and characteristics of palms has been prejudiced by the fact that palms are not native to the climates in which botanists flourish. Due to this unfortunate failure of coincidence, nature having neglected in this instance to coordinate her efforts to the best interest of the parties of both parts, so to speak, the classification of many a beauteous "palm plant" has not been accurately determined until after the type has become firmly established in the popular regard, and in the trade, which is more to the purpose from the angle of vision of our readers. It is also the reason for the change of name of many favorites among the family of palms, which numbers some 1,200 species. For palms have become known by names which are not appropriate to their types, due to the fact that the name was given to a cultivated specimen, the flowers and fruit not having been seen, necessitating renaming on closer acquaintance.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Arousing the Growers.

It has been a matter for comment that but few growers have so far subscribed to the publicity campaign fund, although they are as much, or even more, interested in an increased sale of their products than the wholesaler or retailer. In this connection, the following letter from A. L. Miller, the well known florist and nurseryman of Jamaica, New York, is timely:

"Enclosed please find my check for $100, my subscription to the national publicity campaign. I am greatly pleased to subscribe this amount toward the uplifting of our business. I cannot understand why so many of the growers are lax in helping this cause. In other lines of business the manufacturers bear the main cost of the advertising. As in our line the grower is really the manufacturer, he should likewise be the chief advertiser and here is a splendid chance for him to help himself. The society did wonderfully well last year, and should have no trouble in exceeding the mark set this year by at least one-half. With best wishes for good luck,

"Yours very truly, A. L. Miller."

Mr. Miller's argument is sound and admits of no contradiction. All growers are vitally interested in our effort to stimulate the movement of flowers. Whenever there are gluts in the flower markets the growers suffer, and with a greater demand for flowers there should be no gluts.

Success Is Seen.

We need the utmost support of the growers this year, as it is the object of the publicity committees to raise $100,000. As readers were informed last week, the members of these committees and our executive board are sanguine as to a successful issue for the campaign this year and have backed up their personal views with their increased subscriptions. When such a man as Philip Breitmeyer, of Detroit, thinks that his subscription of $50 per month to the fund is not too much for the returns he reasonably expects, every shadow of doubt as to the wisdom of subscribing should be removed from the mind of the florist who is hesitating to pledge his $10 to $25 per year for the same benefits.

When helping the fund, florists should help themselves also by using the different direct aids supplied by our promotion bureau. The slogan, "Say It with Flowers," cannot be used too much. Have it painted on your delivery wagons and cars, as many of the largest and most prominent florists in our big cities are doing. All shipping tags, wrapping paper, boxes, checks and stationery should carry it. The glass sign, or the transfer signs, should be displayed in or on store windows. In our forthcoming magazine advertisements, the direction will be inserted: "Buy your flowers from the florists displaying this sign, 'Say It with Flowers.'" It is therefore important that this sign be obtained at once, if it is not already on

Add Lantern Slides.

Florists who use lantern slides for projection in moving picture theaters will be interested in some additions to the set already supplied. Look for a description of them in the March number of The Journal of the Society of American Florists, or write to the secretary about them.

The campaign work is now being vigorously pushed. The greater the support we get from those it is to benefit, the greater the push. Do not leave this SERVICE AND SUCCESS.

Service is one of the most important factors for the development of a progressive flower store; that is, in its broad sense, and success follows service because of that fact. Now, in order to insure both service and success, it becomes necessary to so conduct your affairs that your name becomes synonymous with both words. essential in the creation of service and success, you are void of one of the most important cogs. Our publicity campaign, plus your local advertising, will help do both more readily than anything else, providing, of course, the same management and its stock is kept up.

Get busy and delve into the movement that will help you build and make you feel that our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," is one of the best things that the Society of American Florists ever has undertaken to support. It merits the contribution of everyone and the seed you are now sowing will grow to be the finest dividend you ever invested in. This is the seed to the finest plum tree you ever planted. Watch it grow and share in the fruit.

First—To have a state florists' association organized in every state in the Union.

Second—To secure enough members in both the state association and the S. A. F. to make the state president eligible to serve as a director on the national board.

Third—The job of perfecting such state organization is up to the state vice-president and he is also to assist a committee consisting of Joseph Hill, Richmond, Ind., chairman; Chas. E. The Market.

There is a plentiful supply of stock of practically all varieties, for which there is little demand, funeral work having dropped off considerably during the last week and the beginning of Lent precluding many social calls. As the logical consequence prices have taken a decided tumble, carnations being the only flowers to hold up satisfactorily. These in the wholesale markets are landing $5 per hundred. On the other hand, sweet peas are flooding the market to the invariable song of 75 cents to $2, according to the conditions. The latter allows of wide elasticity, inasmuch as the recent warm weather brings them in almost any way, because of the blooms becoming overheated in the boxes. Lilies are coming in rapidly, which statement also applies to roses of all varieties, which are beautifully developed, but bringing only from $6 to $15.

Bulbous products, including tulips and daffodils, are coming along in fair quantities, but the Roman hyacinth and narcissus season is ended. Daffodils range from $4 to $5, while tulips are $1 less. Greens of all kinds are again on the short side, plumosus and Sprengeri selling from 35 cents to 60 cents per bunch. Violets are bringing $1.50.

Various Notes.

B. F. Clark, the landscape man, is most conservative in expressing an opinion on the outlook for the coming season. Regarding the big jobs, he says the millionaires, as a class, seem to be "hedging," being loaded down with their income taxes, together with anxiety over the uncertain financial conditions of the reconstruction period. Again, there is the exasperating delay in receiving shipments from practically all points, both express and freight consignments being painfully uncertain, especially from the east. Mr. Clark spoke of one exceptional case, however, in telling of the Storrs & Harrison Co., of Painesville, O., whose consignments have been coming in always within two weeks. Apropos of this, he says there are many little jobs that would go through at once if the landscape men could see their way clear to filling the orders. However, he thinks that with the opening of spring, the spirit of the times may be brighter all round.

The home of Secretary Theodore P. Langhans, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., is practically a temporary private hospital, as both Mr. and Mrs. Langhans and their eldest daughter, Miss Marian Langhans, are confined to their beds with violent attacks of influenza. Mr. Langhans, who was scheduled for jury duty in the Common Pleas court during the last fortnight, had been in the court room three days when he was attacked by the disease.

The Zieger Floral Co., of East Liberty, has been sadly handicapped recently through illness, Manager Harry Gibson having returned to business only last Saturday after a serious two weeks' illness. S. J. Frampton, more commonly known to the trade as "Jack," of the designing staff, is at present quite ill at his home.

The flower shop in the corridor of the William Penn hotel has been leased for an indefinite period to Thomas Silverblatt, who was mustered out of the army at Camp Lee December 22, where he went August 28 for duty with the 111th Infantry. He spent thirty-six hours on the transport Susquehanna, being on the ocean when the armistice was signed.

Mr. Silverblatt was for two years proprietor of the Penn Flower Shop, which he founded and left on account of the call to arms. He spent two months in charge of his present stand. Mr. Silverblatt is of foreign extraction and of royal blood, being descended from the house of David, king of the Israelites.

Mr. and Mrs. De Forest W. Ludwig returned Wednesday from a week's visit in Myerstown, Pa., with Mrs. Ludwig's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Collins.

At their Saxonwald Nurseries, near Castle Shannon, Pa., the Ludwig Floral Co. is producing some superb Ophelia, Russell, Shawyer, Columbia and American Beauty roses, together with some attractive carnations, including the Laddie variety.

The John Bader Co., Benjamin L. Elliott, president, is bringing in exceptionally good tulips and daffodils.

A two-star service flag adorns a prominent window in the home of B. F. Clark, whose two elder sons and assistants, Joseph F. and John F. Clark, still remain on duty. The former, who reached his majority two years ago, is "over there" with the 520th Motor Transport Corps, therefore not expected on this side until "all is over, over there." started in for two months' intensive training with the Students' Army Training Corps at the University of Pittsburgh. He then spent six weeks at Camp Joseph E. Johnson and a month at Camp Merritt before going overseas. John F. His first assignment in Virginia was at Camp Hill, but he was transferred to Camp Stuart. He went into the service last September. E. E. S.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Most of the stores report an abundance of funeral work during the last week. The demand for social and wedding work also was heavier, as was to be expected just before Lent. The weather is more wintry than for some weeks, although the snowfall has not been heavy. Stock continues plentiful. Out-of-town orders are taken care of in good shape and there has been no occasion for many frozen shipments. While cut flowers are plentiful and the quality is good, there is great difficulty in procuring sufficient fine greens, the shortage of which for some time has been most acute. The newest addition noticed in the stores is potted lily of the valley, which has been off the market so long that its reappearance is a novelty. The demand for cut valley is not large.

The supply of roses is equal to the demand and the prices continue fairly firm, with a tendency toward lower prices on poorer grades. Some fine Ophelia and Sunburst are arriving; the former has the preference. September Morn, Ward, Russell, Hoosier Beauty and Prima Donna are among the best sellers. Killarney is becoming more plentiful. Violets are selling more freely and it is encouraging to notice the improvement in quality. The supply of sweet peas is not large, but appears to be equal to the demand. Excellent stock is seen, the majority of it bringing $2 per hundred. Carnations are in good supply and are selling well. There seems, however, to be no special call for the red varieties. Calla lilies are in good supply and are selling readily. Easter lilies are not plentiful. Fine freesia is seen, but is not in large supply. Bulbous stock is abundant and includes good daffodils, Soleil d'Or, Paper Whites, tulips and Roman hyacinths. Anenomes, calendulas, forget-me-nots and mignonette are in the market and sell well. Orchids move fairly well. An excellent line of potted plants is seen in all of the stores.

Various Notes.

It is a special pleasure to see Will H. Dildine back in the city, after taking treatment at the Clifton Springs Sanitarium for the last three weeks. He is greatly improved in health and weighs more than ever before. He reports the business of James Vick's Sons as extremely active and predicts a wonderfully good season.

Among the visitors last week was R. E. Blackshaw, vice-president of the Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte, Ind.

Fred Peartree, formerly manager of the Rosery Flower Store, has severed his connection with that concern. E. Kendig, proprietor of this store, continues to ship fine pussy willows to the various stores.

Mammoth sprays of forsythia and cherry blossoms greatly add to the beautiful display of potted plants and basket arrangements seen in the window of Salter Bros. at their East Main street store. They report business as brisk, with a good supply of stock.

Hugo Teute is forcing some wonderfully fine potted valley, which is selling readily. His stock of flowering bulbs is being reduced somewhat, as it is in excellent shape and the demand is keeping up well.

H. E. Wilson has a splendid assortment of daffodils, hyacinths and tulips and is doing a fine business. He is disposing of a great quantity of the large crocks of assorted bulbs and Primula malacoides. Trimmed up nicely with pussy willows, which form a handle, they sell quickly.

Recognition of the invaluable work that John Hall, of this city, has done for the fruit growers of New York state is given in a recent issue of the Rural New Yorker, one of the most influential of the publications devoted to agriculture. For thirty years Mr. Hall was secretary of the Western New York Horticultural Society, which a short time ago consolidated with the New York Fruit Growers' Association.

Crossman Bros. are doing considerable advertising this season. Their attractive ads are seen in nearly all the street cars of this city. The series of ads represents fruits, vegetables and flowers, reproduced in natural colors. The firm reports an active business for this spring.

Charles Suhr reports good business, both wholesale and retail. His houses are looking well. His bulbous stock is fine and the stock for the Easter trade is coming along in good shape.

H. J. H.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

This has been the quietest week of winter in the market. Stock is plentiful and the demand is the lightest that it has been this season. Lent may be responsible for the sudden falling off. According to my experience, the first two weeks of Lent are always dull in the flower business, but after that business picks up and I do not think this season will be an exception to the rule.

Roses are in fine supply and of a quality which surpasses that of other seasons. Never have I seen better carnations than those to be had at this time. Sweet peas are plentiful and of the best grade. Easter lilies, while not so plentiful, are to be had in fair supply and, as the demand is not so great, there are enough to go around. There is an oversupply of callas. Bulbous stock is now in good supply; in fact, there is almost a glut of Romans and they are hard to move at any price. Tulips are increasing in supply and there is enough miscellaneous stock for all needs.

While business is dull all along the line, there is no occasion for a panic. The lull is only temporary. Easter is not far off and everyone in the trade should be preparing for the greatest flower day known to the trade, for conditions will be different this year from any ever known before. Plants will be especially scarce. Lilies, azaleas, rhododendrons, etc., will not be on the market, so it is up to the retailer to set his brain to work and find something to take their place. But we met the situation at Christmas and I am sure it will be met at Easter.

Club Banquet.

Isaac H. Moss, chairman of the banquet committee, worked hard to make this one of the best banquets the club has ever had. He tells me that subscriptions were past all expectations. We had hoped to have, as one of our guests on this occasion, that old war horse and prince of good fellows, Robert Craig, of Philadelphia, but the fates were against us, as Mr. Craig was indisposed and was not able to attend. Another keen disappointment was the absence of C. H. Grakelow, also of Philadelphia, who, owing to a previous engagement, was not able to be with us. Many of the Baltimore boys had heard so much of this young man that they felt they wanted to know him better.

The boys all seemed full of the spirit of the occasion. For a long time they had been under a sort of restraint and they felt the time had come to throw this off. So a good time was assured at the Rennert, March 10. Tate.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

The week has been marked with an excellent variety of stock. This condition has been favorable to the retailer. Flower buyers who have wanted something different from the general stock obtainable for some time have at last been fully satisfied. Sweet peas, orchids, violets, calendulas, stocks, mignonette and snapdragons are arriving in much increased supply. To this list is added many plants, which rouse the spring spirit by their profuse presence in all flower shops. Some of the stores have a conspicuous supply of azaleas. In general these have poor foliage and weak flowers, but among them some beautiful plants are to be found.

The outlook for St. Patrick's day is good—much better than it has been for some time. The supply of white carnations is large and the prominence of Ireland just now ought to be encouraging to the trade, which ought immediately to resort to advertising to an extent beyond that of other years. As a rule, one is reluctant to decide as to the number of flowers to be colored green, for the reason that those remaining unsold will be useless for any other purpose, but if the selling price is right it should have a sufficient margin to offset some unsold stock. At any rate, the opinion is unanimous that pushing a thing increases its sale, and wise ones push to the limit, either by large displays or by a system of ads. F. P. A.

WILMINGTON, DEL.

The officers of the Wilmington Florists' Club, mention of which was made in last week's issue of The Review, are as follows:

President—William N. Potter.

Vice-president—Henrietta Kuratle.

Secretary—Roy G. Brinton, of C. W. Brinton & Son.

Treasurer—C. Harley Simon, of Charles Simon, Jr., & Sons Co.

Members of the club are leading florists and growers of Wilmington. At a recent meeting several new committees were appointed, and arrangements made to obtain permanent quarters. A protest against the quarantine order has been sent by the organization to Delaware representatives at Washington.

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The twelfth annual dinner of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held in the Glen Head hotel, Glen Cove, N. Y., February 26. There was an attendance of over 100 members and friends, who sat down to a repast which reflected great credit on the dinner committee, Ernest J. Browne, Ernest Westlake and John W. Everitt. For the time being, it made us all forget the high cost of living and the impending prohibition. The tables were all splendidly decorated with pot plants.

The dinner was opened with a short address of welcome by President Joseph Adler. After we had taken good care of the inner man and nearly 100 per cent present were enjoying their Havanas, the president introduced our excellent and entertaining toastmaster, Charles H. Totty, of Madison, N. J. Mr. Totty began his remarks by speaking on the reconstruction now in progress at home and abroad. He also referred to the unjust ruling of the Federal Horticultural Board, which prohibits the importation of certain plants and bulbs. A touch of patriotism was injected at this time, when one verse of "America" was sung.

COLUMBIA, MO.
COLUMBIA FLORAL CO.
Halfway between St. Louis and Kansas City.

The president, with a few well chosen words, presented Robert Jones with a present as a token of appreciation of his excellent administration during the last year.

Toasts were responded to as follows: "Our Country," ex-Supervisor James H. Cocks; "Nassau County Horticultural Society," ex-President James McCarthy; "Oyster Bay Horticultural Society," J. Walker; "Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society," P. W. Popp; "Glen Cove City," R. Frank Browne; "Local Press," John C. F. Davis.

Practically all the important nursery and seed houses in the country were represented by members of the firms or their traveling salesmen.

The Kohler brothers deserve a special vote of thanks for their enjoyable selections, rendered during the evening; so, also, does R. Frank Browne for his inspiring recitation, for which he received a great ovation.

It was unanimously agreed that this was the most successful dinner in the society's history and this eventful evening was closed by crossing hands and singing "Auld Lang Syne."

Harry Goodband, Sec'y.

Pittville, Pa.—William Wunder will not be greatly surprised if practically everything pertaining to bedding plants is sold out long before the season opens, judging from the advance orders received.

Palisades, Colo.—F. R. Roe, who formerly was engaged in the florists' business in Nevada, Mo., and more recently has been a commercial fruit grower in Palisades, expects soon to return to the growing of flowers.

WATERBURY, CONN.

On Retail Advertising.

Display advertising in newspapers is a paying proposition for the retail florist, according to Ryan & Powers, of Waterbury, who are pleased with the result of their publicity campaign. The firm gives The Review credit for many good ideas for advertisements.

All the firm's advertisements carry the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," some of them featuring it. For St. Valentine's day the advertisements contained a heart-shaped picture and called attention to the fact that flowers make ideal valentines. Prices were quoted. Other advertisements asked the question: "Whose birthday is in February?" This was followed by the slogan suggestion.

One of the March advertisements contained this:

"Mother—the dearest girl in the world—how long since you remembered her with a few flowers?

"Boys, let every day be Mother's day. Take home a few bright spring flowers or a blooming plant. To her they will recall, in their fragrance, the tender year of youth, when you plucked your first flower and brought it to her."

"Our Valentine day business this year doubled last year's," writes the concern. "Business has been much better throughout the winter than last year.

"There has been a scarcity of bulbous stock here this year, also of Boston ferns. At the present time roses are ranging from $2 to $4 per dozen and carnations sell at $1.50 per dozen."

Various Notes.

Recent visitors were Edward Welch, of Welch Bros. Co., Boston, and Mr. Cullom, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia.

Alexander Dallas had the decorating for the policemen's ball, an elaborate affair of recent date.

Ryan & Powers have the contract for flowers for the automobile show, which began here March 10.

ALBANY, N. Y.

Frederick Danker, the well known Albany florist, was honored at the midwinter meeting of the Federation of New York State Floral Clubs, held in Ithaca. Mr. Danker attended the meeting as a representative of the Albany Florists' Club and was appointed to serve on a committee to prepare a prize list for the florists' department at the Syracuse fair next September. Other members of the Albany Florists' Club who attended the Ithaca meeting included Fred Henkes, of Newtonville, a former president, and Joseph Traudt, a retailer of Canajoharie.

Cincinnati, O.—J. A. Peterson has contracted for the erection of additional greenhouses on McHenry road, Price Hill. The work will cost about $1,400.

Albion, N. Y.—The Burt Olney Greenhouses, which were closed during the winter, have been started. Tomato plants for farmers' canning crops will be grown.

Ashtabula, O.—The Ashtabula Greenhouse Co., a corporation, has been dissolved after being in existence five years. P. C. Remick, a stockholder, and Archie Ticknor, will conduct the business under a partnership plan. The property consists of five acres of land, of which about one-fourth is under glass.

The Florist Demands True Quality

McCray Refrigerators are and have long been in use by Florists who understand the value of quality — who know that McCray Refrigerators have True Quality built in them.

For a third of a century, McCray Refrigerators have been built on this basis. Thousands of satisfied owners are proof that McCray Refrigerators combine convenience and design with sound principles of construction and that first-class materials and workmanship enter into the McCray.

McCRAY FLORIST Refrigerators

are best because they are made to conserve flowers and at the same time give proper display to floral goods. In appearance, the McCray will make any florist's store more attractive. Viewed solely from the selling end, the McCray has superior qualities — for it aids in selling flowers and at the same time puts a stop to waste from spoilage.

Our Catalogue illustrating various models of McCray Refrigerators for Florists will gladly be sent to your address. Just write us for it: No. 74 for Florists; No. 94 for Residences.

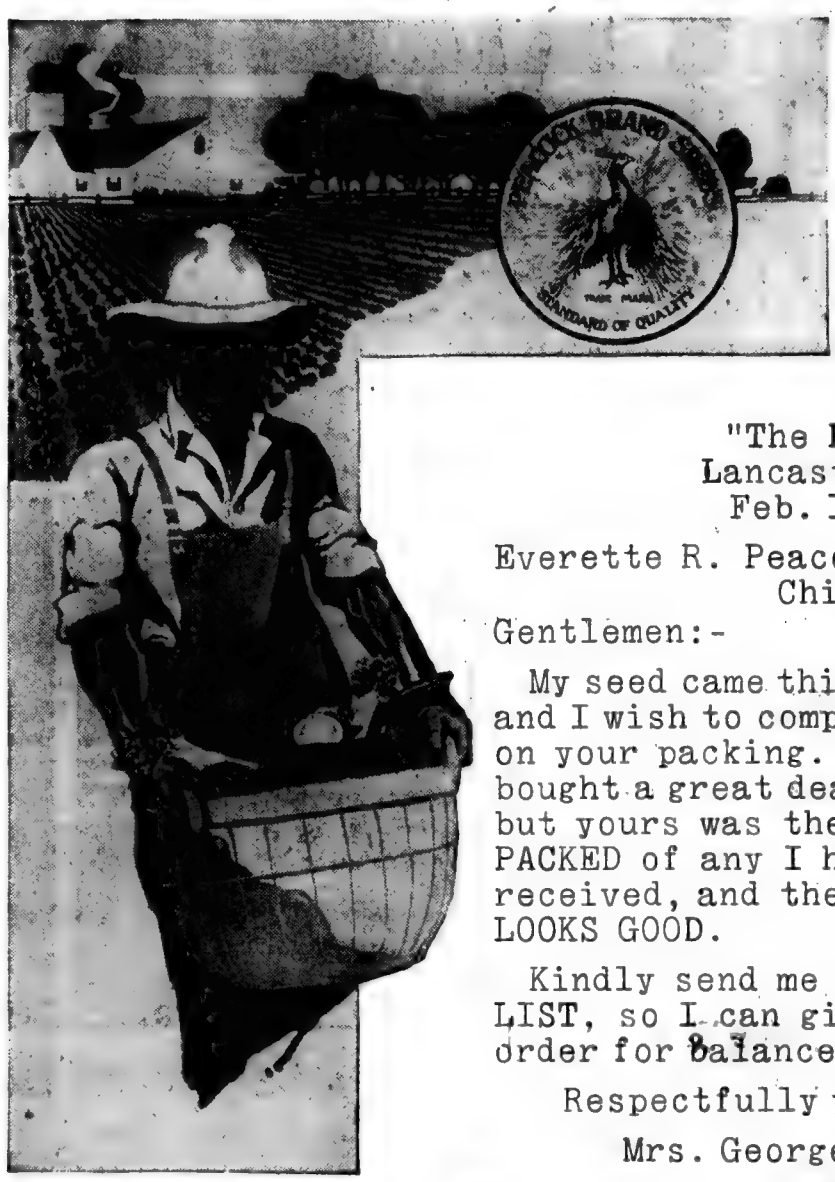
Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.; thirty-seventh annual convention, Hotel Sherman, Chicago, June 24, 25, 26, 1919.

WINTER weather in the first part of March has served to retard the flow of mail orders, but everybody in the mail-order business is busy.

AFTER having sold over three million gladiolus bulbs of his own growing, Jelle Roos, of Milton, Mass., has acquired the stock of W. E. Woodward & Son, Saxon, Mass., consisting of over two million bulbs.

THE exportation of seeds from Denmark still is under special government license, but Hjalmar Hartmann & Co., Copenhagen, say they expect the seed trade soon will be following its normal course again. The 1918 crop in Denmark was grown under most unfavorable conditions. Cabbage was only one-third to three-quarters of a normal yield.



THE first importations of the 1918 crop of Japanese hardy lilies, such as Lilium auratum and L. speciosum, have arrived in this country. There are not nearly enough of these to go around and many will be disappointed, those familiar with the situation say. The larger sizes, especially, are short. A few cases of longiflorum have arrived but are in hiding.

CAPTAIN RALPH B. HOWE, who has been in the Quartermaster's Corps, stationed at Fort Bliss and Fort Sam Houston, returned to Chicago March 10, having been discharged from the army. He will resume his work with the W. W. Barnard Co. While in the service Captain Howe was in charge of motor transportation and repair work and later was appointed buyer of forage for several army camps in the southwest.

THE British horticultural trades' press is felicitating the country on the fact that England is appropriating a considerable part of the Russian seed demand previously supplied by Germany. It is reported that W. W. Johnson & Son, Ltd., Boston, England, recently shipped a huge quantity of vegetable and farm seeds to Siberia and other concerns are said to be getting a share of the business previously monopolized by German seed growers.

THE Massachusetts gladiolus bulb growers have been greatly alarmed by the threat of a quarantine, either state or district, because of the corn root borer. Some of them have regarded the situation as so serious that they have sold out their entire stocks and, in one or two instances, retired from business. It is said that some of the largest growers have their bulbs sacked for removal from the state at a moment's notice and that one has gone so far as to send half his stock away in advance of any quarantine notice.

JOHN VANDERMEY, representing M. Veld-Huyzen Van Zanten & Son, and C. Van Zyverden, representing Van Zanten & Co., were two Dutch bulb salesmen in Chicago last week. Word comes that many of the Dutch salesmen will be unable to get to this country, because of difficulties in obtaining passports, or, if they do come, their departure will be delayed because of this same difficulty. Only four or five came on the last boat to arrive from Holland, though several others had planned to make the voyage on the vessel.

ALFRED JONES, after four years' service as advertising manager and catalogue man for A. E. McKenzie Co., Brandon and Calgary, Canada, has severed his connection to enter into an important engagement in the United States. Mr. Jones has had a wide experience for a man of his years. An Englishman by birth, he was for over ten years engaged with W. W. Johnson & Son, seed growers and exporters of Boston, Lincolnshire, and several years in the wholesale and export office of Kelway & Son, Langport, England. He came to Canada, to join the A. E. McKenzie Co., in March, 1915.

ANOTHER MARE'S-NEST.

This is from C. B. Ramsay, advertising manager of J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore:

"We are enclosing herewith a copy of an article issued by the Third Assistant Postmaster General. We are informed by our local superintendent of mails that while this article is framed in the terms of a suggestion, it is in fact an order that will be rigidly enforced and he claims he cannot receive any catalogues after March 31 that weigh less than eight ounces and are over 4x9 inches in size. He claims that this order is general throughout the United States. Catalogues weighing more than eight ounces of course come under the parcel post regulations.

"If this article has been correctly defined by our local superintendent of mails, it will work a hardship on a large number of the seedsmen in the mailing of their catalogues this year after the date stated above, as well as seriously affect their plans for next year's catalogues. It means that they will have to fold in two beautifully lithographed covers and in this way seriously affect their effectiveness when they reach the addressees.

"Will you kindly bring this situation to the attention of the American seedsmen through your columns?"

The circular, which was issued from the office of the Third Assistant Postmaster General, is as follows:

KENTIA PALM SEEDS

USE OF ENVELOPES OF UNUSUAL SIZE OR IRREGULAR SHAPE OBJECTIONABLE.

Many persons and concerns are mailing letters and other matter in envelopes which are of such size or shape as to cause serious difficulty in handling the matter in the mails. In some cases the envelopes are extremely large or very small, while in other cases they are of triangular, circular or other irregular shapes. It is frequently necessary to cancel the postage stamps of such matter of unusual size or shape by hand, as the matter cannot be tied with the ordinary packages of mail without being folded or cut by the package string. This imposes additional and unnecessary labor upon the postal service, prevents the expeditious treatment of the matter and often results in its reaching the addressee in a mutilated condition.

Furthermore, many envelopes are made of such dark-colored stationery or bear on the address side so much printed matter in addition to the address that they contravene the provisions of paragraph 3, section 470, Postal Laws and Regulations, which provides that:

"Space should be left on the address side of all mail matter sufficient for a legible address and for all directions permissible thereon; for postage stamps, for postmarking, dating and any words necessary for forwarding or return."

It is preferable that all envelopes be made of white paper. When paper of any other color is used, it should be of very light tints of pink, yellow or blue.

In every case not less than three and one-half inches of clear space should be left at the right end of the address side of all envelopes, in order that there may be ample space for postage stamps, postmarking, address, directions for forwarding or return, etc.

Postmasters are requested to take the matter up with their patrons who use envelopes of the kind referred to and advise them of the many objections thereto and the impairment of the efficiency of the postal service resulting from their use. The desirability and advantage of mailers using envelopes of uniform size may be pointed out, and the importance and necessity for coöperation in this respect should be emphasized. To this end it should be suggested that the use of envelopes which do not exceed approximately 4x9 inches in size and on which ample clear space is left on the right portion of the address side for the address, postage stamps, etc., will serve to accomplish the desired object and result to the advantage of both the mailer and the postal service.

The foregoing applies with equal force to the use of advertising cards, folders and similar matter of unusual size or irregular shape as set forth in the instructions of this office in Article 14, page 4, of the February, 1918, Postal Guide entitled "Use of Large Advertising Cards Objectionable."

This circular was sent out by Mr. Dockery under date of June 3, 1918; it is almost a year old. During the war we went a long way toward acquiring an autocratic government in this democracy, but it has not become so bad that interference with any reasonable business custom need be feared.

PACIFIC COAST SEED NOTES.

The planting of the 1919 crop of California garden and flower seeds is practically completed, with the exception of peas and beans. The outlook is favorable for a heavy yield. Some damage is reported from the recent heavy rains, but it is slight compared with the bene-

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Stock is a little more plentiful, but prices remain the same. Business last week, although not quite so brisk as in preceding weeks, was by no means bad. Stock moved a little slowly for a few days, but the remainder of the week conditions improved. All available stock was utilized and practically none went begging. Roses remain the same at from $6 to $35 and are hard to procure at that. Carnations are more plentiful and range from $6 to $8. Lilies are more plentiful. Sweet peas are good property and average about $1 per hundred. Some fine fancy peas are on the market at $2 per hundred. Other flowers include bulbous stock, jonquils, tulips, hyacinths, daisies, pansies, marguerites, calendulas, etc.

Meeting of State Society.

The March meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association was held March 4 at the Claypool hotel. President Anders Rasmussen presided. Three new members were elected: L. E. Hetz, of Madison; David Kelly and L. H. Haney. One new member was proposed—Herman Dale Roth, of La Fayette, Ind.

After minor discussions and the transaction of routine business the latest project, the fall flower show, was taken up. The members are enthusiastic.

Several committees were appointed, as follows:

Exhibition committee—John Hartje, A. F. J. Baur, W. B. Lewis, Otto Lawrence, Homer Wiegand, W. E. Lummell.

Entertainment committee—E. E. Temperley, Glen Moore, O. E. Steinkamp.

an enlightening talk on the income tax was given by Mr. Yaeger, of the Merchants' Auditing & Accounting Co. Several changes have been made in the law since last year and florists should become acquainted with the present law. All partnerships, regardless of profits and losses, standing, etc., are required to file papers. All reports were to be filed by March 15, but the time limit has been extended to April 15.

Various Notes.

William Hamant has purchased a greenhouse and opened a retail business on Rural street.

Hartje & Elder have been cutting some excellent sweet peas from young plants.

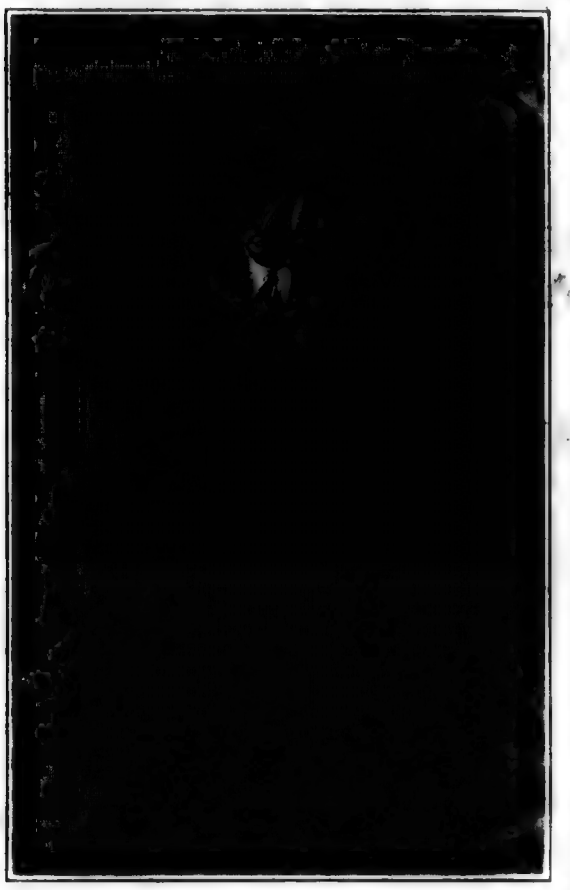
Edwin Morner, of Shelbyville, reports that business is good and that a big spring trade is expected.

A. F. J. Baur attended the Illinois State Florists' Association meeting at Urbana, Ill.

Mr. Darnell was a visitor this week, soliciting new members for the F. T. D.

Mrs. T. D. Hepler has been quite ill and has gone away for her health.

O. E. Steinkamp attended the Kentucky florists' meeting at Louisville and also the St. Louis Florists' Club at the latter city. The new Baur & Steinkamp carnation, Ruth Baur, was exhibited at these.



Prior to the state meeting March 4, the exhibition committee held a meeting and made plans to start the ball rolling for the big show. E. E. T.

Brookline, Mass.—F. E. Palmer and daughter have returned from their brief sojourn in the White mountains. Mr. Palmer feels much benefited and in trim for the Easter business. Ex-Lieut. George Palmer has returned to the landscape department and has already secured commissions for spring planting.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

PALMS IN CALIFORNIA.

C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, is expected to reach Chicago again this week, after having spent a month or more in the Pacific coast branch of the concern, at Sierra Madre, Cal. The firm is undertaking there the production of palms on a large scale. The establishment was started by E. B. Washburn shortly after his removal to the Pacific coast and is being developed steadily. Large quantities of kentias are in course of preparation, though it is not expected that any of the stock will be sold for another year or so. The idea is that the stock will be grown on to the finished sizes before it is offered to the trade.

C. L. Washburn at Sierra Madre, Cal.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

The cold nights of the last week have again put carnations in poor shape for shipping and some complaints are heard around the wholesale houses. If we had good indoor flowers to take the place of field stock, the retailers within the shipping area of Los Angeles would have less cause for complaints, but they have been so long used to good and cheap carnations that they forget the fact that many of the growers have gone into other lines of business and that carnations previously had been their favorites.

Daffodils took a drop this week, but this was owing to a number of Sir Watkin coming at once. The prospect for Emperor, Victoria and Empress is not particularly good at present, but there is always a chance for an error in judgment. Sweet peas are of better quality and more plentiful. Roses are about even with the demand, outside of Cecile Brunners, which are scarce and only come in good quantity and quality from those growers who handle them under glass. Orchids are scarce and bring good prices. Shrub blossoms of various kinds are in big demand and not plentiful. Greens are scarce and of poor quality, a few of the leading growers practically ruling the market. Cut ferns are in demand, but the stock offered is not first-class quality. Flowering plants are scarce, and cyclamens are practically out of the market.

Various Notes.

Arthur Beverly, of Mission Oak Nursery, Santa Barbara, was a visitor this week. His visits are like those of the angels; we hear the flutter of the wings and that is all.

James McGillivray, superintendent of Lincoln park, is around again after his operation for appendicitis, and while he says he feels fine and is going the rounds as usual, he shows the effect of his time in the hospital, but evidently time only is needed for restoration to health, for which all of his friends are hoping.

Arthur Howard, of Howard & Smith, has been honorably discharged from the army and is again on deck at Ninth and Olive streets. Mr. Howard reports having an interesting time at Camp Morris, but is glad to get back to his business, where they say he was missed every day since he was absent.

C. L. Washburn, of Chicago, is still enjoying California sunshine and says he intends to considerably increase the size of the Sierra Madre plant for the culture of kentias. E. B. Washburn has been suffering from an attack of influenza, but is recovering.

Walter Hattori, recently of S. Murata & Co., has gone into vegetable farming in the San Fernando valley. Melons and tomatoes are among the principal crops to be grown.

S. Murata says that the shipping business is keeping up well.

F. R. Hills reports being more closely sold up on well-finished ferns in various sizes than ever before, owing to the big shipping business, but this gives him more room than usual and he is working the young stock along rapidly. Mrs. Hills and her son are visiting with C. E. Morton, in Phoenix, Ariz.

E. C. Amling, of Chicago, has arrived in southern California and is enjoying life as usual.

Thomas Wright has just returned from another desert trip in the interest of his mines and chemical industries. In the meantime, some of the finest roses ever grown at the range are coming in and meeting with a big demand at the store. Some phalænopsis are also being shown, as well as some specimen plants and hundreds of flowers in the window. It is surprising how well the moth orchids thrive in southern California, and Mr. Wright's growers have been especially successful.

The writer does not often assume the role of prophet, and is not in the habit of saying "I told you so," but when S. Purdie said he and Oscar Schneider had just about tripled the business of a year ago he felt like it. Constantly getting after it and treating the customers right have put these young men in the position of holding an excellent business.

The monthly meeting of the Florists' Club was held March 11.

Arthur Gleave, of Santa Barbara, is a visitor this week.

C. Gutting, of the Superior Nursery Co., has won his appeal in the Superior court against a decision in the lower court in an action he brought for breach of contract against some Japanese growers. The dispute started over tomato plants. H. R. R.

The Market.

To what extent the observance of Lent will affect the demand for cut flowers remains to be seen, but it cannot be said there was a slump in the market the first morning. As a matter of fact, everything cleaned up closely and more flowers could have been disposed of to good advantage. For instance, a telephone call at 9 o'clock inquiring for stock found one of the largest handlers of roses without a dozen in the house, and a tour of the wholesale district after the morning rush failed to reveal more than a few bunches of freesias, scattering lots of carnations, a few roses and only small quantities of other flowers. It was generally conceded that more flowers were needed on shipping orders. As the general supply of stock is about normal for this time of the year, the only conclusion to draw is that business is comparatively active.

Roses continue to show excellent quality all down the line and the supply is readily absorbed at firm prices. It is difficult to determine whether Russell, Ophelia, Hadley or some other variety heads the list in popularity, as the entire offerings clean up without difficulty. There is a fine cut of Columbia. Spring bulbous stock is not overplentiful. The late crop of daffodils has not started as yet, and there is some talk now that the second crop will be light as compared with the early one. Tulips are more in evidence, but the supply cannot be called large. Freesias are about in the same position as last week; there is enough for the demand, but no noticeable surplus. A few Spanish irises have appeared, as well as small lots of anemones and ranunculi, which are well taken. Carnations have held their own well during the last week, both in regard to supply and demand, with 75 cents a bunch of two dozen as the top price and few sold for less. Sweet peas are not sufficiently plentiful to cut much figure; neither are lilies. A few callas are offered, but practically no Easter lilies. Lily of the valley is obsolete as far as this market is concerned. An extra demand for orchids and gardenias made the supply short for several days.

The Mardi Gras, held at the Civic Auditorium on the night of March 4, was easily the most notable social event of the season from the viewpoint of the florists' trade. It was preceded by a round of entertainment at the large hotels and restaurants, which called for many more or less elaborate table decorations, and many were the calls for corsages. Altogether, a large extra demand for flowers was created. Funeral work was heavy last week also, as there were two or three deaths of prominent local residents which called for more than the ordinary amount of floral pieces. This work seemed to be well distributed among the downtown florists.

Various Notes.

Albert O. Stein is gratified to find that all of his former employees who left to enter the service are back on the pay roll again, and he hopes to see Patrick Orr back next week, the latter having been off duty for about two months on account of illness. He underwent an operation at a local hospital and has since been recuperating in the country. Business leaves no ground for complaint, according to Mr. Stein. Both the charity ball and the Mardi Gras stimulated the demand for cut flowers, and funeral work has been heavy. Besides, home orders have kept up well.

Frank Thatcher has received his discharge from the army and has resumed his duties with Pelicano, Rossi & Co. He is glad to be back in the florists' business after several months in France.

G. W. Lindquist, florist and undertaker at Logan, Ut., passed through San Francisco a few days ago on his way to southern California. He was accompanied by his wife.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee reports business excellent for this time of the year. In addition to active store trade, she has all the shipping orders she can handle.

The only difficulty, she says, is to get stock for the out-of-town demand, as there is little surplus here after local requirements are taken care of.

K. Adachi, of the United Flower & Supply Co., is spending most of his time at the family place in Contra Costa county, looking after the range of greenhouses there during the absence of his father, who went back to Japan recently. He has a fine cut of roses now and reports an excellent demand for them. With flowers a little more plentiful, as the indications are that they will be in the next few weeks, the company is preparing to handle shipping orders on a more extensive scale.

The California Floral Co. has been busy with funeral work and has executed several decorations of late which helped out nicely.

The installation of the new front in the establishment of the C. Kooyman Co. on Bush street has been completed, permitting a most attractive window display, but it will be another week or ten days before the interior improvements will be finished.

J. A. Axell, manager of the E. W. McLellan Co., reports no difficulty in disposing of all the roses his firm can supply.

Louis Picetti, manager of the store of the Chas. C. Navlet Co., on Market street, reports a heavy demand for fruit trees, rose bushes and other seasonable items, indicating much interest in planting now that the weather has cleared. Garden and flower seeds are selling especially well.

Charles A. Stappenbeck, the American Florist, on Polk street, has a fine cut of roses, including Ophelia, Russell, Columbia and other varieties.

From the island of Formosa, seeds of a new sequoia were brought to San Francisco a few days ago, to be planted in Golden Gate park. The seeds were obtained by Dr. Ernest H. Wilson, professor of botany at Harvard University, who returned after two years in the far east. In many respects the Formosa sequoia resembles California's Sequoia gigantea, according to Dr. Wilson. It grows to a height of 250 feet, with a girth of twenty-five to thirty feet.

Owing to the dark and rainy weather of the last week, which has had a tendency to shorten the stock supply, the florists have had a chance to clean up nicely every day. Daffodils are beginning to come in from the outside and a few days of sunshine probably will flood the market. Potted plants are moving well, with a good selection to choose from. All appear to be of excellent quality. Potted ferns for this season are about cleaned out. Some bedding stock is being shown, but, owing Stock is getting scarcer every day and the best flowers now are coming from California. Some fine acacias are being shipped in from California and clean up readily; also excellent roses, such as Columbia, Russell and Ophelia. Local-grown violets and sweet peas have put in their appearance and are of good quality. Carnations are scarce, as a result of the fact that many of the growers are getting ready for cucumbers and tomatoes. Potted Primula obconica and Azalea mollis are being shown extensively and are of good quality.

Various Notes.

A. E. Moore has again joined the store force of the Orpheum Floral Co.

H. H. Peterson, of the Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash., was a visitor last week. He reported business as excellent in his city.

H. E. Crouch, proprietor of the Woodlawn Flower Shop, has been confined to bed on account of a general breakdown, due to overwork.

Bert Vingar is back with the Burns Floral Co., after an absence of some months. W. S. G.

SPRENGERI TURNING YELLOW.

Please tell me why my Asparagus Sprengeri turns yellow. It grows well, but the fronds are not dark green, as they should be. I have fed them with the liquid from shredded cow manure, but it does not make the color any better. Is sheep manure good for them? S. M.—Kan.

Perhaps your soil is deficient in drainage or is not sufficiently porous. If your soil becomes extremely wet and soggy, causing acidity, the foliage will come of a pale color. Reduce the water supply somewhat and, if you have any soft coal soot, give the bed a dusting of it and wash it in with the hose, or, better still, put some soot in a bag and weight with one or two bricks in order to sink it in a tub of water. In a few days the water will be black. Use one part of this to eight parts of water and apply to your asparagus. Scotch soot, sold at many seed stores, is specially good. C. W.

FLORIST'S ARMY GARDENS.

Foreign friends are not often seen in the purlieus of Covent Garden these days, says the Horticultural Advertiser, but one visitor seen on several occasions last week was M. Georges Truffaut, of Versailles, whose name is widely known in the trade. For several years he has been doing a great work in France, as a lieutenant of engineers, in food production. He has had the making and oversight of a large number of army gardens, in addition to a huge nursery garden at Versailles, and he has produced no fewer than 250,000,000 vegetable seedlings for distribution among the camp gardens. He is now demobilized and was looking around as a matter of business and inspiration.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.; vice-president, J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa.; secretary, Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo.; counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; treasurer, J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.; forty-fourth annual convention, Hotel Sherman, Chicago, June 25 to 27, 1919.

HARLAN P. KELSEY is back at his desk at Salem, Mass., after seven months of war work.

FIRE at the Continental Nursery of M. J. Van Leeuwen, Franklin, Mass., recently destroyed $3,000 worth of stock.

NURSERYMEN find the labor situation rapidly turning in their favor. While wages still are high, it is possible, in most places, especially in the vicinity of cities, to get all the men needed.

THE Nieuw Amsterdam is due at New York with a considerable cargo of Dutch and Belgian nursery stock, also quantities of gladiolus bulbs. The Noordam will sail from Rotterdam within a day or two with another considerable cargo of horticultural products.

NURSERYMEN should be interested in the proposal to plant trees as memorials to heroes of the war. It is possible that every county in every state in the Union will adopt the idea as the best expression of gratitude to those who made the supreme sacrifice for their country.

S. R. DE BOER, city forester, of Denver, Colo., stated before a meeting of the Denver Society of Ornamental Horticulture that one of the needs of Denver is a greater variety of trees and suggested that nurserymen be advised to plant oaks, hard maples, lindens, honey locusts, birches, alders, larches, Ohio buckeyes and sycamores.

THE bonding of nurserymen to force them to guarantee the delivery of trees true to variety, as provided in a bill now before the Utah legislature, was unanimously disapproved by the Utah State Horticultural Society at a recent meeting in Salt Lake City. Resolutions will be sent to the lawmakers protesting against the passage of the measure.

IT is evident that nurserymen in Holland, England, France and Belgium will make great effort to ship as much stock as they can to the United States before June 1, to get in ahead of the quarantine. In the first two countries especially, but also in France, there are considerable quantities of stock grown specially for the American trade, but the interim between the end of the war and the date the quarantine becomes effective is too short for getting much of it to market.

STANDARD ACCOUNTING URGED.

"The outlook for spring is decidedly good," says Harlan P. Kelsey, "although stock in many lines is scarce. The usual stock of rhododendrons and evergreens imported from abroad will, of course, be missing, but this makes the call for native stock all the better. I am hoping that the nursery trade will be educated to use American-grown stock, as there is no question that everything we have heretofore bought in Europe can be successfully grown here. The prices are going to be higher, and probably will remain so, but for that matter the nurseryman has never been getting prices which enabled him to do a legitimate mercantile business. It is probably the nurseryman's own fault, but I believe he, too, is waking up. A great difficulty has been the fact that nurserymen did not realize what large overhead expenses they were carrying, nor did they write off enough for surplus and overgrown stock. The time has certainly come when nurserymen should put their businesses on a standardized accounting basis and know just where they stand with regards to profits, or, as has been the case in the past, the lack of profits."

Wholesale Growers of Evergreens and other Choice Nursery Stock

FIND MUCH BARBERRY.

At least 500,000 common barberry bushes were found in nurseries and 150,000 more were located on private and public grounds in 300 Iowa cities and towns in the barberry eradication movement conducted in wheat-growing sections last summer by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, coöperating with state agricultural forces.

PAINESVILLE, O.

As it is said of Virginia, "Mother of Presidents," it may also be said of Storrs & Harrison Co., for in this locality are twelve or more successful business firms, formed by men who in their early days were employees of this concern. Not only here, but in some of the leading establishments in the larger cities, are men who at one time were employed here.

General Manager Robert George, of the Storrs & Harrison Co., is back at the helm after spending the winter months in California.

C. H. Shumaker, the genial treasurer of the Storrs & Harrison Co., is the father of a daughter born recently.

S. R. Welch, foreman of the wholesale and retail order departments of the Storrs & Harrison Co., reports that, the way orders are pouring in, 1919 promises to surpass all previous years.

Robert H. Botley, of the Schmidt & Botley Co., of Springfield, O., is now with the Storrs & Harrison Co., and has charge of all the greenhouse propagation. Mr. Botley's superior knowledge in this line has already spelled success.

Burr T. Belden, bookkeeper and assistant secretary of the Storrs & Harrison Co., is walking to and from work, a distance of three miles, to get in trim for the strenuous work of the busy season.

T. R. Norman & Sons Nursery has had a force of men digging shrubs and ornamentals all winter, in order to be ready for the heavy spring sales.

Julius Kohankie, nurseryman and landscape architect, is busy planting some of his spring orders.

R. E. Huntington, nurseryman and seedsman, has taken the contract for a large landscape planting at the Good Hold Farm, Mentor, O., recently purchased by a man from Cleveland.

W. B. Cole, of the Avenue Nurseries, is looking forward to a prosperous year.

BARBARA DAVIS. In color, a rich shade of reddish bronze and entirely distinct from any other variety. It was disseminated by us in 1917 and has proved a decided acquisition either as a cut flower or as a pot plant. In habit of growth it is short-jointed and inclined to be dwarf, but makes good stems from early propagation. The flower is reflexed when fully open and is at its best just before maturing.

DECEMBER QUEEN. Bright yellow in color, shading toward bronze-yellow. Flowers very large and full, appearing the latter part of November or early in December.

HELEN LEE. In color a delicate shade of pink. The form of the flower is excellent; incurved type. Strong, sturdy grower, with stem ample to carry the flower. Midseason variety.

MISS ELIZABETH SMITH. An incurved flower, orange-bronze in color. Good stem and foliage. One of the best of the new varieties.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

The List of Chrysanthemums we are offering for the season of 19 shows many changes from last season and these are, we believe, a gre benefit to us and no injury to our trade. EARLY-FLOWERING CHRYSANTHEMUMS FOR OUTDOOR GROWING.

The question of hardiness in the Chrysanthemum family is such that to call these hardy, as we have formerly done, is unfair, because so much depends upon the character of the soil and the drainage. Too much covering in winter has ruined more plants than a cover of any kind has saved. Some firms class these as Decorative varieties. Several in the list do well indoors, as among the Pompons and Singles there are those which do well outdoors. The varieties listed have larger blooms than the larger-flowered Pompons, unless otherwise described.

Rooted Cuttings, 60c per doz.; $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1,000

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

There was a perceptible drop in the local market last week, not entirely because of an increased supply, but because of a decrease in demand with the advent of Lent. Milder weather and increased sunshine have reflected themselves in the increased supply of flowers, but these weather conditions also are reflected in the decrease in the number of funerals. Roses are beginning to sag off; carnations are on the increase, while sweet peas are improving in quality and quantity. Tulips, daffodils, Paper Whites, a few wallflowers, primroses and acacia lend variety to the local showing.

With Lent here, the florists who have not already done so are turning their attention to prospective sources of their Easter supply. The opinion, based on a recent canvass, is that there will be an ample supply of fairly good and good tulips, daffodils, narcissi, both flowers and plants, but it is feared that hyacinths will shoot ahead so fast that there will not be so many as desired. Everybody seems united in the opinion that there will be practically no "junk," so that every grocery, dry goods store and small shop in the city will not be glutted with potted stock.

The supply of lilies will be comparatively short, while azaleas will be scarce and expensive. In place of the latter, many of the growers have been preparing potted rose bushes, straight and trained in fantastic shapes, principally of the rambler classes.

Various Notes.

Howard A. Macrae, son of John A. Macrae, the Smith street florist, has resigned as assistant county agent in charge of the Providence County Farm Bureau, to become general manager of the Hampden County, Mass., Farmers' Exchange, with headquarters at Springfield. In May, 1917, Mr. Macrae was appointed assistant county agent, taking full charge February 15, 1918, when the head of the bureau resigned. His annual report, submitted to the directors in December, showed that under his charge the bureau had saved $11,200 for the farmers of its constituency. He built up the membership from less than thirty to nearly 350. He graduated from the Agricultural College of Cornell University in May, 1917.

The greenhouses conducted for several years by Ernest Carl, on Lowell avenue, have been taken over by Aaron and William Cohn, both of whom have had considerable experience. The former has been greenhouse assistant with J. E. Koppelman & Co. for several years, while his brother has been with Miss Ellen O'Connor, of Thayer street, in the retail line.

Raymond J. Leach, son of M. Leach, of Pawtucket, has returned from service in the navy and is at the store again.

Richard Higgins has completed the repainting of his houses and new office on Atwells avenue.

Samuel Kinder, of Bristol, has added a new auto truck to his delivery department.

The Eastern Wreath Mfg. Co., Charles Smith, proprietor, has added a new welding machine to its equipment.

Elmer E. King, of Attleboro, was a business caller in this city last week.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

REBUILDING THREE HOUSES.

I have purchased three small, dismantled greenhouses, each 25½x75 and six and one-half feet high to the eaves, and am rebuilding them. They will run east and west. The side walls will be built of hollow 8-inch tile. The two boilers will be about eight feet from the west end of the greenhouses and will be connected in battery, but will be valved so I can use only one in mild weather. The winters here are seldom severe. The north greenhouse will be used for the warmer sort of crops. The other two houses will not be separated by a partition and will be used for cool crops.

As I should like to use the old pipes, I am planning to install a mercury generator, to aid the circulation in the smaller piping. The materials for the houses are practically new—2 to 3 years old—and will be carefully reërected and made absolutely tight. A large smokestack will be built, so as to provide for any possible future extensions. The houses will be in a well protected situation and will get the benefit of the early morning sun. I am enclosing a sketch, showing the location of the returns as used by the former owner. He had no mercury generator; the boilers were not connected and the smokestacks were small. Any suggestions about the arrangement of the piping will be appreciated. I know you will advise larger returns, but I am anxious to use the pipe purchased with the other materials.

H. T. S.—Mo.

The sketch shows three houses 25½x75, of which the north house is to be used for cucumbers and tomatoes. This has one exposed wall six and one-half feet high, built of cement blocks. The other houses are to be used for lettuce and other cool crops. Of these the south house has thirty inches of cement blocks and four feet of glass in one wall. The boilers are rated for 2,900 and 3,200 square feet of radiation, respectively, and are set four feet below grade level. The houses are sheltered by hills from cold winds. In the two houses at the north there are six 1¼-inch pipes under each of the two benches, with a 2-inch supply pipe in each house. In the other house there are eight 1-inch pipes under each of the side benches.

Just how much radiation will be required in the cucumber house will depend upon what months it will be used for this crop. If a cucumber temperature is to be maintained during the colder months, it will be necessary to keep the temperature of the water in the returns at about 200 degrees. Even with a generator we would put in an additional 2-inch pipe; or, better yet

"The Boiler of Unequaled Fuel Economy"

The Kroeschell has replaced hundreds of cast iron boilers. In every case higher temperatures are secured with the Kroeschell, with the same piping and with less fuel.

KROESCHELL BOILERS, the best by test since 1879. Forty years' experience—guaranteed design—workmanship and working capacity.

The Kroeschell is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell the highest praise.

3,016,286 sq. ft. of glass was equipped with Kroeschell Boilers during the year of 1916.

Hundreds of Florists' Review readers are using the Kroeschell Boiler and mighty is their praise. The year of 1915 brought an enormous number of new customers who saw our boiler in operation at other places. We attribute the large sales of this season to the good work the Kroeschell Boiler is doing everywhere.

With our policy—"the customers' interest first"—perfection of construction—factory to user prices—honest and "true blue" boiler ratings—you simply cannot lose.

EXPRESSIONS FROM MEN WHO KNOW BOILERS

ONE OF BOSTON'S WELL KNOWN GROWERS.

The Kroeschell has taken the place of four cast iron boilers at a big saving in coal. We are using it now for the fifth year. The longer we use it the better we like it.

(Signed) A. B. KNOWLTON,

THE PLANT KING OF THE WEST.

I have used Kroeschell Boilers ever since I built my first greenhouse. They have always given me the very best satisfaction and I believe them as good boilers as money can buy.

(Signed) F. OECHSLIN,

OHIO'S CELEBRATED CYCLAMEN SPECIALIST.

After using your No. 12 Kroeschell Boiler I came to the conclusion that had I to install more boilers it would be the Kroeschell and no other. It really is a pleasure to heat, no trouble to get the desired heat in a very short time.

(Signed) CHRIST. WINTERICH,
DEFIANCE, OHIO.

THE QUALITY PLACE OF BOSTON.

Regarding the Kroeschell, it is the best we have ever had and satisfactory beyond our expectations. It heats up especially quick and has saved us considerably already in the price of fuel. When we are in need of another boiler we will give the Kroeschell the first consideration.

(Signed) WM. W. EDGAR CO.,
WAVERLEY, MASS.

A BIG MAN IN THE FLORICULTURAL WORLD.

The Kroeschell Boiler I installed last year usually runs from 10 p. m. to 6 a. m. without attention. I do not have the least trouble to keep temperatures in the coldest weather. The boiler has given entire satisfaction.

The Kroeschell is the best boiler we have ever handled.

(Signed) CHARLES TOTTY,

A FAMOUS ILLINOIS ROSE RANGE.

In speaking of the Kroeschell Boiler as an economical greenhouse boiler I cannot say too much. Personally I have had the pleasure or misfortune to fire nearly every make of greenhouse boiler on the market and I can safely say the Kroeschell is the best of them all.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST MUSHROOM PLANT.

We spent $100,000 in building and equipping the largest modern mushroom plant in the world. We purchased in every instance the best of everything we could get, and the fact that we installed a Kroeschell Boiler to furnish our heat is sufficient evidence of our opinion of same.

Since installing this boiler and operating it we have never had any reason to change our opinion.

The carnation range of Mr. Nic Zweifel, of North Milwaukee, consists of nearly 70,000 sq. ft. of glass and the water plant is heated by a No. 14 and No. 15 Kroeschell Boiler and Kroeschell Generator. The product of the plant is known throughout the West for its fine quality. Mr. Z. has used different kinds of boilers. As for the Kroeschell, he says: "I think the Kroeschell Boilers are the best boilers a florist can buy."

put in two 2½-inch flow pipes and connect the two 2-inch pipes so that they will serve as return pipes. We would expect even better results, in the temperature secured, in the amount of fuel used and in the attention required, if in addition to using two 2½-inch flow pipes fourteen 2-inch returns are used, in place of the sixteen 1¼-inch returns as proposed.

The radiation in the other houses comes nearer what it should be, but we do not care to use returns as small as 1-inch even with a generator. In addition to using two 2½-inch flows, we would put in nine 2-inch returns in the

We would give the flow pipes a slight fall and would keep both flows and returns as high as possible. This will in a measure counteract the small size of the returns.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Owners of greenhouses in this city and vicinity have been considerably annoyed, as well as put to much expense, through the breaking of glass in their houses by boys throwing stones. A number of complaints have been made to the police and a few days ago two boys were in court, before Judge Baker, charged with breaking glass in the greenhouses of William Jurgens. The parents agreed to pay damages and the boys were placed on probation.

The regular meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held March 4, with H. E. Downer, at Smith's College plant house. There was a good attendance, with President Harold Keyes in the chair. The evening was taken up with a discussion of the horticultural import prohibition, which came in for a great deal of criticism. Members who had not written a protest to their local congressman, as the club had voted at the previous meeting, were urged to do so immediately.

The exhibitors were H. E. Downer, with a large white azalea which scored eighty-five points and won the monthly prize; Gallivan Bros., with a vase of sweet peas, scoring seventy-five points, and F. D. Keyes & Son, with a Primula obconica, scoring seventy-three points. The judges were E. J. Canning, G. W. Thromley and E. Hennessey. R. H.

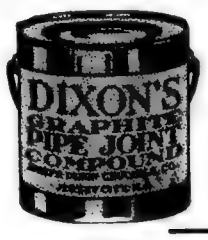
Hose holding costs two kinds of money.

First, there's the cost of the hose itself.

Then, there's the cost that keeps right on costing year after year, of your men's time in hose holding.

It's the truth that a Skinner System costs but little, if any, more than hose.

It outlasts it 3 to 1.



For seedlings and cold frame things in general, the spray is ideal.

The Market.

The wholesale market was better supplied with flowers last week than has been the rule recently. There was no surplus on the market of any variety of flower or plant; in fact, in many lines the supply was just about equal to the demand. Roses were in better supply, and there was a noticeable increase in the supply of Russells. Killarneys, however, are more plentiful than any other variety. Miniature roses are in excellent demand, particularly for corsages. Few American Beauties are shown and they command top-notch prices. Carnation receipts are larger, but they do not take care of the demand. There are plenty of Spencer sweet peas. Calla lilies are quite plentiful, but there is no surplus. Easter lilies are arriving in fair condition, but the supply is not large. Some fine snapdragons and calendulas are seen in the stores. Bulbous stock is exceptionally fine this year. Cattleyas and violets are in good supply and are selling well for corsage work. Daisies, forget-me-nots, mignonette and other small flowers are quickly bought up.

In the plant line, many of the flower stores are featuring handsome cineraria plants, which bring $2 and $3 each. The demand during the first week of Lent has surpassed all records. Funeral work was tremendous, especially during the latter part of the week. Asparagus and all kinds of greens are scarce.

Various Notes.

The Flick Floral Co. had the decorations for the Wolf & Dessauer department store opening March 10. Lilies, lilacs and Russell roses were used, with many baskets of spring flowers and hundreds of foliage and flowering plants.

Adolph Jaenicke, park superintendent, is giving a series of lectures in this city on the care of the flower garden and the culture of shrubs and hedge plants. A number of articles, written by him, are appearing in one of the daily papers.

Cinerarias are being featured by A. J. Lanternier & Sons in their downtown shop.

Mrs. Minnie Soest, of the force of the Flick Floral Co., who has been absent from the store for some weeks on account of illness, has returned to her work.

A large number of baskets and bouquets of roses and spring flowers were sent to the opening of the Wolf & Dessauer department store from the Edgar C. Wenninghoff flower store, and many out-of-town orders have been received. Mr. Wenninghoff has a fine assortment of hyacinths, tulips and cinerarias.

The Market.

Business continues good and everything that comes into the market cleans up readily at good prices. The supply is about the same as it was at the last writing. Shipping business is excellent.

Roses are still short of actual requirements. All carnations that come into the market are selling well. Easter lilies, rubrum lilies and callas all meet with an excellent demand. Sweet peas are fairly plentiful and sell well. The supply of bulbous stock is fair. The list includes some excellent jonquils, daffodils and Dutch hyacinths and some tulips that are only fair. Snapdragon finds an excellent market. Among other offerings are orchids, calendulas, forget-me-not, baby primrose and wallflower.

The supply of greens, particularly asparagus, is somewhat short.

The Market.

The market slowed up last week and stock is arriving a little more plentifully. We now have a splendid cut of roses, with fancy Hadley, Ophelia, Columbia, Russell and Ward, which realize from 8 to 25 cents. Carnations are holding up well in price, although there is no oversupply. Sweet peas are arriving in quantity, the longer grades holding up well in price, the shorter grades suffering a slight drop, and clean up well. Double violets are more plentiful, but the left-over stock cleaned up with a slight cut in price. Single violets are in good demand. A good cut of Easter lilies and callas is seen and these meet with a fair demand. Pansies are arriving in quantity and realize $1.50 per hundred. Cut hyacinths are in good demand. Calendulas of good quality are arriving. Bulbous stock is having a brisk demand. There are few tulips in the market and daffodils and jonquils are cleaning up well. Narcissi are about through for the season. Freesia is moving slowly. Snapdragon, wallflowers, daisies and other novelties are in good demand.

Various Notes.

Peter Salaga, manager of the Sixth City Wire Works, died of influenza last week.

R. Walter and C. A. Bramley have new Overland delivery cars.

Paul Backofen, manager of the Daisy Hill Farm, has a fine cut of peas coming on.

The trade here feels keenly the unexpected death of Frank A. Friedley, which is reported in this week's obituary column. W. F. B.

OMAHA, NEB.

The Market.

Stock is scarce again and there is not much bulbous stock left. All flowers are bringing a good price. Business continues heavy and everyone gives a good report for the entire month of February.

Various Notes.

A large party of florists went to Lincoln for the convention of the State Florists' Society, held there recently. Everyone had a good time and was well pleased with the meeting.

The Council Bluffs bowlers came to Omaha, March 4, and took the Omaha boys' scalps to the tune of 600 pins.

F. L. Lainson, of Council Bluffs, was visited by a fire that practically destroyed his boiler room and packing shed. It started at 4 o'clock in the morning. Mr. Lainson had a good deal of stock ready for market in Omaha, but was fortunate enough to get this out before it was destroyed. The loss was covered by insurance.

J. F. Wilcox & Sons, of Council Bluffs, are cutting some exceptionally fine Columbia and Russell roses. Their carnations are the best that have been seen on this market for many years.

J. L. Ennegon, proprietor of the New York Floral Co., Denver, Colo., was in this city and states that business has been exceptionally good in Denver throughout the winter.

H. J. Jensen, manager for the Gurney Greenhouse Co., Mitchell, S. D., was in Council Bluffs on a business trip.

ASTERS.

We originated and introduced the American Beauty Aster and the fact that leading seedsmen now offer it is the best evidence that "we know Asters." CHRYSANTHEMUMS—Continued

THE STORY OF CHRISTMAS GOLD.

The most unique novelty pompon ever offered to the trade. Originated by Herbert Bate, of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., in 1915. A seedling of Baby. Has all the tough, lasting qualities peculiar to its parent, with a free growing habit similar to Lucille Knoble, Golden Climax, etc. The color is much darker than in the old Baby, almost a Golden Wedding yellow. Size, about one inch in diameter, of solid button type. Can be cut tight for Thanksgiving, is at its best from December 10 to 30, and holds on for weeks. We cut the last batch this season January 12, 1919.

Certified by and scored 90 points before the Chrysanthemum Society of America committee of Chicago, December 14, 1917.

From 2-in. pots, 20c each;
$17.50 per 100, $150.00 per 1000.

GLADIOLI

WHY YOU SHOULD SECURE STOCK OF PRINCE OF WALES.

Because its wonderful color will bring your customers back time and again for more of the same flowers. Because it is an early, easy forcer, and comes in weeks ahead of America. Because for garden use the stem is tall and straight, even in the hottest weather. Because it is a grand multiplier and grows readily from bulblets. Because its gorgeous glistening flowers are, nineteen times out of twenty, picked by visitors as the most beautiful colors in my gardens, and that among two hundred varieties of gladioli. It has been called clear salmon, orange shaded pink, golden salmon, apricot salmon, and pinkish salmon, but no matter what the color description is, it IS A WONDERFUL COLOR, and is going to prove one of the biggest moneymakers on the gladiolus market within a short time. First Class Certificate Haarlem, Holland, 1913. Large bulbs sold. Can spare a very few more half-inch planting stock, at $3.50 per 100; bulblets, $1.00 per 100, $9.00 per 1000. A large bulb free with every order of 500 or more bulblets. All postpaid. Good & Reese Co., Springfield, Ohio, bought 3000 bulblets, also dozens of other big firms that know what's what. 'Nuff said.

Raymond M. Champe, Walled Lake, Oakland Co., Mich. New and Rare Bulbs and Hardy Plants of Merit. Prince of Wales circular free.

GLADIOLUS MRS. WATT.

The measure of success of any variety of gladiolus is its earning power to the grower and to the florist, based on the satisfaction it gives to the public.

Gladiolus Mrs. Watt has made good on this practical end of the proposition. One florist writes: "I could have sold double the quantity of Mrs. Watt, had I owned the stock."

Testimonials from growers affirm that owing to its distinctive color, its strong upright growth and the excellent keeping qualities of the bloom of this variety, it is a paying proposition to both grower and florist.
